SENATE VOTES TAXES TO RAISE 176 MILLIONS

Nine Special Excise Levies Approved.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 26.—[Special.]—The senate abandoned argument for arithmetic today and wrote into the revenue bill taxes estimated to produce 176 million dollars.

SENATOR KEY PITTMAN. [A. P. Photo.]

By their day's work the senators raised the total now contained in the bill to 669 millions.

From the standpoint of balancing the budget, however, the senate's mathematics were not entirely successful. For subtraction exceeded addition, and despite the restoration of nine special excise taxes which the finance committee previously had stricken from the house bill the total of revenues at the end of the day fell 48 millions below the total originally reported to the senate.

Rub Some Senator Wrong Way.

Both the restoration of the excise taxes, each calculated to rub some particular set of senators the wrong way, and the growing deficit below the original committee program gave point to the report that the sales tax amendment would be offered tomorrow and to the assertions of senators on the floor that the sales tax might yet be the way out.

It was learned today that President Hoover has become definitely convinced of the necessity of putting a sales tax into the revenue bill. Among the significant events in this regard was the visit of Acting Chairman Charles R. Crisp [Dem., Ga.] of the house ways and means committee to the White House and his later appearance at the senate end of the capitol in conference with various groups of senators.

It was Mr. Crisp who chiefly was responsible for the inclusion of the sales tax in the original ways and means committee draft of the revenue bill.

Compromise Is Proposed.

Added impetus was given to the suggestion that a compromise combination of sales tax and higher income tax rates might be reached, when Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.] arose to state that he would support such a plan.

Added evidence of the determination of a large group of senators to fight higher income taxes to the end came with the answer of Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] to Senator Pittman. The Pennsylvanian insisted that the income tax rates already touched the limit of productivity and that a sales tax was the only possible way to achieve equity of taxation, to do away with the horde of nuisance taxes and still balance the budget.

Bulkley Pleads for Fairness.

The genesis of the debate was the objection of Senator Robert J. Bulkley [Dem., O.] to the proposed tax of 3¼ cents per pound on tires and four cents on inner tubes. He pleaded for fairness and asked their inclusion under the flat 2 per cent rate imposed on other automobile accessories.

"So long as we have no sales tax," replied Senator Reed, "we must raise the money where it can be found without regard to equality. We have legislated without regard to the justice done particular industries. Lubricants, for example, are taxed at a rate which amounts to 50 per cent of their wholesale price."

"The tax on lubricating oil was perfectly outrageous," declared Senator Bulkley.

"Exactly — outrageous," Senator Reed agreed.

Pittman Takes Floor.

It was here that Senator Pittman took the floor. He was one of the 31 senators who voted ten days ago to adopt the 1918 income tax rates proposed by Senator Couzens [Rep., Mich.].

Senator Pittman always had opposed a sales tax on principle, he said, and he thought England's experience showed that income tax rates might be pushed higher.

"But I wish to state that personally I have arrived at the position where I am prepared and willing to vote for a manufacturers' sales tax," he went on.

Senator Pittman meant, he ex-

Mills Protests as Democrats Aim at Billions.

Washington, D. C., May 26.—[Special.]—The Democrat campaign to expedite passage of a gigantic depression relief measure carrying billions for new federal public works construction and the financing of nonfederal self-liquidating projects surged forward today in the face of renewed administration opposition to additional expenditures for new public buildings, river improvements and highways.

Within a few moments after Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills had attacked former Gov. Al Smith for his recent championship of a vast public works program to be financed from the federal treasury, house Democrats united in support of the Garner program carrying one billion for public works projects and another billion for loans for nonfederal projects.

In his attack on the relief views advanced by the 1928 Democratic presidential nominee, Secretary Mills asserted that adoption of another big federal public building and public works program by the federal government would shake the confidence of the country in the national credit, make a balanced budget impossible for the next fiscal year and retard business recovery.

Has Optimistic Twist.

The treasury head followed this statement quickly with the optimistic prediction that adoption of a congressional program which would balance the budget and arrange for sound relief might well break the vicious circle of contraction and start a business upturn.

Secretary Mills was emphatic in asserting that an unimpaired national credit and a balanced budget represented the one indispensable foundation for business recovery. He declared that the destructive effect of an unsound financial program calling for huge public works expenditures "would far outweigh any benefits to be derived from unproductive public construction, for it would retard business recovery and increase rather than decrease unemployment."

That an acrimonious White House-Democratic clash is certain to mark congressional action on the various relief proposals was evidenced by the unanimity with which both senate and house Democrats have flocked to the support of public works programs. The decision of house Democrats to support the principle of the Garner program was reached at a secret caucus late today.

Democrats Plan Unity.

Following the meeting Speaker John Garner [Dem., Tex.] told newspaper men that unanimous approval of his program in principle had been expressed. The speaker disclosed that as soon as the ways and means committee completes hearings on the bill another caucus will be held for the purpose of making certain that the Democratic majority in the house stands solidly back of the federal public works and private works construction program.

Designed to exercise the widest possible appeal to all sections of the nation and to representatives of every section in congress, the Garner two billion 100 million dollar measure listed more than three thousand specific projects which would be financed from the federal treasury under its public works provision. Every state in the nation was given a whack at what veteran legislators characterized as the biggest public buildings and rivers and harbors melon ever offered to the public.

Every State Allotted Funds.

Each state was allotted funds for from five to 400 public building projects. From 4,500 to 5,000 postoffices are listed. With nearly 400 projects New York would obtain probably the largest slice of federal cash. Illinois has 133 building projects listed. No mention was made of the hundreds of other projects which would be financed under the second major section of the bill which supplies one billion dollars for loans to state, county, municipal, and private projects of a so-called self-liquidating or profit making nature. The theory back of this provi-

MAYOR DENIES KNOWLEDGE OF AID'S HUGE FUND

Sherwood Never His Agent, He Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 26.—[Special.]—Mayor James J. Walker ended his two days before the Hofstadter legislative committee this afternoon by shrugging $700,225 off his shoulders despite strenuous efforts of Samuel Seabury, chief counsel, to make him a big money man. The dapper little mayor, seemingly not a bit tired by his long ordeal, left the courtroom amid the wild cheers of the audience.

Mr. Seabury's long advertised "bomb shell" came late in the afternoon when he attempted to show that the missing Russell T. Sherwood, a $3,500 a year accountant who had served the mayor in private financial matters, was Walker's dummy and had deposited in banks and brokerage accounts since Jan. 1, 1926, sums totaling $700,225, more than half of which was in cash.

Mayor "Hopes He Proves It."

Mayor Walker denied all knowledge of the money and then shouted:

"I hope he proves it is mine, for then I can try to collect it."

Sherwood, the mayor explained several times during the long, hot afternoon in the overcrowded courtroom, was an accountant for his old law firm, once known as Blauvelt & Warren and now Warren & McIntyre, and had only served him in minor details through the courtesy of the law firm. Mr. Seabury brushed the mayor's interruptions aside and plodded on to his climax.

The mayor's final day in court ended with an address in a sour note. He took the committee severely to task for "wasting its time" and advised its members to "get through with whatever it is you are trying to do and give attention to the reconstruction of the archaic city charter."

Walker Attends Fight.

With the testimony out of the way, the mayor tonight turned to pleasure, and his appearance at the Walker-Uzcudun fight in Madison Square Garden provoked such a demonstration that he was forced to hush it himself. Guarded by two patrolmen to keep off handshakers, the mayor came down the aisle as the last preliminary got under way. Scattered cheers swelled to a roar and patrons leaped to their chairs in a fervent ovation while Walker walked to the ringside and sat down alongside James A. Farley of the New York boxing commission.

Mayor Walker thought faster than Mr. Seabury toward the climax of the testimony and showed his cleverness in a tilt over a mysterious secret fund in that Hornblower & Weeks brokerage firm. Mr. Seabury revealed that on Aug. 9, 1927, Sherwood drew $263,833 in cash from the secret account known as "the investment trustee fund."

"Let's make a real scenario of it," smiled the mayor, "for it was the next day afterward that I sailed for Europe. I suppose the plot is that I took it to Europe. But can you explain why I had to sell my soul for a $10,000 letter of credit when I had all that money?"

Session Continuous Uproar.

Throughout most of the afternoon the legislative committee was in an uproar, the Democratic minority members shouting that "the inquisition of the mayor was worthy of Russia," that you "cannot wish a man out of office nor in jail," and that the entire proceedings were "a disgrace."

Mr. Seabury smiled patiently, Mayor Walker grinned understandingly, and Chairman Hofstadter pounded frantically with an overheated gavel. Mr. Walker, after a bit, remarked:

"Please, I'm trying to get this line of reasoning straight. I can take care of myself. I am not afraid to face any of counsel's questions and I do not need any help."

Some of the High Spots.

Other highlights brought out in the day's examination of the mayor included:

The admission by Mr. Walker that he received $26,500 in bonds from J. A. Sisto, connected with Parmelee transportation promotion, after being included in a pool in Cosden Oil one night in 1927 after a banquet in Atlantic City. Mr. Walker said he for-

HUNG IN EFFIGY IN BEER PARADE AS CONGRESS DRY

Peru, Ill., May 26.—[Special.]—Congressman John T. Buckbee of Rockford, in whose district Peru is located, may have winced in Washington today when he learned—if he did—that he had been hanged in effigy during Peru's "Beer for Prosperity" parade last night. He voted dry the other day on the bill to legalize beer.

Peru has been one of Buckbee's strongholds, but the sentiment last night as evinced by cheers from the crowds as the "hanging" truck made its way through the streets might indicate the evolution of a different feeling. Buckbee will be opposed in November by Charles J. Linscott, Rockford Democrat, a liberal.

A mock gallows, complete with crosstree and trimmings, was rigged upon a truck for the anti-Buckbee display. As evidence of what the parading wet advocates propose to do to the congressman in the fall two signs were also hung upon the equipage.

The sign on one side read, "American Duty"; that on the other side read, "Buckbee in November."

Steamer Sinks in Crash; Hunt for Missing

New York, May 27 (Friday).—(AP)—The Radio Marine corporation received word early today that the steamer City of Chattanooga of the Savannah line had just collided with and sunk the steamer Grecian of the Merchant and Miners' line off Block island. The City of Chattanooga lowered boats and stood by in an attempt to save the survivors, it radioed.

No Details Received.

The report to the Radio Marine corporation said no more than that the boats had collided and that the Grecian had sunk. The Chattanooga was at anchor. How many passengers the Grecian carried was not immediately known.

The Radio Marine corporation received the following message from the City of Chattanooga:

"At about 1:50 a. m. we struck the steamer Grecian and she sank in a few minutes off Block island. We anchored. Crew and passengers all right."

Message from Chattanooga.

The reference to the crew and passengers was understood to mean those of the City of Chattanooga, not of the sunken steamer.

Another message from the City of Chattanooga to the coast guard said:

"We are blowing three blasts at intervals and searching for members of the crew not yet rescued with lights and boats."

The missing persons were believed to be from the Grecian. The Grecian is a passenger steamer, the Radio Marine corporation said, and plies between Boston, Philadelphia, and southern ports.

Cutter Speeds to Rescue.

The cutter Upshore of the coast guard was speeding to the rescue and was expected to arrive at the scene in 45 minutes.

The weather was extremely bad. A heavy pea soup fog swirled about the scene and the seas were running high.

The steamer Grecian, owned by the Merchants and Miners Transportation company of Baltimore, was built in 1900 at Wilmington, Del., by Harland and Hollingsworth Ship and Engine Building company. She is 263 feet long, 42 feet broad, and 29 feet deep, and has a net tonnage of 1,994. Her home port is Baltimore.

The City of Chattanooga is owned by the Ocean Steamship company. Her home port is Savannah. She was built in Newport News in 1923 by the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock company. She has a net tonnage of 4,343 and is 381 feet long.

A MEEK HUSBAND FINDS SOMETHING THAT ANGERS HIM

During his testimony yesterday John F. Fahlbush, a contractor, told Circuit Judge Craig Hood that he entered his home at 2116 Dayton street recently and found his wife, Irma, having her back scrubbed in the bathtub by her star boarder, Joseph Gerster. He was contesting his wife's divorce suit in which she charged cruelty.

"What did you do about it?" the judge asked.

"I told Gerster to leave the room," responded Fahlbush, meekly.

The judge stared at the witness a moment, then said: "Anyone who would let such a situation pass either is not a man or is not telling the truth. I'm going to give your wife a divorce, and I order you to give her your home and turn over to her $680 in bonds to apply on the mortgage. Since she has roomers I won't order you to pay alimony."

"I'd rather go to jail than submit to such a ruling," shouted Fahlbush.

"Very well then," said the judge, "I'll sentence you to three days in the county jail."

When Fahlbush fought with the bailiff and a deputy sheriff as he was being led from the courtroom the judge added two days more.

75 WET VOTES CAST IN BAPTIST PROHIBITION POLL

The Rev. Frederick Baldus, pastor of the First Baptist church of Waukegan, yesterday announced the results of a poll on prohibition which he conducted in his church last Sunday. He reported that of 207 ballots cast 132 were for the national prohibition law as it now stands and that 75, or 36 per cent, were for some form of modification.

Eight of the modificationists favored the return of the saloon, twenty were for state control of liquor sales, eighteen for government control, twenty-four for the Canadian plan of registered drinkers, three for local option and two for light wines and beer.

The minister said that he took the poll to satisfy his own curiosity about how far the Baptists of Waukegan were satisfied with conditions as they are.

J. K. Lowndes Goes Fishing and Catches Mad Black Bear

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., May 26.—J. K. Lowndes, Chicago fly fisherman, went home today with a catch which he boasts is the most original ever made by a fisherman. He flipped his line straight back behind him for another cast. The cast, however, was superfluous, for Mr. Lowndes had already caught a mangy and much irritated black bear. The fly had caught in the bear's left ear. Mr. Lowndes, returning to the spot an hour later, found the fly with a piece of the bear's ear hooked on it.

got all about the pool until his profits were handed to him.

The mayor denied any impropriety in the deal and insisted he would have shouldered his share of any loss if one had occurred. The mayor then pointed out his veto of a measure which he said would have added "a million dollars a year to the income of the Farmales company."

Walker Hints Ouster Plot.

Early in the proceedings, Mr. Walker declared his conviction that his examination was only a preliminary to the filing of charges against him with Gov. Roosevelt and said that although "I am a witness to an inquiry, it looks like somebody wants my life." This brought a response from Senator John J. Dunnigan, Democratic minority leader at Albany and member of the Hofstadter committee, that if the mayor were ousted "he would be reelected by the greatest vote he ever got."

Later in the day Mr. Walker flared in anger at an insinuation from Mr. Seabury that he had used Sherwood as a dummy in financial transactions totaling hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Denies Sherwood Connection.

"I have testified as to an utter lack of knowledge of Sherwood's financial dealings and as to his whereabouts," he replied. "I had nothing to do with his going away—have had no communication with him. I wish he were here. If he were here I certainly would not have had to spend these two days in a hot courtroom. I have either told the truth or I have perjured myself. I know what I am facing and I am willing to take the consequences of my testimony."

During his examination of Mayor Walker, Mr. Seabury stressed the fact that the account with Hornblower & Weeks was credited with two $25,000 cash deposits on June 17, 1927. He intimated that Mr. Walker had been in error when he said that all the money he received from a trading account he shared with Paul Block, the publisher, had gone into a seemingly bottomless safe in his home.

Crowd Follows Walker Out.

The departure of Mayor Walker from the witness chair and the tagging along of most of the crowd left the courtroom with a strangely vacant air. There was work to be done, however, and Mr. Seabury called Thomas E. Murphy, who was office manager for Hornblower & Weeks when Sherwood closed out his account there. Mr. Seabury explained that subsequent hearings will be devoted to attempts to controvert the many denials which the mayor left on the records.

Mr. Murphy testified that he had not known the identity of the owner of the investment trustee account in his office until the day when Sherwood appeared to draw out his entire balance in cash. Hornblower & Weeks, the witness said, did not have the cash on hand. A check was made out to cash and Mr. Murphy went to the National Bank of Commerce to collect the $263,833 in banknotes.

Paid Cash to Sherwood.

For some reason the cash was not available at the bank and Mr. Murphy and a bank attendant went to the Federal Reserve bank where the money was drawn out in thousand dollar bills. They made a bulky package, the witness testified, so he wrapped them in a newspaper and took them back to his office where Sherwood signed a receipt and carted the money away to an unknown destination.

Today's hearing was marked by the same disorderly scenes inside and outside the courtroom as took place on the first day of Mr. Walker's testimony. The carnival atmosphere continued, lunches and soda pop were sold by vendors inside and outside, the room remained packed with Tammany braves and there was a general air of rollicking hilarity despite the seriousness of the charges against the mayor.

How Mayor Answered Questions.

Important features of the examination concerning Mayor Walker's implied connection with Sherwood and numerous of the Sherwood financial transactions follow in question and answer form:

Q.—Mr. Mayor, Sherwood's vocation, so far as you know it, was that of an accountant, was it not? A.—No. It was more than that, judge. He was the accountant of Blauvelt & Warren. He was, in the opinion of a good many people, a tax expert, and I think had a reputation about a knowledge of investments.

Q.—He didn't live expensively or extravagantly, so far as you ever observed? A.—I never observed. I never was in his home.

Q.—And when he applied for a position at the Manhattan bank his application is in evidence here stating that his vocation was that of accountant and confidential secretary at a salary of $3,500 a year. Does that accord with your recollection about the salary that he was in receipt of? A.—I can ascertain, but I don't know of my knowledge what his salary was.

Tried to Find Sherwood.

Q.—When did you hear for the first time that he had fled the jurisdiction of the committee? A.—I heard about his absence after I returned from Europe.

Q.—Well, when you returned, at least, you knew that the committee, this committee, was desirous of having him appear before it as a witness? A.—Yes, sir. I read it in the newspapers.

Q.—Did you take any steps to endeavor to secure his attendance? A.—I did attempt to learn of his whereabouts and have never abandoned the effort to learn where he is.

Q.—What success did you have in the effort to learn his whereabouts? A.—I learned that he went to Mexico, where he was married. I read in the papers, I think, that he was seen at some other place by some newspaper men, and after that have never been able to learn where he is or where he has been.

MR. SEABURY—I am going to offer in evidence at this time the exhibits that have been marked for identification as to the accounts of Sherwood. He read a list of banks and bankers.

Mayor Defends Legal Rights.

THE WITNESS—Will you let me say, Mr. Chairman, that notwithstanding that I have recognized the invasion of certain constitutional, legal rights which I enjoy during the course of by examination by Judge Seabury that I have waived them that I might be able to coöperate more fully with the committee and that only for that purpose now I waive again. But I will not waive, even in my anxiety to coöperate with the committee if these matters are offered in evidence from which mere innuendo, surmise, or insinuation are to be drawn unless by questions they are connected up some way with me. Then I will insist upon my right to object, and if it is not considered it will be some other place.

Q.—Now, Mr. Mayor, can you give this committee any information as to the source from whence Russell T. Sherwod derived the money that he deposited in his various accounts? A.—I don't know anything about his personal, private affairs, because he never told me and I never inquired. Our contact was not of that nature. He was an employé of a firm who put themselves at my disposal since I became mayor to render any personal assistance that they could, and that was my contract with them, and there it ended.

Q.—I call your attention to the fact that in these accounts, including those I have referred to, from Jan. 1, 1926, to Aug. 5, 1931. Russell T. Sherwood deposited $700,225.52, of which $472,094.69 was in cash. I ask you to testify to this committee if you can whether you can throw any light upon the source and origin of those funds which Russell T. Sherwood secured and deposited in that form.

The Witness—Mr. Chairman, I have either testified truthfully or untruthfully, I have either committed perjury or I have not when I testified that by contact the business relations between Mr. Sherwood and myself or my wife were that of an employé of a law firm who was rendering assistance. These questions might just as well be given to the papers in interview form and save the time of both of us, because I have already testified I know nothing about it, and I am either guilty of perjury or not, on that answer, and if I am, I would expect to be prosecuted for it, and I knew that when I made the answer.

Digs Into Secret Account.

Q.—Let me ask you another question. Don't you know, or do you know, that there was another account, a secret account in the firm of Hornblower & Weeks, not carried in the name of Sherwood, but an account that was in truth and in fact Sherwood's account? A.—I haven't the slightest knowledge of any such account in that firm.

Q.—I again venture to call your attention to exhibit 747 in evidence, which is the check that was drawn to your order from the Paul Block account on June 9, 1927, and which you told the committee you cashed and deposited the cash in the safe at your home—and ask you whether you do not observe that that check drawn on June 9 was actually cashed on June 16, 1927?

A.—Without looking at the dates you must remember that I have not only testified but we have agreed that these checks were drawn by the broker to my order. The cash was given to me whether before the check was cashed or afterward and then the check went back into the account of the broker.

Now, I don't know when he drew the check, whether he gave me the cash the same day or seven days later, because in no instance when I got the cash did I say "Show me the date of the check that you drew this cash with."

Q.—It appears that two checks that came out of the Paul Block account, made payable to your order, for $25,000 each, were cashed in about the middle of June, 1927. It also appears that into the investment trustee account on June 17 were deposited two payments of $25,000 each; and I call your attention further to the fact that this check of June 9, 1927, for $25,000, appears by the stamp mark upon it to have been cashed on June 16, 1927. A.—I deny that. That has nothing to do with when I got the money, because I didn't use the check itself. The broker drew it to my order, I indorsed it, he gave me cash, but when he put it back in his bank you don't apparently know, and I certainly don't. So you can't give a date when I got the cash.

Q.—Well, you didn't get the cash before the check was drawn on June 9, 1927? A.—I don't know. That could have happened.

Q.—Well——? A.—The money was in there and it was due me.

Mayor Demands Courtesy.

The mayor had his first big upset of the day when Mr. Seabury started to question him about the measure establishing a taxi control board which he had sponsored. This bit of legislation figured conspicuously in testimony relating to a gift of bonds the mayor was alleged to have received from brokerage interests with taxicab company connections. Mr. Seabury had not gotten very far along this line of interrogation today when his honor halted him to say:

"I want this understood—that I propose to coöperate with this committee as much as I can. I repeat again that I not only have a very genuine definite respect for the legislature, but an affectionate interest in it; but I do expect the legislature to recognize the fact and to see that I am treated at least with the courtesy that a citizen ought to expect, if not a former member of the legislature.

Mayor's Friends Join In.

After enjoying a little round of applause the mayor went on:

"I want the privilege of adding one word—I am going to coöperate, but there is no doubt in my mind but this is nothing but an examination before trial, so far as I am concerned, else the papers are further from the truth than they ever were. This is preliminary to preferring charges to the governor for my removal, and no one is fooled by the fact——

Mr. Seabury—This is a simple stump speech.

The mayor—You will permit me to reply in kind without being disrespectful to the committee?

Mr. Dunnigan—[Another Tammany member.]—If there is any removal from the office of mayor, the people of this city will reelect him by the greatest vote he ever got.

Stock Pool Nets $26,000.

Gradually the inquisitor worked up to the now famous Atlantic City meeting between the mayor and Broker J. A. Sisto, where the mayor was supposed to have been "counted in on" the so-called Cosden oil stock pool—a "nomination" which he admitted today brought him a profit of some $26,000. His share of the proceeds were paid in bonds, it has been brought out.

Q.—Do you recall that in that meeting at Atlantic City reference was made to Sisto being interested in Cosden oil stock? A.—I don't know that any reference—I don't remember that any reference was made to him being interested in it, but reference was made to Cosden Oil.

Q.—Do you recall any one making a reference to the fact that Sisto was interested in Cosden Oil and suggesting that you be called in on the transaction? A.—No, it is not quite that, judge. There was reference made to the fact that there was a pool in Cosden Oil in which some of those present were participating, and I was invited to participate?

Q.—Did you put up any money? A.—No, I didn't put up any money.

It's All Among Friends.

Q.—Was there any written commitment by you of any kind that in the event of a loss you would pay your share? A.—There wasn't, and I don't understand that that is the practice among gentlemen when—well, especially for the last four or five years in stock trading it has never been the custom among friends, among strangers almost, to make written commitments on these things.

Q.—Do you remember his (Sisto) calling on you at the city hall and expressing to you his views about the necessity for regulating competition in the taxicab business in New York? A.—I do not. I don't know what his views are in the matter and I know that I never discussed them in detail with him.

After another wrangle in which all the Democratic members of the committee took a hand in his behalf the mayor gave his version of the Atlantic City meeting—with Sisto—which he said followed a banquet and of the pool deal which resulted. He explained:

"..fter the banquet there was general discussion in and out the suite of rooms where there were several men gathered. Something was said about Cosden Oil, in general, about a pool, and I was asked if I wanted to participate, and I repeat, I can't be definite just who said it, but I am surely definite that it wasn't Sisto.

Gets Into Pool at No Cost.

"I inquired how much it would cost and was told it wouldn't cost anything at this time because the stock had already gone up 10 or 15 points, that I would be permitted to participate in it. That was the end of it, so far as I ever knew, with that conversation that night.

"I never thought of it again until some time thereafter when I was told the pool was closed, and Mr. McKeon came to my apartment in the Ritz-Carlton hotel, told me that the pool was closed and that I had profited to the extent of about $26,000.

Following that there was a shortage of money and things were not so good, something to that effect— I don't pretend to be accurate about it— and asked me in lieu of the money if I would accept the bonds and I said, why not? Now that was the only two conversations that I know about that happened with regard to Cosden Oil. I forgot entirely about it from the night of the banquet until the bonds turned up and then proceeded to forget about them and can forget about them now because they are worthless.

Q.—How long did you keep the bonds? A.—I didn't keep them. After the next day I gave them to Mrs. Walker and she still has them.

They finally got around to Sherwood again.

Denies Sherwood His Employé.

Q.—Did Sherwood ever tell you that he had purchased 1,000 shares of Ungerleider stock? A.—He did not.

Q.—Were you with Sherwood when he made his statement to Mr. McKeon on May 15, 1930, in the mayor's office, referring to the fact that he, Sherwood, had from Ungerleider a right to repurchase this thousand shares for the amount he had originally paid, regardless of the then market—resell? A.—Nothing like that ever happened in my recollection.

Q.—Did he have charge of your check books? A.—Well, they were in the law office and he made out most of the checks.

Q.—He was your representative, wasn't he, in many things? A.—No, he was never a representative of mine. He was never an employé of mine.

Q.—Well, he had charge of many financial matters for you, did he not?

A.—He didn't have charge of many financial matters for me. He did do a great many services for me as an employé of Warren & McIntyre or Blauvelt & Warren, the two different law firms.

Safes, Tin Boxes, Bets and Tips Sources of N. Y. Politicians' Wealth

New York, May 26.—[Special.]—Some of the explanations offered by witnesses on big bank accounts turned up by the Hofstadter legislative graft investigating committee are:

Mayor James J. Walker, of Paul Block's gifts totaling $246,692.76—"I took it home and put it in a safe—not a vault, not a tin box—a safe in my house."

Thomas M. Farley, former sheriff of Manhattan county—". . . of the source of unexplained sums totaling around $100,000. A tin box. My good box. A wonderful box."

Harry C. Perry, chief clerk of the City court; of bank deposits totaling more than $40,000; a special cash account in the Di Sessa & Di Sessa bank—"When I needed some money I'd go there and say, 'Nick, I need $3,000,' and Nick [Di Sessa] would give it to me out of the special account. Then, in a day or two, maybe, I'd put the money back again."

Joseph T. Quinn, deputy commissioner of sanitation in Queens, of unexplained bank deposits totaling around $32,000—"Jack Phillips [Queens contractor] every once in a while would put up a little bet and hand me $500, $600, $800, or maybe $1,000."

James A. McQuade, register of Kings county; of bank deposits totaling around $500,000—"Borrowing off Peter to pay Paul, and so forth. . . . I never had over $1,000 in any bank. I can guarantee you I did not bury any of it, nor did I have any strong boxes nor any safe deposit vaults."

Michael J. Cuise, city clerk; of unexplained bank deposits totaling around $142,000—"No tin box. He could not put me in a hole—you or anybody else. I am as clear as crystal."

Patrolman Robert E. Morris, police vice squad; of about $50,000 withdrawn from banks—He didn't trust banks; he kept it in a tin box a la Farley.

Joseph Flaherty, assistant deputy sheriff; of $20,000 banked in four months—"Most of it belonged to my brother."

James J. McCormick, clerk in the marriage license bureau; of bank deposits which totaled around $150,000—"A couple of friends in the clubhouse one night told me there was no harm in taking tips."

MACKAY SLASHES PAY OF SERVANTS; SOME WORK FOR ONLY FOOD

Roslyn, L. I., May 26.—[Special.]—The depression has caused Clarence H. Mackay, head of the Postal Telegraph-Cable company, to slash the operating cost of "Clock Hill," his great Roslyn estate.

Employing between 60 and 100 servants, Mackay in some instances has cut their salaries 50 per cent. Others have had their pay entirely stopped. One man, who has been with Mackay for 35 years, is working for nothing.

Mackay recently called his servants together and told them he intended to reduce the expenses on his country estate to the minimum. He declared to his employés:

"If you want to stay here and work for your living without pay until this depression lets up, I'll be glad to have you.

"You'll get your housing free, as usual. There are plenty of vegetables, chickens, ducks, and other foodstuffs. You are welcome to them. But there'll be no money for you until conditions improve."

REPORT WIDOW IS INDICTED FOR $266,000 THEFT

Mrs. Sophie Paul, 62 years old, a widow, was reported named yesterday in two true bills voted by the grand jury charging her with the larceny of $266,000 in mortgages, bonds, and jewelry from her former employer, Harry C. Wirsing, 76 years old, 1521 Juneway terrace, a retired real estate broker.

Wirsing charged that Mrs. Paul, his former housekeeper and secretary, looted his safe deposit box at 31 North State street after she left his employ. Mrs. Paul, at the time of her arrest, said that she was entitled to the property through a marriage contract with Wirsing. He denied that he had ever contemplated marriage with her.

BROTHER LONELY IN ALIMONY ROW; JUDGE FREES HIM

Felix Daskowski, 4842 West Superior street, a member of the county jail alimony club since Dec. 2, didn't mind his confinement so long as his brother, also committed for failure to pay alimony, was there to keep him company, he told Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday in the Superior court.

"But my brother got out a month ago. Since then I have been awfully lonesome," Felix said.

He was one of five members of the club released yesterday by Judge Sabath. The others were John Vipkocl, 2823 South Homan avenue; Joseph Patka, 1037 North Paulina street; Arthur Curuthe, 2944 Cottage Grove avenue, a Negro, and Stanley Rentfisch, 2716 North Monticello avenue.

MILLIONS TIED UP IN IDLE SCHOOLS, MAYOR CHARGES

Report Reveals Scores of Vacant Classrooms.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

His accusations, as they have been disclosed so far, are briefly: The school board has not only built lavish junior high schools, but has paid an "excess profit" of 41 per cent, or $1,015,391, on two of them. These have "decapitated" a large number of elementary schools of their seventh and eighth grade pupils, leaving many expensive rooms vacant in the elementary schools.

Vacant Rooms Cost Millions.

"A class room is estimated to cost $55,000 by Mr. Don Rogers," reads the mayor's memorandum. [Mr. Rogers is director of research and building survey for the board of education.] "Therefore 94 class rooms would be worth $5,170,000, now idle. If the membership of class rooms is raised to 46 pupils, then there would be 116 vacant class rooms in this one district, worth $6,380,000."

The mayor's list accounted for only 21 elementary schools out of 300 in the city. In another list the mayor showed there were 97 vacant rooms having a value of $5,335,000 in 18 elementary schools. From these figures it was estimated that the number of idle classrooms runs into several hundred, despite the fact that Business Manager Howard P. Savage, only last Tuesday, said there were 186 vacant school rooms. He explained that he obtained his information from Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan.

Mayor Cermak's statement indicates that this figure is incorrect. Supt. Bogan's office appears not to have found half the vacant rooms which Mayor Cermak's investigators indicate exist.

97 Rooms Vacant.

In his second list Mayor Cermak shows that the 97 rooms in 18 elementary schools are vacant because their seventh and eighth grade pupils were taken over by the Harper, Westcott, Curtis, and Parker junior high schools. It was charged before Gov. Emmerson's tax conference last July that $500,000 of "excess profits" were paid in the construction of the Parker school.

"These 97 rooms, at Mr. Rogers' figure of $55,000 per room, have a value of $5,335,000," reads the mayor's statement. "Yet it is reported there are tens of thousands of pupils in half day sessions, in rented buildings and in portables.

"I do not think that the board will be paying out 'excess profits' on school buildings for some time," commented the mayor. "They will be too busy explaining. These statements show how the money has been wasted. If the school had been properly located, designed and fairly built, there would be no portables today and the school teachers would have been paid.

"Teachers Will Learn."

"The city has gone broke digging up $28,000,000 to pay the teachers. We have been trying to get the schools back to the people, but they are still in the control of the 'solid six'—the half dozen trustees who reelected L. E. Myers president—and I can't say what they will do with them. The teachers will learn how the schools have been managed. They can't eat the baloney handed out over at the school board.

Savage referred to Mayor Cermak as "Tony Baloney." The mayor went on:

"Baloney is a type of sausage made of dead dogs, and the dogs are never killed until they become Savage."

In his statement Wednesday, Mayor Cermak said that Trustee Carter Blatchford "double crossed" him. This was denied yesterday by the trustee.

Invites Investigation.

"I was invited to a conference with the mayor by one of our mutual friends," Trustee Blatchford said. "I then advised the mayor I would go along on anything that was for the benefit of the schools. That certainly did not mean purely political control of the board, as the Democrats wanted yesterday. The mayor did not tell me who his candidate was.

"I was not a member of the board when the contracts were let to which the mayor referred. A Democrat was then chairman of the building and grounds committee. There has been a remarkable cut in school building costs since I became chairman and I will welcome an investigation on that score."

President Myers said: "I don't think the mayor's charges apply to me at all, although I was mentioned. If I ever mention him, he'll be sorry. I would not dignify Mr. Cermak by getting into a controversy with him.

"Impossible to Answer."

"It is impossible to answer the mayor's charges without an investigation," said Trustee H. Wallace Caldwell. "I have found that similar charges showed a lack of knowledge of the facts on the part of men who have made them.

"I would say offhand that the charges constitute an absolute falsehood. If there is any basis for them, I shall insist that the matter be placed in the hands of the state's attorney.

"There is a 19 million dollar charge for debt service and the salaries of teachers amount to 36 million. I haven't seen any evidence of leadership on the part of the mayor to reduce the cost of this debt service, which would be enough to keep the schools open for half a year."

Mayor Cermak was asked about grand jury action on the alleged "excess profit" of $1,015,391 in the building of the Wright and Kelvyn Park Junior High schools. He replied:

"That's up to State's Attorney Swanson."

SENTENCES FOR TWO IN KIDNAP CASE DELAYED

Sentencing of John Pingera and William Thomas, who pleaded guilty to the kidnaping for ransom of Dr. and Mrs. Max Gecht last Dec. 10, was delayed until May 31 yesterday at the request of the state. Attorney Ward Swalwell was acquitted of the kidnaping late Wednesday night by a jury in Judge Philip Sullivan's court.

Thomas and Pingera, at the time they pleaded guilty, asked that they not be given more than 20 years in the penitentiary for the kidnaping. The state at that time said it would recommend life imprisonment.

INSURANCE AGENT KILLS HIMSELF TO AID HIS FAMILY

After writing a note in which he informed his wife that he was doing her and their sons "a favor," Gilbert M. Smith shot and killed himself yesterday in his home at 1615 Ashland avenue, Evanston.

Smith, who was 45 years old, was a Yale graduate and an agent for the New York Life Insurance company. In his note he stated:

"On paper we are well off, but ready cash is nil. The money I have paid out or loaned to others will not raise a dime at present. You can now meet the $2,000 payment on the mortgage and the crushing bills, and you should receive enough to live comfortably. Cheerio, and love."

His wife, Bessie, and son, Gilbert Jr., 20 years old, a student at Northwestern university, heard the shot. Two other sons, Bruce, 16 years old, and Douglas, 14 years old, are students at the Evanston High school.

Smith was a member of the University club, Adventurers' club, and Evanston Country club. He was a second lieutenant in the air service during the war and once served as a member of the Cook county aviation commission.

WIFE TELLS POLICE HUSBAND KIDNAPED HER AT POINT OF GUN

Oakland, Cal., May 26.—(AP)—Police announced tonight Mrs. Marion Y. Read, who recently filed an alienation of affections suit against Claire Windsor, motion picture actress, had telephoned them that she had been kidnaped by her estranged husband, Alfred G. Read Jr., a broker.

Mrs. Read told police that her husband, at the point of a pistol, had abducted her last night from in front of the home of friends, and had driven her to a lonely spot in the forest 30 miles south of Watsonville, Cal., some 75 miles from Oakland.

She said Read had the assistance of three friends in the plot, but that she managed to escape from her husband when he fell asleep beside the road.

3 Des Plaines Schools to Close Today, Month Early

The three grade schools in Des Plaines will be closed for the summer vacation this afternoon, a month ahead of the usual schedule. Superintendent of Schools E. R. Selleck explained that the early closing was ordered as an economy measure, receipts from taxes having been insufficient to last through the year. Sixty teachers are employed in the three grade schools, which have 1,200 pupils.

JUDGES DECIDE TODAY ON COURSE IN PAY CUT FIGHT

Aldermen Attack Budget for City Courts.

Whether the judges of the Municipal court will cooperate with the city council in reducing expenditures or fight for larger appropriations is due to be decided this afternoon at a meeting of the judges in Chief Justice Sonsteby's chambers.

The judges have authority to compel the council to appropriate for the court any sum they name. Previous council protests have been answered by mandamus actions to compel the aldermen to turn over the amounts the judges asked. But, despite past defeats, the council finance committee has again thrust economy at the judges in the form of a 13 per cent salary cut. On Wednesday the committee voted to dock judges and court employes forty-eight days' pay for the year. The city employes will be docked seventy-eight days' pay.

Aldermen Fight Judges' Budget.

The aldermen acted in rebellion against the budget submitted by the judges for 1932. In this the judges have set up a 6 per cent cut for the court employes—city employes are being docked 21 per cent—but set up no reduction in the salary of Chief Justice Sonsteby, who gets $15,000 a year, or in the salaries of the associate judges and Clerk Gill and Bailiff Horan, who receive $10,000 annually.

Recently, the judges voted to take a 6 per cent cut, although it doesn't appear in their proposed budget. Some of the judges accepted the reduced salary, some took only part of the cut, and 12 were named as refusing to abide by it. The twelve are Judges Freeman L. Fairbank, Francis Borrelli, Theodore F. Ehler, F. W. Elliott, George V. McIntyre, John F. O'Connell, Thomas A. Green, Jay A. Schiller, Samuel Heller, John F. Haas, William R. Fetzer, and M. D. Hartigan.

Attacks Courts' Stand.

In pointing out the one sidedness of a 6 per cent cut for the court and 21 per cent for city employes, Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the finance committee, said:

"The salaries of city policemen and firemen are $2,500, or one-fourth the salaries of the judges. The 21 per cent cut means a reduction of $525 in the police and fire salaries. A 6 per cent cut reduces the judges' salaries by $600, or only $75 more than the policemen and firemen lose."

Chief Justice Sonsteby would not comment in advance of today's meeting on the finance committee's action in doubling the cut proposed by the judges. He said that he is in favor of public officials taking the same reduction as the employes of their offices.

GARY CUTS SALARIES 10 PER CENT; SLASHES EXPENSES BY $235,000

As a measure of economy, the Gary city council at a meeting yesterday trimmed $235,000 off the general operating expenses of the city government for the rest of the year. Included in the program was a 10 per cent pay cut for all city employes to take effect Wednesday. The measure was passed unanimously by the council on the recommendation of Mayor R. O. Johnson.

Through the pay cut the city expects to save $84,000. Other economies include forcing the employes to take a two week's vacation without pay and a rigid curtailment of purchases in the city departments. It was also agreed at the meeting that men receiving charity from the city will hereafter work for the city for their groceries. The economy program was drawn up by the finance committee of which Ald. Ralph E. Rowley is chairman.

EX-BEER DEALER CALLS ON POLICE; THEY KEEP HIM

Walter Zwolinski, 23 years old, 5147 Loomis street, who was connected with the O'Donnell gang of beer runners on the south side until their elimination some months ago, went to the Chicago Lawn police station yesterday with a protest.

"Why," he demanded of the desk sergeant, "can't Kelly get a license to run that saloon over at 50th and Damen?"

He then announced he was going to use his personal and political influence to see that the license was gotten immediately.

Capt. John Egan, commander of the district, heard his remarks. He ordered that Zwolinski be taken into custody. A search of the records at the detective bureau showed that he was wanted for the robbery of Fred Porst, 1610 North Wells street, a truck driver, on Jan. 23, at 32d street and Lowe avenue.

Tax Collector's Office to Be Open Memorial Day

County Treasurer McDonough announced yesterday that his office in the county building would be open on Monday, Memorial day, to allow taxpayers one more day of payment before the penalty deadline, June 1. Yesterday a total of $1,035,751 of 1930 taxes was collected, of which $1,031,203 was on real estate. The remainder was in delinquent personal property tax payments.

HOTEL MEN BAR W. C. T. U. BOOTHS IN THEIR LOBBIES

Drys Plan Fight as Wets Get Privileges.

The Chicago Hotel Men's association has refused lobby space for use by the W. C. T. U. in soliciting funds and memberships. It became known yesterday when a protest movement was launched by the W. C. T. U.

J. K. BLATCHFORD.

The hotel men recently extended such privileges to the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, which set up booths in the large hotels and solicited membership cards. J. K. Blatchford, secretary of the hotel men's association, yesterday explained why the application of the drys was rejected while the wets were accommodated.

Opposed to Prohibition.

"The National Hotel Men's association last fall voted overwhelmingly against prohibition," he said. "We are against prohibition because it is ruining our business, driving the dining trade to the speakeasies, which pay no taxes. The Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform asked permission to put booths in our hotels for the purpose of soliciting memberships and their request was granted.

"The W. C. T. U. said nothing about wishing to erect the booths until the other women had put on their campaign. Then the W. C. T. U. came around and demanded the same privilege. They were turned down because it is a standing rule in our organization that no soliciting will be permitted in the lobbies. The women's prohibition reform organization solicited only memberships, while the drys wanted to solicit funds as well."

Drys Prepare to Fight.

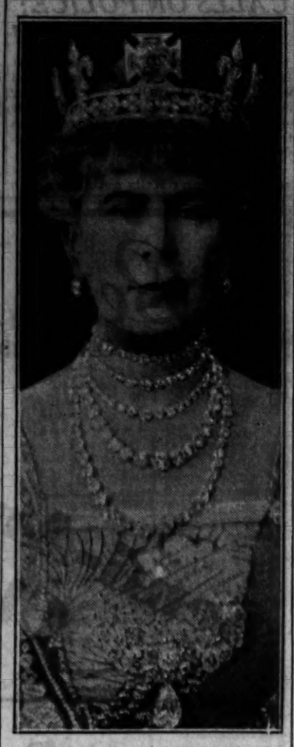
The drys were incensed at the action of the hotel men and, led by Mrs. Ada Ferguson, president of the Illinois W. C. T. U., planned an attack on the hotels with a mailing campaign on the eve of the two national political conventions to meet here in June. One spokesman for the dry organization declared:

"We are going to prove that hotels have done better since bars were taken out under prohibition."

FINED FOR PASSING HAND BILLS.

Two men, who passed handbills in Melrose Park on May 1 advertising a communist demonstration, were each fined $5 by Police Magistrate Louis Senese Jr. They are James B. Cain, 26 years old, 2730 Cortez street, and Edward Starevich, 20, of 404 South 14th avenue, Maywood.

65 YEARS OLD



QUEEN MARY.

LONDON, May 26.—(AP)—Queen Mary celebrated her sixty-fifth birthday today. Members of the royal family were invited to luncheon at noon. A salute of 21 guns in Hyde park was the only formal ceremony authorized. The royal servants at the palace, according to an old custom, drank the queen's health in champagne furnished by the king.

U. S. MINISTER IN VIENNA ATTACKED BY COMMUNISTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, May 26.—Fifteen communists were arrested today after a demonstration against the American minister, Gilchrist B. Stockton, in behalf of the seven Negroes condemned to death at Scottsboro, Ala., for attacks on white girls.

Stockton had been invited by Mayor Karl Seitz to attend opening ceremonies of Vienna's newest apartment house containing 2,000 flats and named in honor of the first American President.

When Stockton drove up in front of the new building the Reds stoned his automobile. One stone broke a window of his automobile. A piece of paper was attached on which was written, "Liberate the seven Negroes." Pamphlets urging an attack on the American minister today were distributed earlier in the week.

PERSHING FLAYS DRY LAW; CALLS IT CRIME BREEDER

Criticizes Lazy Voter in Address in Paris.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, May 26.—An attack on prohibition and "a lot of cheap politicians," who, he said, were now governing the United States, was made here today by Gen. John J. Pershing in a speech at a luncheon of the American club. The blame "for what is being visited upon us today" was laid by Gen. Pershing to the American public, "which is too indifferent to perform its duty at the polls."

Marshal Franchet d'Espery was present and Gen. Pershing described a luncheon during an attack in the fall of 1917 when he and the marshal discussed prohibition, which then was being agitated in the United States.

Was a "Bit Frightened."

"I told the marshal I was a little bit frightened that they might put it over on us while we were gone," said Gen. Pershing, "and that it might be in effect when we got back. He said it was terrible and I agreed with him."

The situation which resulted was described by the retired general as "lawlessness, brigandage and racketeering."

"The American people themselves are nearly entirely responsible for what is being visited upon us today because they do not pay attention to the obligations imposed upon them as citizens," he continued. "They are too busy making money and enjoying themselves and pay no attention to what is going on politically in their own home."

Assails Neglect of Voters.

After quoting figures intended to show the small number of citizens who go to the polls, Gen. Pershing said:

"It is a crime, gentlemen, that the American citizens are committing against themselves and against our government. Had it not been for this neglect, no such foolish thing as an amendment to the constitution trying to regulate the manufacturing and sale of wine and liquors could ever have gotten by.

"It was simply done through the negligence of the citizen who now sits up and howls. He is to blame for it, and things are likely to happen again. You are having these things happen all the time. We are being governed by a lot of cheap politicians They put themselves over on the Americans who are too neglectful to go to the polls and express their opinion as to what things ought to be.

Racketeer, Bootlegger, Gangster.

"Prohibition is undoubtedly the basis of the racketeering that exists in America today. The bootlegger and gangster have made much money and have made easy money, money that ought to have gone into the United States treasury to help relieve the deficit. They have made so much money they do not know what to do with it.

"In America today the racketeer walks into a drug store and says, 'I am part owner of this drug store. I am Mr. So and So, my address is so and so and I'll require you to leave there every Saturday night $250 as my share of the profits.'

"And they accept that over there. It is done all over the country. It is committed against laundries, against every business there, and the people submit to it.

Blames American Citizen.

"Who is to blame? The American citizen himself, because he does not rise up. In the old days Mr. Racketeer was hung up on a tree. I am not advocating that sort of thing, but when a man reads such things the first thought that comes into his mind is how much he would like to participate in that kind of punishment.

"But I have faith in our great people. I think they will wake up some of these days—perhaps they are waking up now. The budget will be balanced, gentlemen, and we will pull out of this depression and see many and happier and brighter days."

U. S. CUSTOMS PLANE TRAPS WAR ACE AND SEIZES BEER IN TEXAS

San Angelo, Tex., May 26.—(AP)—A world war ace, allegedly turned beer runner, is the first "enemy" downed and captured in aerial warfare against liquor and narcotic smugglers inaugurated by the United States customs service.

W. T. Ponder of Fort Worth, Tex., who served in the air forces of both France and the United States in the world war and holder of the distinguished service cross, was unable to trick a customs pursuit plane manned by Bobbie Dual, Fort Worth flyer hired by customs officers, in a 200 mile chase from the Mexican border.

As Ponder landed his biplane at the San Angelo airport last night the small ship in pursuit whipped in ahead of him and he was trapped.

Agents D. S. Conner and A. P. Cummings leaped from the government ship and placed Ponder under arrest. They found 1,500 bottles of Mexican beer in Ponder's plane.

While the prisoner denied knowing he had been chased and said he landed for fuel, airport officials said it appeared that Ponder came down in a desperate effort to shake off his pursuers.

Ponder waived examining trial today on a charge of violating the customs laws and was held in $1,500 bond. Ponder's ship until two weeks ago was used on the Dallas-Chicago air mail line. It was sold to a Dallas man for $2,000.

The capture marked the first airplane seizure where both the government and the hunted craft were in the air.

And Thus Explodes Idea of Contented Convicts.

Gone yesterday from the great cellhouses which make up the state prison at Stateville was the happy air of contentment which took possession of the convicts a month ago. Gone was the joyous hilarity with which the prisoners responded to the orders of their guards.

Gone also was the confidence of Warden Henry C. Hill that his prisoners had at last resigned themselves to a peaceful and quiet stay within the walls. During the last few weeks Warden Hill had marveled at the joyous manner in which his boys went about their tasks. It had even been necessary to post "No Singing!" placards in the cellhouses.

On Wednesday the customary atmosphere of good will toward all men hovered over the prison. Especially in cellhouse E were the inmates merry and disposed to look upon life as worth living. And the gayety was concentrated upon that cell which housed Edward Nelson, 30 years old, and Roy Knight, 23 years old, Chicagoans, serving long sentences for robbery with a gun.

Then the roar of an explosion shattered the afternoon quiet. The prison was in an uproar. Squads of guards hastened to the cell occupied by Nelson and Knight. They found the two men unconscious on the floor amid the ruins of a neatly designed copper still, guaranteed to turn out its half gallon of sugar alcohol several times each twenty-four hours.

Severely burned on the face, hands, and body, Nelson and Knight were taken to the hospital for treatment. Somewhat sternly, Warden Hill commanded that they be put into solitary confinement when they had recovered from their injuries.

"I had no idea such a thing could happen," said Warden Hill. He ordered a search of all cells for other stills.

The two convicts had been cooking alcohol for a month, it was said, using sugar from the kitchen for their mash. The purity and excellence of their product was vouched for in sincere terms by a number of inmates of cellhouse E.

Contentment and joy had flown, indeed, from Stateville last night.

Bandits Menace Patrons in Cafe; Loot Cash Register.

Two armed men entered the Harrison Log Cabin restaurant at 865 East 63d street early today, and after terrifying eight customers, several waitresses, and the manager, Mrs. Betty Pine, escaped with $75 from the cash register. One of the bandits commanded the patrons and the waitresses to remain quiet while the other compelled Mrs. Pine to open the cash register and give him the contents.

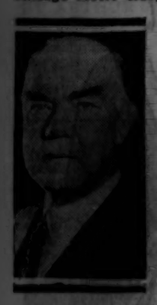
HAYES SUBMITS REPEALER OF BAN ON NIGHT PARKING

Motor Club Head Tells of Protests.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, yesterday sent a proposed ordinance repealing the ban on all night parking to City Clerk Brady, with the request that it be introduced at the next council meeting on June 1.



CHARLES M. HAYES

In a letter which accompanied the ordinance draft, also directed to the council, Mr. Hayes said that numerous protests have been received by the motor club from its members against the anti-parking drive started Monday by police.

A number of members, Mr. Hayes said, wrote that they have garage facilities, but that when they return home late at night they fear to drive into alleys to their private garages for fear of holdups. Some said that they had been robbed before at their garage doors and would under no consideration risk another experience of the kind.

Assails Theft Theory.

"It has been urged on behalf of enforcement," said Mr. Hayes, "that such enforcement will reduce the number of car thefts and, consequently, lower insurance rates. Many of our correspondents point out that this statement is ridiculous for the reason that between 2 a. m. and 6 a. m., when parking is banned, is unquestionably the highest period of the day for thefts of cars and that there is far more danger of thefts of cars which are parked during the remaining period of the day.

"The other point advanced to the effect that it is extremely hazardous in cases of fires where cars are parked also is fallacious, in the opinion of our correspondents. Cars will be found parked in the streets in far greater numbers during other hours than those restricted in the ordinance.

"Under present economic conditions it is inadvisable to enforce a punitive measure. Thousands of our citizens are hardly able to keep their cars in operation and during the summer months they have counted on keeping them in the streets. To force them to garage their cars would be an unnecessarily harsh burden, considering the weight of taxation under which motorists now labor."

Motorists who obey the ban on all night parking in the streets by driving over curbs to park in vacant lots are being given arrest slips for violation of another section of the city code, driving over a curb, Joseph H. Braun, general counsel for the motor club, said he had been informed. The club will defend all of its members who are charged with such a violation in their endeavors to comply with the parking restriction, Mr. Braun said.

Start Test in Court.

The first court test of the anti-parking drive was started yesterday by James W. Harris, 137 North Central avenue, a state representative. He got a summons to the "cafeteria" branch of the Traffic court, requiring him to pay a $2 fine. He went there and demanded a jury trial.

Employés first denied that he was entitled to any hearing before a judge, Mr. Harris said, but later set his case for hearing June 10. He then went to the office of Attorney W. W. O'Brien and agreed to pay half the expenses of the Automobile Parkers' Protective association, which the attorney has organized to fight the night parking ban. Attorney O'Brien will carry Mr. Harris' case to the Illinois Supreme court, he said.

Although 835 summonses for parking violations were left on automobiles in the early hours yesterday, only 22 violators appeared at the "cafeteria" court to pay their fines of $2 each.

The rain apparently was the cause of an increase in the number of first warnings left on cars early yesterday by police. The number rose to 3,467, an increase of 800 over the number distributed Wednesday morning. Police laid the increase to the disinclination of motorists to drive their cars to garages and then walk home in the rain.

Plans for Agency to Care for Needy Children Told

Wilfred S. Reynolds, director of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies, last night told 200 members of the children's division of the council that a public organization to care for dependent and suffering children should be established in Cook county. Financial support of the thirty-two private agencies caring for children had fallen, Mr. Reynolds said, and their ability to serve has been much impaired.

UNCOVER DEAL COSTING COUNTY 700% DAMAGES

Commissioners Blame 2 Board Lawyers.

Members of the county board highway committee were angered yesterday by the discovery that two of their own lawyers had agreed to a transaction whereby the county will have to pay as damages to seven Bellwood property owners, for lowering the street level in front of their lots, more than seven times the full value of the land as fixed in the last county assessment. The damages to be paid to the seven total $159,266.

GEORGE A. MILLER

Not only did the two lawyers, Olin Mulcahy and John Bolton, agree to the amount of the damages, but they also entered stipulations before Circuit Judge Thomas J. Lynch waiving a jury trial and waiving the county's right to appeal.

Commissioner George A. Miller drew the details of the transaction from Mulcahy in the committee meeting. The commissioner termed the deal "damnable" and threatened to report the matter to the bar association.

All Lots Are Vacant.

The properties in question front on Harrison street in Bellwood. The property is valued for assessment purposes at $20 a front foot. It is classified as industrial property, and all of the lots are vacant. The seven owners obtained judgments against the county averaging $174 a front foot or a total of $159,266.

Harrison street was formerly a dead-end thoroughfare at this point, abutting on the tracks of the Indiana Harbor Belt Line railroad. The county agreed with the railroad to the construction of a viaduct, making Harrison street a through street. The street was lowered to a maximum depth of 9 feet under the railroad tracks, but it was cut down less than that, ranging up to less than a foot, in front of the properties concerned.

The owners sued for damages, charging they had lost egress to the street through having it lowered. Five of the seven properties extend through to another street, and in all cases, engineers said, it would be a simple task to cut the retaining walls and open slanting driveways into Harrison street.

Agree on Appraisers.

When the suits came before Judge Lynch, Mulcahy and Bolton, representing the county highway department, stipulated with James J. Trainor, lawyer for the property owners, that instead of submitting the matter to a jury, the damages would be fixed by three appraisers. Burr Wilcox, a former employé of the board of assessors and board of review, represented the county as appraiser. J. P. White represented the property owners, and these two picked H. M. Cornell, a subdivider, as the third.

On the appraisers' report, and with the consent of Mulcahy and Bolton, Judge Lynch entered judgments a week ago in the following amounts:

To John Binder, 57 front feet, $32,073.

To Anton Karre, 75 front feet, $4,875.

To C. J. Thompson, 75 front feet, $3,500.

To Joseph Mancine, 75 front feet, $3,000.

Commissioners Miller and William Busse, both representing the country towns, called the matter to the committee's attention. Mulcahy was summoned. He appeared abashed, and offered no answers to some of Commissioner Miller's questions. Then Commissioner Miller learned from Trainor that two days ago, a day before the court term ended, Trainor had entered a stipulation freeing the village of Bellwood, one of the co-defendants with the county, from liability for damages. The railroad, also a co-defendant, was protected by an agreement made with the county when the viaduct was built, the committee was told.

Court Loses Jurisdiction.

"This is one of the most damnable things I've ever seen," declared Commissioner Miller. "The term time passed yesterday. The court has lost jurisdiction, and this action was closed just one day before the court lost jurisdiction. It looks funny to me."

"I move we refer this to the proper tribunal," said Commissioner Busse.

"You mean to the bar association," said Commissioner Miller.

"We called you in here to avoid trouble," Commissioner Homer Byrd said to Trainor.

"There'll be no trouble," said Trainor.

"We'll guarantee you there'll be plenty of trouble," shouted Busse and Miller in chorus.

"While we are trying to take care of the taxpayers, the employés and the poor," continued Miller, "these attorneys take it upon themselves to allow a $160,000 judgment by stipulation. This is the highest—let us be charitable—incompetence."

"It's a betrayal of a sacred trust," said Mrs. Edward J. Fleming, a commissioner.

Woman and Boarder Shot to Death After Quarrel

Police found the bodies of Mrs. Anna Koyer, 39 years old, and Stanley Glowacki, 41 years old, last night in the home of Mrs. Koyer back of her delicatessen store at 832 North Marshfield avenue. Both had been shot in the head and a revolver was found in the hand of the dead man. Glowacki had been boarding at the home of Mrs. Koyer for some time, according to the woman's 17 year old son, Mitchell. They had been quarreling all day, Mitchell said.

PUSH DEMOCRAT RELIEF PLAN AS MILLS PROTESTS

Caucus Promises Garner United Support.

Not only are new construction projects appropriated for, but in several instances additional sums are provided to increase the size and scope of buildings now under construction. About 200 waterway improvement projects are listed.

Gives Hoover Authority.

All told, the bill carries one billion for public works, a billion dollar increase in the capitalization of the Reconstruction Finance corporation to supply loans for nonfederal construction enterprises which states, counties, municipalities, and individuals are unable to finance at this time without government help, and one hundred million dollars for the relief of the destitute.

In disbursing the hundred million President Hoover would have authority to give it out as gifts or loans of money, employing such agencies as he deems fit, whether federal, state, or local.

The Garner bill, as now written would impose a tax of one-quarter of a cent a gallon on the sale of gasoline by producers or importers.

Must Balance Budget.

Secretary Mills defended the President's proposal for an increase in the capitalization of the Reconstruction Finance corporation which would make possible the loaning of federal funds to nonfederal projects of a self-liquidating nature. He asserted that while public projects were a direct charge against the federal treasury which must be represented in next year's budget, the funds spent for loans to nonfederal projects would be listed as loans and would not affect next year's budget.

"Gov. Smith has shown such a breadth of view and courage in his recent public statements and brings such valuable support by his outspoken declaration in favor of the rest of the President's program," Mr. Mills said, "that I dislike to find myself in disagreement with him on the question of new public works expenditures. But this phase of the program upon which we differ is so vitally important that I feel obliged to call attention to it in the hope that if he will but study the problem anew with the intelligent detachment of which he is capable and the nonpartisan spirit which he has shown, Gov. Smith may be willing to reconsider his position.

"As I view it the public works program which he suggests, financed from the federal treasury, would destroy what the President, supported by the congressional leaders of both parties has insisted on as the one indispensable foundation for recovery, a balanced budget and an unimpaired national credit.

Public Works Mean Borrow.

"Public works mean public borrowing, an unbalanced budget, and a shock to public confidence, for the country has relied on the definite assurance of the administration and of the congressional leaders that the budget would be balanced.

"The only wise and sound course to pursue is to balance the budget and put an end to borrowing.

"The greatest field for the revival of employment is in private industry, and it is that employment that must be revived.

"Gov. Smith says business cannot get under way on its own initiative. I believe he is wrong. Business can and will get under way.

"At best, a public works program can put comparatively few of these unemployed to work during the course of the next twelve months.

"The pending 132 million dollar road bill would furnish work to but 35,000 men directly. We spend $30,000,000 on flood control on the lower Mississippi and give work to 5,000 men. The President, after a careful survey of the situation, has estimated that only 100 million dollars additional can usefully be spent by the federal government during the next twelve months over and above the 575 millions provided for in the budget for public works.

ASSAULT CHARGE BRINGS WARRANT FOR POLICEMAN

Policeman Edwin E. Eichman of the accident prevention bureau was charged with assault with a deadly weapon yesterday after Michael Zon, 20 years old, 2605 West 23d street, had testified before Judge J. William Brooks of the Boys' court that the policeman struck him on the head with a gun.

Judge Brooks issued the warrant at the request of Attorney Benjamin Feldman, representing Zon, after charges of speeding and disorderly conduct against Zon and a companion, John Babiarz, 21 years old, 2013 West 17th street, had been dismissed.

The young men were arrested Monday afternoon and held on open charges until Wednesday morning, when Judge Brooks released them on their own recognizance. Policeman Eichman testified they drove through red lights and in a reckless manner from 22d and Halsted streets to Paulina and 15th streets, where a flat tire stopped them.

Zon said Eichman grabbed him by the throat and struck him with the gun.

Youth Is Drowned in Lake in Forest Preserve

Charles Horner, 18 years old, 23 Brown road, South Chicago Heights, was drowned yesterday while he was swimming in the Sauk Trail lake in the forest preserve southwest of Chicago Heights. His body was recovered later. The body of Alfred Witting, 17 years old, 5519 Kenwood avenue, was found in the lake yesterday off 64th street, clad in a bathing suit.

ALL JERSEY CITY'S EMPLOYES TO HAVE PAY CUT ON JUNE 1

New York, May 26.—[Special.]—In an economy measure intended to save Jersey City taxpayers between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 annually, all city employés, including Mayor Hague, school teachers, firemen and policemen, will have their salaries reduced beginning June 1, Mayor Frank Hague announced today.

By a vote of the city commission, those employés receiving more than $4,000 a year will receive a reduction of 20 per cent and those getting less than that sum will have 10 per cent pay cuts.

News of the Jersey City wage cuts prompted Mayor Jerome T. Congleton of Newark to predict similar action in his city.

RESEARCH REVEALS ALL-BRAN RICH IN HEALTH-ELEMENTS
Helps Correct Constipation with "Bulk" and Vitamin B; Also Has Iron.
Recent scientific research shows that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains two things needed to overcome temporary and recurring constipation. It has "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone up the intestinal tract.
These two important food-elements promote regular habits, and help do away wih the headaches, loss of appetite and energy, so often the result of constipation.
The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is mild in action—much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable.
Isn't this pleasant "cereal way" far more healthful than using pills and drugs—so often habit-forming?
Just eat two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's daily—enough for most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.
Besides, ALL-BRAN brings your body twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.
Equally tasty as a cereal with milk or cream, or used in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

CIRCULATE U. S. BONDS AS 'CHEAP MONEY'—GLASS

Presents a Substitute for Goldsborough Bill.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 26.—[Special.]—The latest response to the demand for cheap money as a means of starting commodity prices upward again is a proposal by Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] to inflate the currency by temporarily conferring upon an issue of government bonds the circulation privilege.

CARTER GLASS.

Senator Glass would give to this issue of bonds the same status enjoyed by the securities with which the construction of the Panama canal was financed, known as the 2 per cent consols of 1930. National banks for a limited period would have the privilege of depositing such bonds with the treasury and obtaining currency equal to 95 per cent of the value of such bonds.

Proposes Plan as Substitute.

The Virginian, who is the leading authority on finance and currency in congress, made his proposal to the banking and currency committee during a discussion of the Goldsborough bill. Senator Glass assailed the program provided in the Goldsborough bill as "futile and ineffective." He proposed his scheme as a "feasible substitute," but told the committee he was not enthusiastic about it.

Senator Glass first proposed that the committee pigeonhole the Goldsborough bill, but abandoned this proposal when it appeared that a majority of the committee favored the measure passed by the house. He then outlined his substitute and the committee decided to defer all action until next week.

The bill, sponsored by Representative Goldsborough [Dem., Md.] and approved overwhelmingly by the house, would direct the federal reserve board to use its facilities, chiefly its open market operations, in the purchasing of government securities for new currency as the board has been doing for some six or seven weeks to stabilize the wholesale commodity price level at the 1926 average.

Denounces Goldsborough Bill.

Senator Glass contended that the purpose of the Goldsborough bill was impossible of realization and that even if it were feasible he was unwilling to give any seven members of the federal reserve board the power proposed in the plan. He denounced the Goldsborough bill to the banking and currency committee, adding that the present government security buying program of the federal reserve board was "indirect and futile," if not really dangerous.

"Even if the Goldsborough bill could be made more effective I would be more bitterly opposed to it than I am now because I am not willing to charge any seven men that God created with the power proposed in this bill," Senator Glass said.

The Virginian pointed out that currency inflation always has the effect of increasing the cost of living for the great masses without compensating returns since there are many more consumers than producers.

Would Diffuse Inflation.

"If inflation of credit and currency," he continued, "is the real measure for the existing situation I suggest that it would be infinitely better to authorize a plan of 'diffusive' inflation by designating some series of outstanding United States bonds for the same circulation privilege which Panama 2s now have. This would enable national banks throughout the country for such restricted period of time as might be determined to increase the volume of bank notes in order to meet the requirements of legitimate business.

"The plan suggested purely to tide over the existing emergency would enable every national bank to utilize its holdings of United States bonds for such controlled inflationary purposes as current business would justify and it would put all national banks in all sections of the country upon equal terms in the matter of expansion."

This is not the first time in this session of congress this proposal has been advanced. At the outset of the agitation last December for currency inflation Senator Walsh [Dem., Mass.] wrote to Andrew W. Mellon, then secretary of the treasury, asking why the treasury did not coöperate in the issuance of more bonds with the circulation privilege so that the national banks could expand their outstanding bank notes.

Prior to writing to Mr. Mellon, Senator Walsh introduced a bill providing for a slightly different form of bond secured currency but of a temporary character. Under this bill any holder of government bonds could deposit them with the secretary of the treasury and obtain in paper currency 90 per cent of the face value of the security.

The senate banking and currency committee pigeonholed the bill.

MAC DONALD HAS PHONE TALK WITH OFFICIALS IN U. S.

LOSSIEMOUTH, Scotland, May 26.—(AP)—It was learned authoritatively tonight that Prime Minister MacDonald had a long telephone conversation with one or more high American officials in Washington, D. C., last night.

The nature of the conversation or precisely with whom the prime minister talked was undisclosed, but it was understood that the topic was world economic conditions.

Also Denies Supporting Another Woman.

His gray hair awry, his face red, and his voice hoarse, Stephen A. Malato, assistant corporation counsel, occupied the witness stand in Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude's court for 90 minutes yesterday while he denied the charges of his wife, Dora, that he was supporting another woman while refusing to provide for his own daughter.

During the hearing Malato instructed the judge on court procedure, berated his wife, and groaned at the fates which caused him to be recommended for disbarment for alleged failure to earn his fees from the sanitary district during the "whoopee" régime. In the end he painted himself as an indulgent father.

Opposes Wife's Suit.

He appeared in court to oppose his wife's petition for temporary alimony pending the settlement of her suit for separate maintenance brought on grounds of desertion. Mrs. Malato charged that he failed to live up to an agreement to provide her with $225 a month for life. She asked an accounting for $185,000 which, she said, he failed to give her when they parted in 1926.

Mrs. Malato told the judge that her husband owned a farm near Benton Harbor, Mich., and that he was keeping a Mrs. Prignano there and supplying her with a maid.

Once, Mrs. Malato continued, she visited the farm and found Mrs. Prignano's clothes and those of her husband in the same dresser and scattered about the same bedroom. She said she had been allowed to enter the farmhouse by the maid while the others were absent.

"I don't even own that farm," Malato testified. "It was taken over by my bank to cover a $45,000 debt I incurred in the stock market. I don't live there. I just go there week-ends to look after the place. Mrs. Prignano is just a friend.

Charges It's a "Plot."

"Why, your honor, I haven't got a dime. I just have my $5,000 salary as a corporation counsel and that is cut 21 per cent. This is a plot to make me lose this job. It's on a par with other acts of my wife since our separation. She wants the mayor to kick me out.

"It was bad enough when I was brought into the disbarment proceedings. That broke my business and broke my heart. I worked hard for the district. Every dollar I ever got was honestly earned."

Here Mrs. Malato objected to her husband's "rambling oratory."

"Why, you can't object," Malato told his wife and then turned toward Judge Trude. "She can't object to anything I say."

Judge Trude waved to him to continue.

"Now about my daughter," Malato went on. "I kept her in schools and bought her clothes and even sent her to Lake Forest until the market crash. But I just can't give her more money. She is a big girl, 20 years old. I was a good father."

At that moment Judge Trude halted the rush of words. He ruled that Malato should pay his wife $15 a week until her suit is heard or until she can prove that her husband's income has increased.

Malato was one of 57 attorneys investigated by the Illinois Supreme court in connection with the sanitary district pay roll scandals.

AUTOS TO CARRY 175 DISABLED VETS ON MEMORIAL DAY ASKED

To enable 175 disabled world war veterans to participate in the Memorial day parade on Monday, Edward F. McGinnis of the American Legion asked last night for the use of 70 automobiles. The 175 veterans are in the Edward Hines, the North Chicago, and the Great Lakes hospitals, and will not be able to participate unless transportation is furnished them. He requested that any one willing to loan or drive his car get in touch with him at the Legion headquarters, 209 North La Salle street, or call Randolph 5663.

Mrs. John Cornwall, president of the Gold Star Mothers, and Mrs. Peter Lawrence, a member of the organization, made prepartions for Decoration day yesterday. Following a luncheon of the group at the Pearson hotel Mrs. Cornwall and Mrs. Lawrence sewed upon American flags, which will be placed at the graves of their sons who were killed in the world war.

The Chicago postoffice and all its stations will be closed on Memorial day, it was announced yesterday by Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder. West Parks Vote $100,000 Warrants for Use as Pay

The west park board yesterday voted to issue $100,000 worth of 1931 tax anticipation warrants with which to pay its employés. Robert J. Daly, secretary of the board, said that already salaries totaling $300,000 have been paid in warrants instead of cash. Five months' back salaries are owed them, he said.

SENATE VOTES TAXES TO RAISE 176 MILLIONS

9 Special Excise Levies Are Approved.

plained, such a sales tax and with such exemptions as the one the house had considered and finally turned down. And he added this proviso:

"Provided that those in this body who have opposed an increase in the income taxes are also willing to make concessions and vote for a substantial increase in the income taxes over and above those reported in the bill coming from the finance committee.

"If that is done then the people of the country will make a sacrifice in bearing an increased burden and the capitalists will bear a far greater burden than they bear now—for the sake of balancing the budget, and more important, for the sake of furnishing an extra supply of funds so that the federal government may meet the tremendous emergency now confronting the country."

Then he called on the finance committee to work out such a united program.

Senator Reed and Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.] protested that the income tax rates have been put high enough. In answer, Senator Pittman asserted that the 1923 rates, which might be selected as a compromise schedule fell heaviest not on the very wealthy but on the intermediate brackets."

Double Income Taxes on All.

"We have already more than doubled the income taxes on all classes," Senator Reed objected. "If we raise the rate still higher on the big incomes the yield will be negligible.

"Having more than doubled the income tax rates, is it unfair to ask consideration of a general sales tax which will exempt the poor man's food, clothing and medicines, the farmers' fertilizer and implements, and the workman's tools?"

With those exemptions, said Senator Reed, the average man would bear little of the burden of a sales tax.

"We would tax every one of the luxuries that the rich man has and the ordinary man has not," Senator Reed continued. "The human stomach is about the same size regardless of the wealth of its owner. A man can eat only a certain amount, and wear only a certain amount.

Rugs, Paintings Are Tax Free.

"But think——" and he turned to Senator Pittman, "of all the articles which go to decorate the house of the senator from Nevada and the rest of us—all the rugs, and the paintings, totally tax free under this bill.

"We are taxing the baby's lollypop and the school child's chewing gum under this bill, but the rich man may fill his house with treasures from around the globe and he gets them tax free."

Senator Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.] insisted, Senator Reed denied, that the sales tax would hit the man of moderate means the hardest. The Pennsylvania senator said that exorbitant tax rates would drive the rich to invest in tax free securities, and he cited the William Rockefeller estate as an example.

Revenue Loss from 3 Sources.

The loss in the revenue which the tax bill is expected to produce came from three sources.

The admissions tax was approved, but with the exemption lifted far above the original 10 cents proposed by the committee. That was expected to produce 110 millions.

By motion of Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.] the exemption was made 40 cents and the revenue tumbled down to 44 millions, or a loss of 66 millions.

Leased Wires Exempted.

The taxes on telephone, telegraph, radio, and cable messages were adopted, but with two amendments. Exemption was granted leased wires for noncommercial radio programs. And all press messages were exempted.

To have taxed press dispatches would have been against public policy as tending toward a tax on the freedom of the press, said Senator John H. Bankhead [Dem., Ala.]. The committee raised no objection, and the press exemption was adopted.

Those two amendments took about 2 millions from the 24 millions the tax on messages is supposed to produce.

Chewing Gum Tax Lowered.

Instead of the original import tax on rubber the tax on tires and tubes was agreed to with a loss of 20 millions. The chewing gum tax was lowered to 2 per cent with a loss of 1 million.

Added to the 18 millions lost by lowering the rates on automobiles and trucks the losses totaled 105 millions.

To make up for them, the following taxes originally carried by the house bill but stricken out by the finance committee were restored:

Cosmetics, jewelry, sporting goods, and cameras, firearms, mechanical refrigerators, matches, candy, soft drinks, and motor boats and yachts. But these totaled only 57 millions and the loss to date was 48 millions with the bill carrying only 650 million 500 thousand dollars, instead of the 698 million 500 thousand as originally estimated by the committee.

Tax on Capital Stock Issues.

The tax on bond issues and capital stock issues, calculated to raise 3 millions, and the tax on real estate conveyances, expected to produce 10 millions, were both approved.

The committee's recommendation that there be no increase in the tax on futures transactions on commodities exchanges was agreed to.

OCEAN FLYERS CLASH IN ROME ON FREEDOM OF AIR

Demand Ports Left Open to Atlantic Pilots.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, May 26.—Fifty-three ocean flyers duelled sharply on the question of "freedom of the air" just before the adjournment of their first international convention at dawn today. The debate recalled earlier clashes among representatives of the world's nations over "freedom of the seas." The airmen kept themselves awake by drinking coffee during the all night discussion.

GEN. ITALO BALBO. [Acme Photo.]

The protagonists in the duel were the Germans and Italians on one side and the French and Spanish on the other. Gen. Italo Balbo, Italian minister of aviation, started the fireworks by introducing a resolution that "all ports of call for transoceanic air lines should be free to all countries and not subject to special exclusive concessions to any one country." The German flyer, Wolfgang von Gronau, was associated with Gen. Balbo in presenting the resolution.

As the resolution appeared to be directed against special French concessions at the Azores the French delegates, joined by the Spanish, sought to destroy the resolution on the grounds that it raised political matters on which the convention was incompetent to pass.

After half an hour of bitter discussion, the resolution was passed with the French and Spanish abstaining from voting.

For the Americans, Harold Gatty, round the world flyer, supported the motion, saying it was applicable not only to the Azores but also to Greenland, where, he said, one American aviation company had a concession sewed up which would tend to exclude unfairly other aviation companies.

The conference's main achievement was considered to be the recommendations proposed by the commission named to report on north Atlantic air routes, the president of which was the American, Capt. Holden Richardson. This commission recommended that international aviation between Europe and America should concentrate on a northern route—that is, over Iceland and Greenland, excluding as unfeasible for the moment the middle route from Ireland to Newfoundland and the southern route over the Azores and Bermuda.

Point to Mail Service.

The recommendations further emphasized the importance to be given the perfection of radio and meteorological services and advised that attention be devoted exclusively to the transportation of mail rather than passengers. The committee recommended that the type of planes and motors be left to the individual pilots.

The committee on the south Atlantic routes recommended two routes between Europe and South America, one from Spain over the Canary islands to Natal, Brazil, and the other from the coast of Africa directly across to Brazil.

Development of this route between Europe and South America was recommended as much easier than the north Atlantic route because of more favorable weather conditions.

Regular Atlantic Plane Service.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, May 26.—A regular trans-Atlantic airplane service will be started by the Deutsche Lufthansa at the end of this year across the South Atlantic, between British Gambia, Africa, and Natal, Brazil. A 6,000 ton steamship will be stationed in mid-Atlantic this fall to serve as a refueling station.

The route from Germany, via Marseilles, Barcelona, Cadiz, and the Canary islands, to Gambia has been tested by German planes. Mails will be transferred at Natal for Argentina. No passengers will be carried at first. There will be an all-year and night and day service.

Simpson also asks $10,000 damages for alleged humiliation and previous interference.

2 KILLED, 20 HURT AS POLICE FIGHT GERMAN JOBLESS

Fire on Each Other in Hamburg Food Riot.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 26.—A policeman and a communist were killed and 20 person were injured at Hamburg today when police tried to prevent jobless men from plundering food shops. The police used their pistols and the Reds returned the fire.

In eight separate sections of Berlin, in Duesseldorf, Dortmund and Altona, Hitlerites and communists rioted today. The chief weapons were knives and revolvers. Scores were injured.

Today's disturbances followed the bloody disorders in the Prussian diet yesterday when Hitlerites and communists fought and wrecked the assembly room.

Demand Bruening's Dismissal.

Junkers of Prussia have joined forces with the pro-Hitler clique of generals in the reichswehr in trying to induce President Paul von Hindenburg to dismiss Chancellor Bruening and enable them to establish a Fascist régime. The president today received a delegation of Junkers at his estate in Neudeck, East Prussia, but refused to take any action. Chancellor Bruening, however, was summoned to confer with von Hindenburg upon the latter's return to Berlin Sunday.

This information was conveyed to Bruening this morning by Dr. Otto Meissner, Von Hindenburg's secretary of state, who returned from Neudeck, where he reported to the president the details of Bruening's decrees.

Von Hindenburg objected to several points of the government's program. The Junkers convinced him the cabinet's plan of confiscating estates which are indebted to the government, "is a new step toward bolshevism." The government had planned to turn the estates over to unemployed homesteaders. Von Hindenburg insists this project must be altered and that further protection must be extended to Junker landowners.

Objects to Cutting Pensions.

The president also objects to reducing the pensions of crippled veterans, orphans and widows of soldiers. They now receive a maximum of $9 a month. The cabinet is expected to alter the emergency decrees and new taxes to comply with von Hindenburg's wishes tomorrow. Bruening and his friends are confident that the chancellor will succeed in counteracting the influence of Hitler's friends.

SELL POPPIES AGAIN TODAY, BECAUSE OF RAIN

Because of a rain clause in the city ordinance that provides for the sale of poppies the following day if it rains before 9 a. m. on the scheduled poppy day, the poppy sale for veterans' aid will be held again today. This was announced by R. P. O'Reilly, president of the Veterans' Poppy Day association, which sponsors the poppy sale for the benefit of needy service men and their families of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, United Spanish War Veterans, the G. A. R., and the American Legion. The rain yesterday hampered the selling of the poppies.

CAPITAL POLICE UNEASY OVER BONUS ARMY

Urge Congress to Decide Issue, Avert Trouble.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 26.—[Special.]—Fear that disorders may follow in the wake of the arrival of the thousands of veterans now journeying to the national capital to speed immediate payment of the bonus led local police today to appeal to the White House and congress for quick settlement of the bonus issue.

"Unless the bonus question is settled definitely one way or the other," Supt. of Police Pelham D. Glassford said today, "the next few weeks will find large contingents of veterans arriving in the capital. I do not believe they will come intending to cause disorder, but trouble may develop if they remain a long time and sufficient food is not available. Many things result from empty stomachs."

At the White House Glassford talked with Walter Newton, political secretary for the President. He conferred with Senator James Watson [Rep., Ind.], majority leader.

"If congress would either pass the bonus legislation right away, or else make it known that it will not be passed at this session, the situation would be greatly relieved," Mr. Glassford said. "There would be no need then for these veterans to come to the capital to urge action.

Marchers at Seymour, Ind.

Seymour, Ind., May 26.—(AP)—Tired and sore after a jolting ride of nearly 12 hours through southern Indiana, the "on-to-Washington" bonus marchers from the far west bunked in the city park here tonight hoping tomorrow would see them well into Ohio.

It was the third overnight stop in Indiana for the world war veterans who are hitch hiking from Portland, Ore., to Washington, D. C., to demand cash payment of their adjusted service certificates.

500 CHICAGOANS PLAN TRIP.

Leslie R. Hurt, secretary of the Workers' Ex-Service Men's league, 3733 Hirsch boulevard, said yesterday that about 500 Chicago veterans would leave Tuesday for a box car trip to Washington to boost immediate payment of the bonus. They are to assemble at East 75th street and Cottage Grove avenue at 10 a. m., he said.

Another bonus march was halted by the B. & O. railway yesterday when 30 veterans were put off a box car in the B. & O. yards at East Chicago. The hitch hikers had reached Chicago from Utah on Union Pacific and Northern Pacific freight trains and they boarded a B. & O. freight at Chicago. After being routed from the box car they took possession of an abandoned warehouse and said they would not leave until they could get another freight out bound for Washington.

U. OF ILLINOIS BRIGADE HOLDS FINAL PARADE; MEDALS PRESENTED

Champaign, Ill., May 26.—[Special.]—Three thousand cadets of the University of Illinois R. O. T. C. brigade today passed in review before Henry L. Stevens, national commander of the American Legion, who was the reviewing officer during the annual military day exercises. With him on the reviewing stand were Col. A. V. P. Anderson, cavalry R. O. T. C. officer of the Sixth Corps area, headquarters Chicago; Col. Charles W. Weeks, commandant of the University brigade, and Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase, president of the University of Illinois.

Elliott Durand, 1104 East 46th street, Chicago, was installed as student colonel for next year, succeeding A. C. Bass, Pleasant Hill, Ill. The Cook county chapter of the reserve officers' association presented a saber to Col. Durand and the Daughters of the American Revolution presented another to Col. Bass.

Over 150 reserve officers' commissions were presented by Col. Anderson. In addition, many awards were made to cadets during the exercises for outstanding military achievements during the last year.

PASCHEN'S PAY TO SCORES MORE SHOWN AT TRIAL

Scores of men who worked for Chris Paschen in his building cleaning and tuckpointing business in 1927 and 1928 continued to file to and from the witness stand in Federal Judge Barnes' court yesterday, where the trial of the former building commissioner for income tax evasion is nearing the end of its fourth week. The judge announced that sessions of the trial would be held Monday, Memorial day.

The employés are showing how much wages they received during the years in question to bolster the defense contention that the large sums shown in Paschen's bank accounts were balanced by large expenditures. He is accused of evading $114,000 tax payments and the government alleges that he had an income of more than $1,200,000 in those years.

Judge Barnes ruled that the employés could testify to the money they received only if they had independent recollections of the payments. Those who said they had were put under oath to repeat the sums to the jury. Defense Attorney Cassius Poust said he had fifteen more witnesses to be called today.

Policeman Assigned to Beat in Front of Horner Home

At the request of Probate Judge Horner, Police Commissioner Allman yesterday ordered a patrolman especially assigned to a post in front of the judge's home at 1226 Madison Park. Judge Horner explained that he and his neighbors were in fear of holdups when returning home late in the evening because of the lack of lighting in the private park on which their homes face.

ARMY TO LAUNCH ATTACK AT DAWN IN MIMIC WAR

Air Bombardment Night Battle Feature.

BY HUGH SEXTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Camp Custer, Mich., May 26.—[Special.]—The last phase of the command post-war being fought by 400 regular army, National Guard and reserve officers on the terrain west of Camp Custer began tonight. All arms and branches of the theoretical Sixth army, commanded by Brig. Gen. Frank C. Bolles of Fort Sheridan rushed preparations for a concentrated attack that is to be launched at dawn tomorrow.

At noon, when the attack has reached its height, the war will be over. Maps, orders and messages will be forgotten. The 400 weary officers will be relieved after four days and nights of almost continuous duty to sleep with the peace of mind of victors. During those four days their training changed from that of a force on the defensive, attempting to stop a superior invading force, to that of a fresh, reinforced offensive army attacking a worn out foe.

At noon yesterday the training changed from defensive to offensive and messages and orders in preparation for the attack at dawn tomorrow began to flow through the command posts of the divisions, corps and the Sixth army.

Bombardment at Night.

Tonight at 11 o'clock a division of theoretical bombardment aviation launched an attack from the air simultaneously on railroad yards and oil refineries in the vicinity of Clearing, East Chicago and Whiting, Ind. The 299 heavy bombardment planes swept in from the lake to avoid anti-aircraft batteries and dropped 300 tons of bombs. The two wings also bombed oil refineries, railroad nerve centers and communications centers in the Gary-Hobart-Porter-Chesterton area. Heavy damage was reported to Brig. Gen. Bolles. The raid is expected to delay supplies needed by the enemy until after the attack at dawn has been launched.

Parker Praises Officers.

Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the sixth corps area, who is directing the command post-maneuver, has highly complimented the work of the 400 regular army, National Guard and reserve officers, all of whom reside in Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan. He pointed out that alm st without exception they are repeating problems of tactics and strategy with which they became acquainted in the war.

Maj. Gen. Parker will conduct a critique attended by all the officers at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, when the actions of the command post-maneuver will be discussed. The theoretical army then will be disbanded and the 400 officers will return home.

RED ARMY NEARS CAPITAL OF CHINA; CITIES CAPTURED

Nanking Claims It Has Driven Back Foes.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, May 27.—[Friday.]—The Chinese government last night announced that Chinese communist forces which menaced the main railway line about 100 miles north of Nanking near Pengpu, Anhwei province, have been driven back.

On the other hand, reports from foreign sources, especially from missionaries, said that practically all southern and western Anhwei is under the control of the reds and that they are within striking distance of the Yangtze river valley and the national capital.

The railway ministry has announced that first class passenger trains, operating north of Nanking in Anhwei province, are accompanied by armored trains as a result of reports reaching Nanking yesterday that two government military divisions had been disarmed by red troops entering Anhwei from Hupeh.

Pillage and Burn Shops.

The reds, it was reported, are commanded by Gen. Hsu Sien-chien and Gen. Kwang Chih-wan. Large numbers of Chinese refugees are arriving along the railway near Pengpu. They said the reds captured the towns of Chengyangkwan and Hwokiau and pillaged and burned many shops. Merchants and women are being held for ransom, they added.

This red force is reported moving eastward, menacing the railway between the stations of Mingkwang and Kwantien, 100 miles north of Nanking. Another red army is besieging the town of Luchow a short distance north of the important river port of Anking. In the event Luchow falls, Anking, it is expected, will be captured next.

American missionary headquarters at Shanghai are extremely worried over the situation due to the presence of a large number of American missionaries in the interior of Anhwei, especially at Anking. It is thought here that the communist drive in Anhwei is in accordance with the general red plan to prevent the Nanking government from sending troops to Fukien province which is almost entirely in the hands of communists with the exception of the coastal cities, Amoy and Foochow. Both cities are threatened.

The government has ordered the 19th route army to Fukien to fight the reds, but organizations both at Shanghai and Nanking are agitating against this withdrawal. They claim that an army is necessary to garrison the railway between Nanking and Shanghai.

Mikado Approves Cabinet.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, May 26.—Admiral Makoto Saito presented his newly formed coalition cabinet to Emperor Hirohito this afternoon and the members of the government were officially installed. The navy department today placed the c tiser Tokiwa, now at Shanghai, at the service of the army to bring home to Japan the body of Gen. Yoshinori Shirakawa, who died there today as the result of wounds from a bomb.

FRIENDS REGRET WILKERSON CAN'T FACE SENATORS

Friends of Federal Judge Wilkerson expressed disappointment yesterday over the judge's inability to appear before a senate subcommittee considering his elevation to the Circuit Court of Appeals because of the important telephone rate suit he is now hearing.

It was feared by these friends, and others who wish to see the judge's work against hoodlums rewarded, that there may not be sufficient time remaining before congress adjourns to permit him to appear before the committee and this might affect his eventual confirmation if the political complexion of congress changes in the fall.

Washington dispatches spoke of the possibility that President Hoover could give Judge Wilkerson a recess appointment as soon as congress adjourns if it has not completed consideration of his promotion. Should this occur, it was regarded as doubtful by some of his friends if the judge would accept the recess post, inasmuch as it would involve his resigning from the district bench and assuming a place on the circut bench under circumstances dependent upon confirmation when congress next met.

Going farther, the conjectures were that delay in the Wilkerson case may also affect the proposed elevation of United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson to the District bench, where an additional judgeship created by congress has not been filled. If a Democratic president and congress are in control in Washington next year this would affect the chances of confirmation of both men, some believe.

The failure to place Mr. Johnson upon the bench would hold up for the present, Senator Otis F. Glenn's plans to recommend Assistant United States Attorney Dwight H. Green for the United States attorneyship.

MANIAC WIELDS KNIFE ON GROUP OF GIRLS; 1 DEAD

Shouts to Policeman: "Have to Kill Millions!"

Cleveland, O., May 26.—[Special.]—A knife wielding maniac killed one girl and slashed two others here today when he ran wild among a group of children on their way to school.

The victims were Elaine Macken, 8, dead; Rose Marie Parker, 8, severely slashed; Lena de San, 12, cut across the abdomen and throat.

The madman, Jake Gordon, 38, was captured a few minutes later by a traffic policeman near the scene of the attack. Dropping at the feet of Patrolman Charles Mitschele, who came running toward him, the killer brandished a knife with a four inch blade and cried:

"Shoot me. Kill me. I killed two of them. But I haven't killed enough. I have to kill more—lot more. I have to kill millions."

Scores of men, women and school children stood frozen with horror at the attack, then the throng of more than 100 sought to lynch the killer, but Mitschele kept the crowd back until reinforcements arrived.

No Word of Warning.

The children were on their way to school when they encountered Gordon, who had just emerged from a barber shop. Giving no warning of his intentions, Gordon, as he reached the children, suddenly pulled his knife from his pocket and started chasing the Macken girl. He caught her, lifted her from the sidewalk in one hand and drove the knife into her repeatedly.

As he dropped her to the sidewalk the screaming children ran in all directions. Next he caught the Parker girl. The knife slashed several times and he dropped the second child.

Just then Lena de San came out of her house nearby. The girl's mother, Mrs. Mary de San, heard the child's screams and came out as Gordon chased the girl, but his knife slashed Lena across the abdomen and throat.

The excitement of trying to get the wounded children to hospitals probably saved Gordon from being lynched, but once the girls had been placed in automobiles the crowd surged toward the maniac with yells of "Lynch him" as he was met by the policeman. Mitschele was able to keep the crowd back until other officers arrived.

Treated for Paresis.

Questioned in the county jail, Gordon muttered: "I killed them so they wouldn't kill others when they grow up. I'll be forced to kill a million more. For a year and a half God has been after me to start."

It developed that Gordon was under treatment in one hospital here for paresis for six weeks early in 1930 and another doctor had been treating him for extreme nervousness. He was a carpenter by trade.

BOMB SECOND CLEANING SHOP WITHIN WEEK

Damage estimated at several hundred dollars was caused early today by the explosion of a bomb in a branch store of the Checker Cleaners, Inc., at 3348 West Madison street. The bomb had been tossed through the plate glass window in front, supposedly by a man who escaped in an automobile.

Policeman Robert E. Sullivan, passing the shop, stopped to investigate the broken window. The blast went off as he was approaching the place and he was showered with fragments of glass. His hurts were not serious.

The bombing was the second directed against the same concern this week. Late Monday damage of $250 was caused by an explosion in the Checker shop at 2706 West Division street. Officials said they knew of no reason for the bombing, but the police advanced the theory that racketeers who objected to prices charged by the Checker organization were responsible.

GOLD AND THE DEBTS.

The treasury announces the signing of special refunding agreements with sixteen nations to cover the deferred debt payments suspended by the moratorium of last year. The amount, about $250,000,000, is to be spread over ten years. This procedure puts in written obligation the verbal agreements made when the United States granted the year of grace. Meanwhile the resumption of regular payments after the year of grace remains in doubt. Neville Chamberlain, the British chancellor of the exchequer, has confided privately, it is learned, to members of parliament that the British payment to the United States is not provided for in a supplementary budget. Provision for it was conspicuously missing from the regular budget.

The debtors ostensibly are waiting for the results of the pending debt conference at Lausanne. Apparently that is expected to modify the debt agreements and the modification aimed at is cancellation. If that objective cannot quite be reached a continued suspension of payments is in mind.

It is noted as one factor in the withdrawal of gold from the United States, $625,000,000 within the last eight months, that the debtor nations were relieved of the need of paying $250,000,000 within that time. The check which the payment of the debt can put upon the drain of American gold was missing. The moratorium so urgently required for the salvation of Europe has aided manipulation against the American dollar.

The uncertain temper of congress is advanced as a reason for the doubt of the dollar. Its acts may impair the credit foundation, pyramid the national debt, knock down the value of national securities and depreciate the currency. These are possibilities and they now influence the removal of gold to other countries. Such a situation not only frightens gold but it is exposed to manipulation by aliens who seek their advantage in the discomfiture of another land.

While congress is in session doubt as to its possible action will be an element in economic disturbance, but congress already has taken its stand as to further remission of debt payments to the United States. The suspension of 1931 was to be the last. There has been much criticism of this abrupt declaration which was attached to the acceptance of the moratorium agreement, but, in view of what may be expected of the approaching conference and in view of the gold movements, the warning was timely.

Whatever release the debtors anticipate, their optimism must survive the admonition which congress intended to be final. The statement was not one of opinion, but came from the final American authority in such matters. Nothing has happened since the declaration was made which would impair its wisdom. Mr. Neville Chamberlain would be well advised to prepare a supplementary budget. The raid on American gold does not incline congress to yield to the cancellationists and tear up the notes held by the American government. The United States could not prevent repudiation, but European credit will have to take the consequences of that.

THE REAL LIQUOR SCANDAL.

United States District Judge Carpenter ruled that a federal agent who testified to taking nine drinks of intoxicating liquor was not to be believed under oath. Nine shots of whisky will upset the powers of observation and judgment of most men, the judge intimated.

"I don't care how guilty the defendant may be," said the judge. "The preponderance of evidence is not with the government. The agents' testimony goes like a rubber stamp."

In taking that position Judge Carpenter was upholding the best traditions of Anglo-American law. A lawless citizenship may be a menace to the nation, but a lawless government is a far greater menace. In the long run and in the short run the American people will suffer less from bootleggers than they will from a government which hires inebriates, blackguards or perjurers as its enforcement officers and vouches for their testimony.

Judge Carpenter's courageous stand is in contrast to that taken by federal judges of less learning and weaker character who have permitted citizens to be sent to the penitentiary on the unsupported testimony of prohibition informers. Any roustabout, any jail bird, can tell his story in the courts of these judges and win credence. It is difficult to say whether the judges are more to be censured than the prosecutors who put such witnesses forward. If the violation of the Volstead law is an offense it is infinitely less an offense against standards of decency and justice than is being committed by some United States government officials in their conduct of liquor cases.

No one regards a beer runner as a model of behavior for honest men to follow, but the standards of the United States department of justice are supposed to be above criticism. Unfortunately, the fact does not accord with the theory. A government which vouches for the reputability of such witnesses as have been used in numerous recent liquor cases places itself beneath the contempt of justice-loving men. The time seems to have come to announce the principle that the unsupported testimony of such witnesses is entirely worthless. Judge Carpenter's ruling is the more welcome as it moves in the direction of such a pronouncement.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE IN NEW YORK.

Mayor Walker's appearance before the Hofstadter committee for examination by Samuel Seabury revealed how the Hon. James had turned a flat nothing into $246,606. Paul Block, a publisher with an interest in a company selling material to contractors building city subways, put Mr. Walker on the books of the Baruch & Co. brokerage firm and every few weeks the trading fund yielded $25,000, which the mayor carried home to put in a safe where it was available as loose change or pocket money. Mr. Walker was not required to put up a dime, and the trading was always successful.

The mayor wise cracked his way through the examination to the enjoyment of a noisy crowd of partisans. The simple explanation of it all seems to be that every day is Christmas in Manhattan. The roosters may lay eggs in Kansas, but for benevolent miracles in a large way the climate in New York has no equal. Santa Claus is abroad all the time, and any one who has a tin box or a wall safe can fill it. The big city has so much of the world's money that everybody's careless about it. Mr. Walker was standing right under the Christmas tree when a few trinkets fell off.

THE WALL STREET INQUIRY.

The senate's inquiry into Wall street methods is not yet complete, but a number of points have been brought out upon which comment need not be deferred. The testimony of Mr. Edmund O'Brien was that he was both a partner in the stock exchange house of M. J. Meehan & Co. and a specialist in Radio stock. Mr. Meehan, or, perhaps more accurately, his wife, was a participant in the Radio pool which made a profit of five million dollars in a week. Mr. O'Brien as the specialist in Radio knew precisely what orders had been entered to buy the stock should the price fall or to sell it as the price rose. No one else possessed that information on the technical outlook for the market in Radio securities. He denied that the pool had been given access to his information or that the information could have been of much advantage to the pool had he shared it with his partners.

The senators didn't believe he was telling the truth, but whether he was or not is beside the point. He might have shared his information with his partner in the pool, the information might have been valuable, and it might have been used against the very people who were going to pay Mr. O'Brien a brokerage fee for his services in filling their contingent orders.

It may be impossible to prevent all the possible abuses in stock trading, but certainly the stock exchange should be able to improve matters considerably with respect to the specialists. It should never be possible for the specialist or his partners to be participants in a pool operation in the specialist's stock. Mr. O'Brien's testimony places him somewhat in the ambiguous position of an umpire whose partner has a bet on the game.

WHILE CONGRESS SITS.

Not the least of the important acts of congress will be its adjournment. No citizen can assume to know what conditions will be set up in front of him until he has been given the last word of the national legislature. Almost anything is possible while it is in session, and prudent calculation takes that into account. Congress at work is another speculative factor which must be considered for uncertain consequences in every plan. It is almost unescapable that enterprises will wait until this speculative factor can be dismissed.

If the United States government were a simple one, restrained by known rules, the uncertainty would not be so great, because the limitations of action would be known, but the United States has become an infinitely complicated government, with the range of its activities unpredictable. Where congress might go cannot be foreseen. The old limitations have been dropped. Old precedent does not furnish a guide, and the newer precedents are all on the side of misgivings and alarm.

With a new style congress in session business has no guaranty against revolutionary economic ideas and their incorporation in federal regulations. The uncertainty remains as long as congressional action is a possibility.

Editorial of the Day

NAME THEM.

[New York World-Telegram.]

The American Legion's national legislative committee sends out a bulletin which makes a serious charge. It says:

"Senators should realize that thousands of the form letters received daily on Capitol Hill are coming from factory and industrial workers whose employers have coerced them to demand government economy, including reduction in benefits for the disabled. Doubtless many of these letters are from veterans, but senators understand that many of these signers think a refusal to write would result in the loss of their jobs."

The bulletin does not name even one of these alleged coercing employers. Why? A general charge of this nature carries little weight unless it names names.

Moreover, senators on Capitol Hill know that some of the most competent and forceful protests against present extravagance and unfairness in veterans' relief are not coming from coerced employes.

Doctor veterans of the New York Academy of Medicine who this week denounced present relief plans as "scandalous" were certainly not forced to this action by fear of losing their jobs.

Neither were members of the national economy committee in whose name Capt. Archibald B. Roosevelt petitioned President Hoover and congress to cut $450,000,000 from the appropriations for veterans' relief.

When the Legion condemns "reduction in benefits for the disabled" it ignores the fact that there might be more money for the deserving who were actually disabled in war service if hundreds of millions of dollars did not go to the undeserving whose disabilities, if any, were not due to the war.

The American Legion has not been so badly treated by the American people, we think, that it is justified in pretending public demand for an overhauling of veterans' relief comes largely from workers coerced by selfish and callous employers whom it takes care not to name.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

NOT A CHANCE!

From near and far, here and yon, from the crowded city out to where the houses are few and far between and the dogs they bark at strangers, come demands on congress to fire a bunch of bureaucrats and reduce the high cost of running these more or less United States. But it looks hopeless. Now if only the Jefferson lads or the G. O. P. boys were sure they would lose the election next fall everything would be jake. If the Democrats felt that their ticket would be given the bum's rush next November they would start right in and trim down the jobholders with an ax. If the Republicans were going to win the Jefferson lads would cheerfully fix things so that to the victor would belong not only the spoils but that which was spoiled. And if the G. O. P. felt way down in its bones that the Democrats were certain to march to a triumphal victory in November, then they would at once emit a joyful yell about the necessity of government saving and lop off bureau employes like a farm hand splitting kindling for a quarter to buy a ticket to the circus.

But not so. Both the Republicans and the Democrats look happily forward to a glorious victory next fall.

It must be admitted that things are not breaking very well for the G. O. P. right now, but they hope to wiggle through. They always have, and why not this time? All they have to do is to wait for the psychological moment and then turn loose the spellbinders to remind the sovereign voters that the Republican party stands for Bunker Hill, Abraham Lincoln, the Ten Commandments, George Washington, two chickens in every pot, two cars in every garage, and the American flag. And on election day the rush of voters to cast the straight Republican ticket will be like an avalanche in the Alps. So why throw away a lot of perfectly good jobs when there are not enough to satisfy the boys as it is?

And the Democrats! They just simply know they're going to win next fall. They always win once in a lifetime, and this is yellow dog year. No matter whom they nominate, they can elect him. They know the Republicans expect them to make a bonehead play and they expect so themselves; they always do. But this year it won't make any difference. People won't vote so much this time for their candidate as against Hoover. That's their hope and rock rooted conviction. They're sure of bringing home the bacon. And they're picking out their jobs right now. And having been out in the cold for so many long, dreary, hungry years, they need a lot of jobs to take care of the faithful. And so how could they be expected to jump in down at Washington and trim down the good old plum trees that are just full of nice ripe jobs? What! the Democrats trim down the government bureaus just as they're about to get hold of 'em? Don't be silly!

Ah, love, be near
In the blinding mist;
Lips that have smiled,
Lips that have kissed,

Easily, easily

Cherish the spark;
It is only a moment

"DOES SEN. BINGHAM," asked Sen. Borah, "think that people will change their present beer for 2.75 per cent slop?" The gentleman from Idaho made a good point. Why talk about 2.75 per cent beer or 4 per cent beer when they could just as well make it 8 per cent, which we used to have in the good old days? But maybe the idea is to start with 2.75 per cent and work up to 8 per cent gradually. In that case, all right. Eight per cent right off the bat might scare a lot of people to death.

FOR AND AGAINST COCOA.

In yesterday's article we began a comparison of the beverage customarily used with meals, considering then the advantages and disadvantages of coffee, tea, and water. Today we take up chocolate, cocoa, milk, and buttermilk, but using tea, coffee, and water as portions of the standards of comparison. The writer has these in his mind as he writes, and he advises the reader to do the same as he reads.

The principal difference between chocolate and cocoa is that the former contains more fat, and therefore as a food has considerably more calories. The beverages considered yesterday are used for the water, and the drugs they contain. All of those considered today are foods as well as beverages.

Cocoa has a fair amount of carbohydrate, protein, minerals and fat. When mixed with cream and sugar, as is the custom, it contains considerably more calories than does the same quantity of milk, or, for that matter, few solid foods as served contain more food values per pound than does cocoa per pint. It has another advantage over milk. Its albumins are not in the combination called buffered, and therefore the gastric juice does not have to overcome so much opposition before it can make headway with digestion.

The drug in cocoa is theobromine. Chemically it corresponds to the caffein of coffee and the theine of tea. Those who drink cocoa and chocolate for a pickup get their kick out of the drug effects of theobromine, as well as out of the warmth of the beverage and the quick, sustaining action of sugar.

However, the scientists are pretty nearly all of the opinion that the harmful effects, or the kickback, of theobromine are less than those of the other two drugs. If one must take either, theobromine will have less of the bad effects as well as of the good.

Some persons find cocoa too heavy and rich. As a rule they are those who cannot handle fats or greases, particularly in the soups and beverages. Since chocolate contains more fat and is a heavier drink with more food values, some members of this group can drink cocoa but not chocolate.

The disadvantages of cocoa drinking are that it is a highly flavored beverage, and the rule is that beverages are most wholesome when they are flat. It contains theobromine, and it is sometimes eaten or drunk between meals. When it is used we must bear in mind that it is a food as well as a beverage.

Milk has been discussed so much that little is added here. It is a food rather more than a beverage and in it the elements are mixed so as to satisfy the needs of the human body better than does any other single food. It has the advantage of being nearly neutral in flavor. One disadvantage, from the standpoint of digestion, is the way the lime it contains holds the digestive juices away from the albumins. Because of this some users of milk prefer to drink it sour, using orange juice or other vegetable juices for the purpose, or even mixing it with acids from other sources.

Buttermilk is generally thought of as a beverage, even by those who think of sweet milk as a food. The fact is that it contains all the food values of sweet milk except those due to the cream, and it has the virtue of having the albumins unbuffered and more easily digested.

DOUBLE WORK FOR WATER.

REPLY.

No.
This is a deceiving world.

NOT DEFORMITY.

Mrs. K. writes: Is dimples in the cheeks a deformity?

REPLY.

There is considerable fashion in deformity. Certain features are called deformities by some persons, while others yearn for them. In the levels where I work and live dimples are not regarded as deformities.

LIVER NOT TO BLAME.

C. A. S. writes:

I have been troubled for some time with a white coating on my tongue, spotted with small red patches. I feel good and am not constipated. The condition results in unpleasant breath. Is it some form of liver trouble?

REPLY.

The condition is not significant of liver disease or any other serious trouble. You probably sleep with your mouth open and snore, and this is the reason for the symptoms mentioned.

Chew gum. Scrape your tongue with the dull back of a table knife. Train yourself to sleep on your side or face.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

NATIONAL CONVENTIONS

REPUBLICAN—1912.

Chicago, June 18.—Theodore Roosevelt, with his fighting blood up, made a historic address at the Auditorium theater, warning of the perils to the nation in the attempt of the bosses to nominate William Howard Taft for President by what the colonel claims are more than eighty fraudulent delegates given their places by the Republican national committee. It was a sermon on "Thou shalt not steal."

Chicago, June 19.—In the most spectacular contest witnessed in a Republican national convention within a generation President Taft and his followers secured control of the temporary organization in the Coliseum. At the end of six hours of fighting in which every step of the contest was bitterly fought, the Taft conservatives elected Senator Elihu Root of New York as temporary chairman by a vote of 558 for Root and 502 for Gov. Francis E. McGovern of Wisconsin, the candidate of the Progressives. Of the Root votes 80 were those of delegates Col. Roosevelt charges were fraudulently seated.

Chicago, June 23.—President William Howard Taft and Vice President James Schoolcraft Sherman were renominated for President and Vice President by the Republican national convention, as dominated by the Crane-Penrose-Barnes combination, on the first ballot. Taft was given 561 votes, 21 more than the necessary majority. Of the 451 Roosevelt delegates 344 refused to vote, on the advice of the colonel, who announced early in the day his decision to have nothing more to do with the convention, which he branded as fraudulent. The other 107 Roosevelt delegates voted, according to their primary instructions, for Col. Roosevelt. Senator Robert M. La Follette received 41 votes.

The determination of Col. Roosevelt not to participate in the convention was made known at 4 p. m. by Henry J. Allen of Kansas, who read a statement from the colonel in which he set forth that the convention had no claim to represent the voters of the Republican party, that the convention represented nothing but successful fraud in overriding the will of the rank and file, and urged the men elected as delegates for him to decline to vote on any matter coming before the convention.

Last night a new political party, dedicated, in the language of Col. Roosevelt, "to the service of all the people," was launched in Orchestra hall by the majority of the uncontested delegates in the convention.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 27, 1916.

PARIS.—An official statement publishes the fact that a Fokker [new high powered airplane] was brought down north of Vaux and two Avions were seriously damaged and forced to land near Etain after a battle between a French squadron and a group of German Avions. This is the bald official account of one of the sharpest aerial battles fought in which the American squadron gained further distinction. Lieut. William Thaw and Corporal Kiffin Rockwell were among the Americans whose squadron went over the German lines and soon found itself in the midst of a group of German machines. A general battle followed. Both Rockwell and Lieut. Thaw were wounded.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In a note to the British and French governments President Wilson calls on the allies to cease at once their interference with American mails, which is proving so costly to Americans and in many instances profitable to British interests. The note concludes after reciting illegal acts: "Only a radical change in the present British and French policy, restoring to the United States its full rights as a neutral power, will satisfy this government."

LONDON.—The Germans continued their pounding at Verdun and the German war statement says they were successful east of the Meuse, extending their positions to the west of Haudremont and crossing the Douaumont ravine. South of Fort Douaumont the French were driven back further. That Paris is in doubt regarding the situation at Dead Man hill is indicated by messages admitting the position is nearly encircled by the Germans.

VIENNA.—Austrian troops have stormed and captured the strongly fortified Italian positions at Chiesa, twenty-one miles northwest of Vicenza, after a three day battle, it was officially announced. The Austrian victory will force the Italian left wing in the Adige valley to fall back more than five miles upon the town of Ala.

CHICAGO.—Miss Katherine Keith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edson Keith, 936 Lake Shore drive, will be married June 1 to David Adler, architect. The nuptials are coincident with her advent in authorship. The first installment of her autobiography appears in the June Atlantic, and by courtesy of Ellery Sedgwick, editor of the Atlantic, THE TRIBUNE today presents extensive excerpts from Miss Keith's work in which gay, tragic, and hazy pictures of her girlhood are sketched and many society secrets are revealed.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

What style of architecture is represented by the Century of Progress buildings?

[This question will be repeated and answered in this space tomorrow.]

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION:

What is the importance of Ibsen?

ANSWER:

The Norwegian, Henrik Ibsen, more than any other writer, introduced realism into 19th century drama. His plays deal unsparingly with the social and psychological problems in modern society. Every important dramatist since Ibsen has been influenced both by his skill in constructing plays and by his outlook.

FROM A TAXI DRIVER.

Chicago, May 23.—Some time ago a well dressed lady hailed me at Walton place and Michigan boulevard. She told me to take her to a grocery store on Rush street. When I stopped in front of the store she asked me to wait for her. After waiting about 20 minutes she came out and asked me to go in the store and carry some boxes out for her. I went in and saw three large boxes, filled to the top with all kinds of groceries and breads, an equal amount of various kinds in each box. Right away I thought to myself, "This look like Christmas!" And sure enough! When we got to the lady's mansion on Cedar street, after asking me to bring the boxes in the house, she told me she had bought them for poor families.

This gave me such an impression that I could not get it out of my mind. Why don't more well to do people do the same as this lady? Instead of giving cash money, get in touch with some poor families, especially those who have children, or sick or old people, who cannot help themselves, and buy them a box of food every week if you can afford it. And here, this is the best part of it. Bring it to them yourself and watch the old or sick people's smiles and the children's happy eyes, and see for yourself how much happiness you are really giving these people, and I am sure that if you tried this you would get more satisfaction when you know that whatever you can afford to give to charity really does as much good as you wanted it to.

AXEL PETERSEN.

CRADLE PHONES.

Chicago, May 3.—During the last few days I have been reading articles in the paper concerning telephone rates and cradle phone rates in particular. Evidently the writers of these articles have been misinformed. The cradle phone was put into use at a time when people were prosperous and victims of fads and ultra modern equipment.

As far as the telephone company is concerned, the people at large can just as well have the desk type of telephone, without the extra charge. As far as the service is concerned, there is no difference between the two phones. The monthly charge made to the subscriber is not in payment of his telephone equipment, but for the service rendered him. If the people knew the additional cost of maintaining this cradle phone they would readily see that the extra monthly charge of 25 cents is justifiable.

When the people report their telephone out of order, if they had to pay the actual cost of the repair of any piece of telephone equipment, they would soon begin to realize where their added charge goes to. Moreover, this telephone equipment which you have in your home or office does not belong even to the telephone company, but to the manufacturers.

A PAID ADVERTISEMENT.

Ripon, Wis., May 22.—A few days ago you published a two column dry statement which you stated was paid for at full advertising rates. Do you really think it adds to your reputation for fairness to charge advertising rates in this case after all the free propaganda you have given the wets, editorially and otherwise? This puts you in the position of giving free space to the nullifiers of the constitution with stuff much of which is utterly false and charging for true statements from the supporters of the constitution. F. E. TINKHAM.

SOME POSSIBLE ECONOMIES.

Burlington, Ia., May 16.—We have followed your campaign for the reduction of government expenditures and we have in general most heartily approved of your attitude and expressions.

The rapidity of transportation and communication at the present time makes the maintenance in the state of Iowa, for example, of ninety-nine counties and the attendant organizations unnecessary. Would it not be more practical to rather work for a reduction in the state of Iowa to a number of counties equaling, for instance, in number the latest division for national representation in the house of representatives?

It would also seem that one of the most striking economies that could be made, and one which would show the sincerity of the economy movement to the people back home, would be a change in the management of our postoffices. I am quite often asked why we have a postmaster when the assistant postmaster does the work and why the assistant postmaster doesn't operate the postoffice under civil service regulations. Elimination of the postmaster as an appointive job would bring home to the people the thought that congress was really getting down to business.

There is without doubt a great deal of unrest and uneasiness in this section of the country and the thought that political maneuvering is now definitely retarding the return of business prosperity. Deflation has worked its way through profits, wages and most other essential factors and most of us have taken our depreciation and losses with a great good nature. It has now come to the point where a great many people feel that the government will have to be deflated along with everything else before a start can be made on a new basis.

There is one other point I should like to make and on which I should like to see publicity and that is the fact that certain types of securities and certain individuals are free from taxation and that there has been no deflation of consequence in that type of security, nor can the individual receiving an income from that type of security be reached by government taxation. This is a bad situation, as it creates a preference to the investor who can afford to own tax exempt securities, and I think it is the general opinion that the income from these securities should be reached by taxation just as well as the income from any other business or security. E. A. STARKER.

THE BUDGET.

Chicago, May 21.—Why all this fuss about balancing the budget? With so much distress in the country it seems the wrong time to worry about the budget. Just imagine a woman running her house on such a plan. If the children took scarlet fever or the measles, she would probably say, "Well, this week's budget is already planned for, so we can't have the doctor till next week." Then next week if the doctor suggested ice or milk she would say, "We've had to stop the iceman and the milkman in order to balance the budget this week." Such system of management would be ludicrous as well as some other things I might mention. Surely the budget was made for man, not man for the budget.

As for the financial credit of the United States, which some people are concerned about, when the last U. S. bond issue was oversubscribed three and a half times, it seems really too bad that certain people should be lying awake nights or getting premature gray hair worrying about the danger of the United States exhausting its credit.

GIRLS CRUSHED IN FIGHT TO HEAR TRIAL OF RECTOR

Spicy Testimony Causes Miniature Riot.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 26.—A miniature riot occurred at today's proceedings in the trial of the Rev. Harold F. Davidson, 52 year old rector of Stiffkey, on charges of immorality. A queue of several hundred people overwhelmed police in a rush to the gallery of the consistory court. Several young women were painfully crushed in the fight for points of vantage.

It was the rector's sixth day on the witness stand, and the testimony has been consistently spicy. He was questioned by the prosecuting counsel, Roland Oliver, today concerning the photograph of himself with a naked girl, which was displayed yesterday. The Rev. Mr. Davidson declared the picture was taken by flashlight and that the flash probably made him start and let slip a draping which he said was around the girl.

"It either slipped or it was twitched from my hand," he said.

The counsel then pointed out that the rector in his evidence yesterday declared that the photograph was taken for the purpose of advertising a bathing costume, but that the photograph showed the girl naked except for a rather ineffective shawl. The rector explained that until the photograph was shown him, he was unaware that the girl did not have on a bathing costume.

Cross-examined concerning other photographs the Rev. Mr. Davidson swore that he had not been photographed with a girl only half clad. He suggested that an expert photographer be allowed to say whether the photograph was faked.

"What sensible man would have had such a photograph taken the day before his trial?" the rector asked.

He explained later that a photographer had suggested that a picture should be taken in a manner the rector considered was entirely improper. He said that he was offered a tempting sum of money and although he was starving at the time he refused to have anything to do with it.

Later, when he was about to be cross-examined again, the rector declared that he was not feeling well and left the court.

$75,000 RECOVERED FROM EXTORTIONIST ESCAPES OFFICIALS

Los Angeles, Cal., May 26.—(AP)—County officials made a frantic search today for $75,000 which has disappeared after being taken by authorities from the pockets of Morris Lavine, former newspaper man, convicted of extortion.

County Clerk L. E. Lampton said his chief deputy, L. A. Hall, on a leave of absence, had been placed in charge of the money.

The county grand jury began an investigation and the district attorney's office instructed police to find Hall and detain him for questioning. He was last heard from in Omaha, Neb. He is due back at work Tuesday.

Lavine and Miss Leontine Johnson were convicted of extorting the money two years ago from the late Charles A. Crawford, slain in his office with Herbert Spencer.

G. O. P. LIBERALS WARN PARTY OF "PUSSYFOOTING"

Roused by Report Hoover Plans Damp Plank.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

President Hoover's dampish plank aroused a storm yesterday among the organized group of former contributors to the Republican campaign fund who have pledged themselves to tie their purse strings and not to subscribe a dime unless the national convention next month adopts a repeal plank.

A message to Walter F. Brown, postmaster general and a wet, urging him to bend his efforts to keep the party from "pussyfooting" or "straddling," was sent by the Republican Citizens' Committee Against National Prohibition. It was drafted by Raymond Pitcairn of Philadelphia, vice chairman, and copies were wired to Washington by the Chicago group and the branches in middle west states.

Experienced in Politics.

The postmaster general is the cabinet member with the most experience in politics. He is from Ohio, home of the Anti-Saloon league, which recently underwent a wet upheaval in the primaries. Candidates of the league were wiped out and both the Republican and Democratic parties in the state are now regarded as definitely wet. Mr. Brown is expected to be chief representative of the President at the convention, and the Citizens' Committee wired him it is counting on his influence for a wet plank.

Reports of the White House conference on prohibition," said the message, "contain the dangerous statement that the presidential plan embraces a tepid resubmission plank. One senatorial confrere declares, 'We hope the presidential plank will not go so far as to drive fair minded drys away from the party. Such a plank would of course defeat the party.'

"Our observation is that fair minded drys are now willing to let the people vote for or against repeal by electing delegates to state conventions whose duties are to act solely on this issue so that it will be unmixed with politics and state legislatures still subject to Anti-Saloon league influence.

Fear Double Dealing.

"The people are suspicious of schemes to get votes from both sides. Experience has taught them that political parties love such double dealing. We must convince them that our party will not, by this method, betray the nation in this crisis and leave it with prohibition filthy with corruption and stained with ghastly crimes.

"The Republican electorate, which is shown 3 to 1 for repeal, count much on your efforts to save the party from pussyfooting that will bring inevitable defeat."

A rally at the Coliseum June 13, the night before the Republican convention opens, is to be held by the Republican Citizens' Committee Against National Prohibition. The massmeeting will be the climax of a two days' anti-prohibition demonstration under the auspices of the Crusaders, which will include an automobile parade, also on the evening of June 13. John V. Clinnin was named yesterday by Ira L. Reeves of the Crusaders as grand marshal.

Preconvention political activities are unusually slow in getting under way in Chicago this year. Generally in a presidential year affairs are humming weeks ahead of the conventions, with candidates running their campaigns from a Michigan avenue base and national committeemen stirring things up.

This year candidates are backward in opening headquarters. The Republicans have had a suite for months for the arrangements committee, but the national committee itself will not assemble in Chicago until a few days before the convention. Chairman Simeon D. Fess yesterday issued a call for a meeting June 9 to make final preparations for the convention, which opens June 14. This time there are only five or six contests, mainly in southern states, and it is explained there is no reason for getting on the ground earlier.

G. O. P. CONVENTION TODAY; INTEREST IS IN ITS LIQUOR PLANK

Chicago delegates will leave this morning for the Republican state convention to be held today at Springfield. Some of the ward leaders have arranged for special trains. Languid interest was manifested locally yesterday. Frank L. Smith of Dwight is to be keynoter. Delegates at large to the national convention are to be picked and a platform adopted, and chief interest is in a wet plank and which group will control the convention. Some of the party chiefs went on ahead yesterday.

Among those who left during the day were Mrs. Leslie Wheeler and Mrs. William H. Mitchell, both of Lake Forest, representing the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform. They announced they would appeal to the convention to incorporate a wet plank in the platform. The organization of which they are members has offices at 900 North Michigan avenue.

TALK OF GARNER AND ROOSEVELT HOOKUP REVIVED

Rumors Fly as Governor Calls on Col. House.

New York, May 26.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt returned from his three weeks' vacation at Warm Springs today. After hastily greeting Mrs. Roosevelt and a score of friends and relatives who welcomed him at the Pennsylvania station, he rushed off with James A. Farley, his campaign manager, to call on Col. E. M. House at the latter's Park avenue apartment.

E. M. HOUSE.

Twenty minutes later the governor and Col. House, the Warwick of the Woodrow Wilson campaign, had their heads together while the wise statesmen of the inner circle were smiling happily over everything.

The conference started a lot of wiseacres speculating. Mr. House is a former resident of Texas and is a close friend of many of the Democratic leaders of that state.

Garner Has 90 Delegates.

Speaker Garner also comes from Texas and has 90 delegates pledged to vote for him in the national convention. A Roosevelt-Garner alliance would prove most advantageous to the New York candidate at this time. Whether that is in the offing must remain a secret as far as any information coming from the two participants in the discussion is concerned. "No politics" was their only comment. However, the incident served to revive the talk of the possibility of a Roosevelt and Garner ticket. It becomes more evident each week that the support of one favorite son now would break the anti-Roosevelt bloc.

The one subject on which the governor's lips were sealed tightly was the one everybody was most anxious to hear something about—his prospects for the nomination.

He referred all queries on politics to his campaign manager.

Ritchie, Smith, Raskob in Parley.

Meanwhile Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, a contender for the Democratic nomination for President, called on former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, a fellow candidate, at Mr. Smith's offices here this afternoon. With John J. Raskob, the Democratic leader, they talked over the national political situation.

Despite his visit to Mr. Smith, who is the leader of the stop Roosevelt movement, Gov. Ritchie made it clear that he was not participating in a coalition against any candidate. He said he knew of no definite movement or alliance against any candidate.

Hoover Wins Maryland Votes.

Baltimore, Md., May 26.—(AP)—The Republican state convention today named Maryland's nineteen delegates to the national convention, instructed them to vote for President Hoover and refused to adopt a resolution calling for a referendum on the prohibition question.

OBSOLETE NAVY YARDS ESCAPE ECONOMY AX

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 26.—[Special.]—Pork barrel navy yards and stations whose activities have been written in red ink on the treasury records books for years are slated to emerge unscathed from the current economy wars. This became plain today when it was learned that the house naval affairs committee has abandoned, at least for the present, its investigation of the possibilities of effecting economies through placing the naval shore establishments on a more economical and efficient basis.

CARL VINSON.

The house naval affairs committee move to determine the feasibility and practicability of closing down a number of the larger surplus shore establishments along the eastern seaboard was initiated a month ago when it appeared as if a provision giving the navy authority to close down unneeded stations would be written into the naval appropriation bill.

Could Save 2 Millions First Year.

With the beginning of the house naval committee's investigation the navy yard provision was struck out of the naval appropriation bill on a point of order. A meeting of the committee was called by Chairman Carl Vinson [Dem., Ga.]. Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams was called as the first witness and preparations were made to call several other naval officers.

At the request of the committee Mr. Adams furnished a list of naval shore establishments whose closing would result both in economy and efficiency. He said that by closing down the navy yards at Boston, Charleston, S. C., and New Orleans and curtailing activities at four other points about $3,000,000 could be saved the first year.

Up to Senate Committee.

Secretary Adams explained that he had submitted a similar report to the house appropriations committee. The naval affairs committee looked over the report and announced that the next meeting would be held in a couple of weeks. Since that time no move has been made to reopen the hearings. The navy yard closing provision was eliminated from both the navy and the economy bills.

Unless the closing of surplus stations is reopened by the special senate subcommittee studying economies the shore stations situation is dead for this year.

With the moving of the major part of the fleet to Pacific waters after the war, numerous moves have been made to close down surplus stations no longer needed. All have resulted in failure.

CITY ATTORNEY ASKS RECORDS OF GAS COMPANY

On behalf of the 600,000 gas consumers of Chicago, Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman petitioned the Illinois commerce commission yesterday to direct the People's Gas Light and Coke company to allow an inspection of all its records pertaining to leases on Texas natural gas fields and to transportation of the commodity to Chicago.

The petition also asked that the gas company be required to divulge the amount paid by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey for its interest in the Natural Gas Pipe Line Company of America, in which the Insull interests also hold a share. Francis L. Daily, counsel for the gas company, contested the motion, contending the evidence sought was immaterial.

G. Gale Gilbert, chairman of the commission, expressed doubt of the commission's authority to act on the petition. The matter was taken under advisement until June 7.

Seek 580 Neat, Courteous Police for Stadium Duty

Neatness and courtesy were the qualifications set up yesterday by Commissioner of Police Allman for the 500 policemen and 80 sergeants who will be selected for duty at the Chicago Stadium during the political conventions. Captains of the various districts were directed to submit by tomorrow the names of the men who can meet the commissioner's specifications. Besides the uniformed men, a number of police in plain clothes will be assigned.

COAL · HEAT · COSTS · LESS

SAVE... a month's heating costs

—by buying your coal or coke NOW

THIS is the biggest opportunity you, a fuel buyer, have had in many, many years.

If you buy your coal or coke now—if you have it delivered now, you can get it for so many dollars less than you have been paying that your whole winter's heating will cost no more than a partial winter's heating would have cost just a few weeks ago.

In fact, the savings are so great that the average equals at least a month's fuel supply.

Because the conditions which create this low price are general, so-called "bargains" will be offered everywhere. But if you would make absolutely certain that they are genuine bargains, that you are not being gulled by short weights or mixed grades, see to it that your coal or coke comes from a member of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association behind whose pledge of honest weight and grading is the Association's unconditional guaranty.

Can you afford to miss this opportunity? Buy now! Next winter when the season's expenses strain your budget you'll have reason to congratulate yourself on having bought at this time.

Call any member of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association today. He will give you full information on how much you will save on the type and size of fuel you can burn most economically.

If you are not certain as to what that type and size is, ask him. He will have an expert look over your plant and advise you free of charge or obligation.

PRIEST CURED BY TILTON, HE TELLS JURORS

Testifies in Defense of Healer at Trial.

A Catholic priest took the stand yesterday as the first defense witness for Old Doc Lester Tilton, who is on trial with two others before Judge Rudolph Desort in Criminal court on charges of conspiracy to violate the medical practice act.

The witness, Father Peter F. Gall acting pastor of St. Boniface church, 921 Noble street, testified that after undergoing two operations and being given three months to live by clinical surgeons he had gone to Tilton, whose medicine cured him.

"I had one operation in 1903," the priest said, "and another in 1920. My condition grew worse and up to 1930 I spent much time visiting various clinics and sanitariums in search of a cure. Every doctor I consulted said the case was hopeless. One gave me only three months to live."

Goes to Tilton Clinic.

It was late in 1930, the clergyman went on, that he went to the Felician convent where Tilton and his co-defendants, Dr. Joseph Duffy and Harry de Joannis, were conducting a clinic. Dr. Duffy told him there was a chance of restoring his health, he said, and prescribed the Tilton cure.

"How is your health now—did the cure work?" asked Defense Attorney Erwin N. Walker.

The priest, a vigorous man with gray hair, rose to his feet, flexed his arms, and drew a deep breath.

Father Gall was not permitted to state directly what his ailment was, the judge ruling that only a physician was competent to diagnose his illness. He testified, however, that his duties had brought him into contact with 300 cancer patients and that he was fully aware of the nature of his own malady.

Reveals Other Malady.

On cross-examination Prosecutor Charles A. Bellows brought out that the witness was suffering from a liver complaint also when he visited the clinic at the convent, but could not shake his conviction that the Tilton medicine had worked a cure.

The state rested its case, just before Father Gall was called, by introducing in evidence samples of the corrosive compounds which Tilton extracted from peat beds on his downstate farm. The judge overruled a defense motion for a directed verdict. Father Gall was then sworn.

PAY BACK BILL OR WATER STOPS, HARVEY TOLD

Corporation Counsel Sexton sent a letter yesterday to Mayor S. W. Bruggemann of Harvey, informing him that unless that suburb pays a water bill of $141,850 which it owes Chicago, the city will shut off the supply of water to Harvey. Repeated letters to the Harvey water bureau have brought no replies, Mr. Sexton pointed out to Mayor Bruggemann.

"That your city should permit itself to fall in arrears to such a staggering amount in this matter seems well nigh incredible and is all the more inexcusable in view of the fact that, as we understand, the city of Harvey has resold the water to consumers at a profit and collected the charges therefor."

Harvey buys water from Chicago at 6.8 cents per 1,000 gallons. It resells the water, at 19 cents a thousand gallons, to the village of Markham and four other suburbs, it was pointed out recently by Prof. Simeon C. Leland of the University of Chicago.

LAWYER MAKES A FINAL PLEA FOR AL CAPONE

Counsel for Al Capone, who is in Atlanta penitentiary serving an eleven year term for income tax fraud, yesterday asked the United States Supreme court to reconsider its action in refusing to review the gang chief's case. Attorney Michael Ahern, who filed the petition, argued that Capone could have been prosecuted twice for the same offense under the indictment on which he was tried and that the statute of limitations had run on certain years involved in the income tax charges. Cases in which the Supreme court reconsiders after refusing to review are rare.

DREAMER SUICIDE

[Associated Press Photo.]

New York, May 26.—[Special.]—Rex Fairbanks, who was questioned by authorities in the Starr Faithfull murder mystery a year ago, ended his life with gas today in his Brooklyn flat. After the body of the girl was washed ashore at Long Beach, Fairbanks gave out a story that he had danced with her. He was questioned by Nassau county authorities, but Mrs. Margaret Fairbanks, his estranged wife, said today that his story was probably a fiction. He had given fantastic stories to newspapers before, she said.

SLAIN BANDIT IS IDENTIFIED AS SO. SIDE RAPIST

One of the rapists who spread terror on the south side during the last few months was identified yesterday. His body was on a slab in the county morgue and a tag attached to it contained the following:

"Earl J. Strauss, 26 years old, 5839 South Kilbourn avenue, killed May 26 by Policeman John J. Kelly of the East Side station during an attempt to hold up the policeman and Miss Helen Illanich, an employé of the county assessors' office."

An 18 year old girl raped four times on April 17 by two men identified the body of Strauss as that of one of her assailants. Harold Overhiser, 20 years old, 5822 Drexel boulevard, who was with the girl when the rapists forced their way into his automobile and compelled him to drive to a prairie near 88th street and Paxton avenue, also identified the body of Strauss. The rapists had boasted they had attacked seven or eight other girls in the preceding few days.

Early yesterday Strauss and two companions, riding in a stolen car, came upon Policeman Kelly, in civilian clothes, seated in an automobile with Miss Illanich in front of her home at 3503 Bennett avenue. When they brandished revolvers Kelly drew his gun and fired four shots, killing Strauss. The others escaped.

Mrs. Betty Freiberg, who had been Strauss' guardian, said he lost his job a few months ago and since had been frequenting a poolroom.

IRISH SENATE TO AMEND BILL ABOLISHING OATH

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, May 26.—President Eamon de Valera's bill to abolish the oath of allegiance to the British crown will be so amended while progressing through the Irish Free State senate that when it returns to the Dail Eireann it will not be acceptable, it was learned authoritatively today. Thus, a delay of 18 months on the matter is considered almost certain.

May Insist on Division.

Next week's debate in the senate on the bill may continue until Friday. The understanding is that the opposition will refrain from voting, but a few extremists may insist on a division. In the committee stage on the following week amendments on the line of those proposed and defeated in the dail will be introduced and very likely will be carried.

These proposals will probably leave nothing of the original bill except the deletion of the oath clause from the constitution. The new measures will add an overriding clause, insisting that the bill must not become operative until an agreement is reached with Britain providing that the treaty of 1921 remains intact.

Payment Due England June 15.

The earliest the senate might complete the bill is June 15. On that date an installment of $7,500,000 in land annuities is due Great Britain and an immediate crux is expected. The information here is that if this installment is not paid, Great Britain will levy a tax of $5 a head on Free State cattle entering England.

Opinion is divided as to President de Valera declaring an early general election. His vast legislative program cannot be completed before September, as more time is needed to develop plans to cope with increasing unemployment.

Mexican Town of 10,000 to Disband as Mine Closes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, May 26.—Owing to the low price of copper, El Bolio mine at Santa Rosalia, lower California, has been forced to close down, leaving 2,000 miners jobless. Santa Rosalia, with a population of 10,000, is entirely dependent on the mine and the closing will force practically the whole citizenry to migrate.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste, and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Good Morning!

IS "As You Desire Me" Greta Garbo's final gesture so far as American made movies are concerned? She says so.

Not even for $1,250 a week will she make any more pictures over here, she avers. She's been lonesome for Sweden for a good, long time, it seems, and now what is Svenska Helmweh has completed its perfect work with her. SO—proclaims the Garbo—"I go home. I make pictures in Sweden, I think. If not——" shrug ——"Anyhow, I go home . . ." And already, one hears, her agent has gone ahead to see what can be done about organizing a Swedish company to produce Garbo masterpieces.

Well, IF "As You Desire Me" is the siren's Hollywood good-by—it's an effective one, a picture in which Garbo is as her adorers DO desire her. Never was she more world-weary, more heavy-eyed and hot-lipped. Never more devastatingly, fragile-ly appealing.

As ever her clothes and coiffures are not those in which the conventionally well dressed woman would poke a nose out of doors—and, as ever, she makes most well dressed women appear unimaginative and uninteresting, if not positively dowdy, by comparison. That overworked adjective "glamorous" IS the only one to adequately describe the Garbo, and in "As You Desire Me" I would say that she is glamorous plus.

This photoplay tells a strange, credulity taxing, but possible story which carries its heroine from a hectic career as a singer in a cheap European night club and mistress of a beast of a novelist to a simple life on a beautiful country estate as the wife of an Italian army officer who has mourned his beloved as dead for ten long years.

During the war, while Bruno had been at the front, the estate had been invaded and razed by enemy troops and the girl wife had disappeared. Though evidence had pointed toward her death, the husband had never given up his search for her.

House and grounds he had had rehabilitated, so that her home as it was before the war would be waiting for the mistress if she ever returned.

From here on the Chicago's screen shall unfold the tale of the tragic, beautiful woman who is discovered drinking wildly to forget that—she cannot remember . . . and is suddenly transported by an unknown hand from hell to heaven. . . .

Speaking of hands—his hands are the biggest and busiest things about Owen Moore's acting. He can't keep them still and is forever waving them in front of the camera to the most ridiculous effect! Apparently neither he nor the director were capable of tearing him away from the habit of elaborate pantomime acquired when movies were crude and silent. He is very ham.

Melvyn Douglas gives a smooth and sympathetic portray of the faithful army man. Erich von Stroheim is in his element as the sinister sensualist of a novelist. Albert Conti as an admirer of the heroine and William Riccardi as an old family retainer do nice work. The same can be said of Hedda Hopper and Rafaela Ottiano in minor rôles.

Toward the last the melodrama goes a bit into hysterics over its remarkable condition, but by that time the observer is in such a temperamental state of suspense that he doesn't mind. Anything, ANYthing, so long as the story ends the way he wants it to! It does.

A beautifully directed—with the exception of the Moore hands—staged and photographed movie, "As You Desire Me," definitely alluring from start to finish.

And so exits (?) the Garbo to the sound of clapping! Let's hope she'll reconsider and return to take another bow.

Fitted Cases Hit New Lows on Price Tags

While Smartness Reaches a New High.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

THERE simply isn't a shopper who hasn't at some time or other during her daily buying binges stood transfixed with the nose flattened against a window while she peered at luxurious displays of fitted cases!

After squandering good shopping time in frankly envious contemplation over these rather extravagant extras you have undoubtedly gone on about your tour with a vague but hungry desire to own one if they were ever priced so as not to shock ordinary clothes budgets!

It's almost a daily broadcast nowadays about the low price tags that dangle temptingly from all manner of new apparel, but at the risk of reckless repetition that bores the most interested, the tale must be told again . . . the new low prices on these handsome traveling cases will stun you!

Heretofore, only a gal who was frightfully lucky in clinging to an untapped mint of money would be rash enough to saunter into a shop and buy one . . . others depended on genial, generous St. Nicks to stuff one in their Christmas stocking, or wildly shopping spendthrift relatives remembered some with such cases when special gifts were needed to mark extra special occasions. However you acquired a fitted case you felt as though you were frightfully favored by fate or by a very understanding fairy godmother.

But this summer you can buy your own . . . you need not wait for gift bearing admirers or the Christmas spirit . . . take a small portion of your allowance and go into any luggage shop and get the thrill of a lifetime, buy the very case you have been dreaming about and wanting for years. If you are one of these stolid souls whom nothing excites, the thrill may not be so great, but the bargain will still be the best you can find.

Think of being able to really own an exquisitely fitted case with everything in it that you would need for a week-end party or a round the world cruise, and a large capacity remaining for plenty of clothes. You can find all sizes, all colors, and every kind of fitting ever invented.

Sleek black pin seal leather cases hold fittings of silver, enamel, or tortoise shell . . . more moderately priced affairs are equipped with toilet articles of simulated gold and silver metals as well as shell compositions. Swanky red leather cases are dramatized with shining black enamel fittings . . . lovely French gray cases captivate with fittings of satiny silver . . . bright blue leathers contain fittings of blond tortoise shell [simulated] and other ingenious combinations of blue enamel with silver or gold.

Delectable beige toned leather covered cases make you feel most luxurious with gold fittings, while patrician purple, fine grained leather holds all the requisites of a modern dressing table, deftly inserted around the sides . . . toiletries of deep purple enamel!

And these unbelievable reductions are also available on all the cases that do not boast of toiletries . . . fine leather traveling bags, zipper fastened carrying cases with round, easy-to-hold handles . . . cleverly designed huge suitcases of light beige and swagger dark brown leather, big enough to hold every dud you own, all made with a sturdy construction that defies the best efforts of the most violent baggage smasher . . . these are but a few of the outstanding baggage bargains of this rather staggering shopping season.

Rudolph Altrocchis Visit Her Parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Altrocchi and their two little sons, John Cooley, who has reached the advanced age of 3½ years, and Paul Hemenway, who is only 11 months, arrived in Chicago Wednesday from Berkeley, Cal., for a short stay with Mrs. Altrocchi's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Ward Cooley.

The Altrocchis and the Cooleys will depart tomorrow morning for their cottages near Lakeside, Mich., where they will spend the summer. About twenty-five old friends assembled yesterday afternoon in the living room of the Cooley residence at 5318 Greenwood avenue for the baptism of little Paul, at which the Rev. Dr. Edward Scribner Ames officiated.

John was baptized in the same room when he was six months old, and the former Julia Cooley and Mr. Altrocchi were married there on Aug. 26, 1920. "No guests who cannot use paint brushes" is the way Sterling Morton describes who will be on his schooner yacht, the Freedom, for this week-end. The yacht is not in commission yet, so the Mortons really are not planning to entertain on it just yet, but it probably will be a center of activity as soon as it is shipshape.

By the way, I understand that the Freedom's captain is a fiction writer as well as a seaman and that he often has stories published in one of the well known weekly magazines, so perhaps he will find time from his nautical duties this summer to entertain the guests aboard the yacht with tales of the sea.

Mr. and Mrs. Harve G. Badgerow of Winnetka will start motoring east today to meet their youngest daughter, Miss Susan Badgerow, who is to arrive in New York next Friday on the Leviathan after a year's study at La Roserai school at Neuilly, France.

Miss Badgerow is recovering from a bad accident, which spoiled her Easter vacation at Grindlewald, Switzerland. A fall while skiing caused injury to a knee, which required a serious operation. The eminent Prof. Clairmont of Vienna performed the operation at Zurich, and since then Miss Badgerow has spent six weeks in a hospital there.

Mrs. J. Drew Miller of Winnetka, who has been in Zurich for two months, spent a great deal of time with Miss Badgerow and sent back reports to her family about the operation and complete recovery.

Holiday and Vacation Trips.

Miss Betty Knode and her fiancé, Horton Conrad, are going to spend the week-end with a Wellesley classmate of hers who lives in Aurora. Miss Knode is to become Mr. Conrad's bride on Saturday, June 18, in the garden [weather permitting, of course] of the Hubbard Woods residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver M. Knode. Mr. Conrad is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Conrad of La Grange.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mitchell are planning to go to New York for a brief stay the latter part of next week. Mrs. Mitchell will go to their California residence the middle of June, but Mr. Mitchell will remain in the city until about July 10, and then he will join Mrs. Mitchell at "El Mirado" on Cold Spring road in Santa Barbara.

Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine of 209 Lake Shore drive is planning to depart on June 20 for her summer residence at Southampton, N. Y. Although she still has a nurse with her all of the time, Mrs. Valentine is able to go out for drives and to see her friends, so there is every reason to hope for the disappearance of any trace of the serious illness which kept this beloved lady confined in Passavant hospital for several weeks this winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph R. Richardson are planning to remain in their Astor street apartment all summer, having

Pictures Stir Old Memories of Childhood

Mark 35th Birthday of University School.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

IT was a smart looking crowd of young matrons and maids, alumnæ of the University School for Girls, who stepped from their motors yesterday in front of 1524 Lake Shore drive. As they trooped upstairs to the drawing room stereopticon pictures revived the spirit of "school days" as the views showed frilly shirtwaists, pompadours and Merry Widow hats. The party celebrated the thirty-fifth anniversary of their alma mater, the University School for Girls.

Miss Anna Haire, the founder and principal of the institution which so many of Chicago's young society women attended as children, should have been the bright particular star of the occasion. She was, in fact, the center of attention of her former students most of the afternoon, radiantly happy in her black lace gown and black hat, with a spray of gardenias festively pinned on one shoulder.

The reflecting machine, however, kept distracting the attention of the guests with its performance. Ghosts of themselves as they used to be popped into view on the sheet against the wall, and bursts of laughter greeted the recognition of the old styles—and young faces. Mrs. Robert M. Curtis [Doris Russell] and her committee had established a record with the program, the extensive collection of old views being the main feature.

One of the first photographs showed Mrs. Henry K. Chapin [Elizabeth Crandall], of the class of 1903, cuddling her grandson, whom she proudly dubbed "the first grandchild of the school." She was attired in a starched shirtwaist costume and wore a beplumed turban atop her high coiffure.

Miss Alice Barler, of the class of 1902, was fascinated by the group picture of her classmates, immaculate in the fulsome white shirtwaists of the period and with tiny bows crowning their fashionable pompadours. She named Mrs. Paul Fitner [Ruby Chapin], now of Pasadena; Mrs. William D. Bangs of Geneva [Lily Zimmerman], and other she recognized in the photograph.

There was one picture of Mrs. Curtis, now president of the alumnæ, in her debut costume, which, except for the inevitable pompadour—topped by a Psyche knot—was not so far removed from similar costumes of today. But an earlier view of her sister, Mary Louise, now Mrs. Russell Christie, elicited more than its share of applause. The adaptation of a Scotch highlander's costume in which she appeared, at about the age of 8 years, was exaggerated enough to provoke mirth in plenty.

Eipper Pens New Volume on Animals

Charming Book Based on Study in Zoos.

"In My Zoo," by Paul Eipper. [Viking.] Published today.

"The City Jungle," by Felix Salten. [Simon & Schuster.] Published on May 19.

PAUL EIPPER, an animal lover by instinct and the author of that fascinating book "Circus," again writes about his favorite subject, animals, in a volume called "In My Zoo." He takes the reader to many zoos throughout Europe, points out his favorite animals, their individual characteristics and temperaments.

None of his experiences is wildly exciting, but each is charming and interesting. He does not risk his life nor subject himself to any great dangers or hardships. Nevertheless, his observations, his fascinated interest in the birth and death, the sorrow and anger and happiness of his favorite animals will hold every reader's attention.

One chapter is devoted to birds, one to tigers, another to lions, a fourth to apes, etc. The chapters on orang-outangs, gorillas, chimpanzees, baboons, and various species of monkeys are the ones that most readers will linger over the longest. In a European zoo, at the time of Eipper's writing, there was the oldest full grown male orang-outang in captivity. He describes it accurately and reproduces many pictures of it.

An eerie page or two is devoted to a description of the male orang-outang's night song. "Each evening at sunset we waited motionless to hear if one of the old orang males would sing. Their figures became more dim, here and there one wriggled; and then it began. From some corner came a low sobbing sound like the pulsing of a distant motor. It rose and swelled, H-u-u-u-h, with deep sobs and respirations until it became as strong as a lion's roar, O-o-o-o-o, to die away into a tremulous whisper."

Eipper writes simply and charmingly. Much of his attention is centered upon the children of animals, the strange friendships between animals, and the relationship between the animal and its offspring.

Felix Salten, author of "Bambi," has written another type of book dealing with the same subject. The author selects several animals or families of animals in "The City Jungle" and concentrates his attention on them. The book is in semi-fictional form; the animals feel and act essentially like human beings. Their domestic tragedies, their reactions to their keepers and to each other are recorded in conversational form.

Needless to say, each animal is utterly miserable, longing for his native home, living in the zoo only on sufferance, waiting to die deprived of his birthright, freedom. One orang-outang wills to die, and does, because of his sadness. Mino the fox is periodically attacked by insanity because he wants to roam the hills and plains. Hallo, the tame wolf, has a wild wolf for mate who nearly kills him because he doesn't remember the beauty and excitement of freedom. And so it goes.

Animals die and are born, get sick and brood with startling human reality. There is no doubt that Felix Salten knows his animals and loves them. His disinterested observations of them and his insight into their feelings are accurate and uncanny. Nevertheless the impassioned and unfortunately sentimental plea for their release spoils the story.

The mixture of human and animal affairs is an unhappy one. A little boy, sick and horrified at the captivity of his beloved animals, offers his own life to Pardinos, the elephant, to make up for mankind's cruelty. Eliza is the keeper of Peter the chimpanzee. Her love for the little fellow forces her to refuse the advances of a less sensitive keeper named Karl. This underlining of a theme already inartistically emphasized [no matter how convinced the reader is that Felix Salten is right about the cruelty of enforced imprisonment of wild creatures] produces a somewhat ridiculous effect.

Warn Junior League Conference Against Expansion Projects

Los Angeles, Cal., May 26.—[Special.]—Speakers at closed sessions of the conference of Junior leagues today warned against expansion at this time, and declared against the league entering into commercial attachments. Mrs. C. Louis Meyer of Omaha, director of region V of the league, told delegates that disadvantages outweighed the benefits of the league's associating themselves with business ventures in order to raise funds for philantrophic purposes. A speech prepared by Mrs. John Giles Mohler of Columbus, O., warned that in these days of "overnight millionaires" in which "social citadels" were being stormed, the league would be well advised to consider the evils of expansion, and might be well to limit the membership.

YOUR GROCERY BASKET—WHAT IT COSTS FILLED

Survey Shows Grocer Gets Fifth of Income.

BY BETTY BROWNING.

After you've phoned your grocer the day's order have you ever stopped to wonder who eventually bought the coffee, the peas, or beans he confidentially described as "not at their best today?"

As you stood in line at the nearest chain store awaiting your turn to have your purchases checked, have you ever noticed what was in the market basket of the woman ahead of you?

Trivial questions these, at first glance, yet what your fellow countrywomen buy when they go a-marketing and the quality of what they buy are matters of vital importance to the flour, coffee, cracker, and soft drink industries, to mention but a few.

Survey Supplies Answers.

Several answers to these questions recently have been supplied in a survey made by a magazine, selecting Appleton, Wis., an average midwestern city of 25,267, as the basis of the survey.

Just to illustrate how much weight the humble market basket carries in the councils of the economists, of 77 pages devoted to showing how Americans of all ranges of income spend their money—whether for houses, automobiles, refrigerators, radios, toothpastes, golf clubs, or travel—23, nearly one-third, were dedicated to groceries.

If you still have doubts about the importance of that market basket, the figures which open the survey should help to change your opinion. Among incomes under $2,000, $29.35 a month, one-fifth of the maximum monthly income for that figure, is spent on groceries. That is exclusive of what is spent on fresh meat, poultry, fish, eggs, milk, and cream.

Mounts with Bigger Income.

And how quickly the proportion mounts with increasing income! Apparently there is nothing stable about staple groceries, so far as the amounts one can spend on them are concerned. In fact, they seem to share with high priced automobiles the position of favorite national luxuries.

Persons in the $2,000-$3,000 income category pay their grocers $36.94 a month; in the $3,000-$5,000 category, the bill increases to $41.65. It jumps to $49.22 in the $5,000-$10,000 group, and to $53.35 for incomes of $10,000 and over.

Now some facts on what actually goes into the market basket. The constant dinning into our ears of the value of vitamins seems not to have been in vain, for at least one-third of all grocery bills represent purchases of fresh fruits and vegetables. This proportion increases with the size of the income.

Home Made Bread Declines.

Mother's delicious home made bread is rapidly approaching extinction, the survey would seem to indicate. Of every 1,000 families, 742 use bakery bread, regardless of income. From 12 to 14 loaves of bakery bread a month is the allotment for every family, with 12 pounds of butter to accompany it, or 13, if the income exceeds $10,000 a year.

As we investigate breakfast cereals, the survey reminds us that we are dealing with that portion of mankind sometimes called "cornfed." More than a quarter of all cereals consumed are corn. And this is not because corn is economical, for 794 families out of every thousand in the income group over $5,000 use corn, and only 747 families below $5,000.

Breakfast foods seem to be a universal dish, for almost five packages are eaten monthly, whatever the family's income. Dry wheat cereals are corn's nearest rivals, and both are eaten in almost equal quantities by families above and below the $5,000 income level.

Bran Most Exclusive Cereal.

Bran ranks as the most exclusive cereal, with almost twice as much eaten in the income group above $5,000. Oat meal is the most democratic, nearly twice as much being consumed in the lower group. Crackers seem to be equally popular with all groups; three and a half boxes a month on an average are eaten by every family.

But man does not live by breadstuffs alone. Consider cheese. Although it is a staple to families in the lower income groups, and a luxury to most people in the upper groups, cheese presents the anomaly of being eaten in greater quantities as a luxury than as a staple. Below $5,000, 1.9 pounds are eaten monthly by each family. Above $5,000 the figure is 2.2 pounds per family.

Only about half the population seems to eat baked beans, which evidently retain their frugal New England reputation; almost twice as many cans are consumed by families in the group below $5,000 as above it.

The catsup market reflects the time honored bean connection.

Manufactured canned fruits turn out to be somewhat of a luxury, with twice as many users and twice as many cans consumed in the upper income groups as in the lower. Or possibly the ordeal of canning at home is too much for the temperament of the professional cook!

As for beverages, coffee, of course, is the universal drink. And the finest grades of coffee lead in both upper and lower income groups, although the upper groups drink almost twice as much of it.

Tea is a poor second, with less than a sixth of the coffee total consumed. More users are in the upper income groups, 7 out of 10 in the upper, 6 out of 10 in the lower. Cocoa has almost the same ranking, although its following in the lower income groups exceeds that in the upper.

Drys, at first glance, will derive satisfaction from the enormous popularity of soft drinks, apparently a favorite luxury. Three and a half bottles are consumed per month in families in the lower income group; ten and a half in the upper. But it turns out that more than one-third of the lower income groups' quota and more than three-fifths of the supply in the upper groups is ginger ale, most of it the "dry" variety. And the drier the ginger ale the less apt it is to end as a dry drink!

TRY WHOLE WHEAT CEREALS TO IMPROVE TASTE IN COOKIES

Whole wheat cereals make a pleasing taste in cookies, according to a LeSueur county, Minnesota, housewife. She tried the whole wheat as a substitute for nutmeats. Cooked whole wheat cereal left over from breakfast was used in the following recipe for whole wheat cookies:

Three-fourths cup sifted flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon soda, two tablespoons fat, one-half cup sugar, one egg, one cup cooked whole wheat, and one cup seedless raisins.

Sift the dry ingredients together except the sugar; add the fat, sugar, beaten egg, wheat and raisins. Stir until well mixed. Drop by teaspoonfuls on a greased pan about two inches apart. Bake in a moderate oven until lightly browned.

FRIED PIES ONE OF THE DESSERTS HUSBANDS EAT

BY FLORA MARTIN.

Kitchens, no matter how completely or how attractively furnished, offer few thrills to housewives these sunshiny days when the great outdoors calls. For there lays the bulk of housewives' work. Those who can turn their backs on the tempting warm sun rays and breezes and go about their kitchen tasks without feeling like martyrs are worthy of going down in history. After all, playing hookey from the kitchen is no crime, and really should be encouraged.

But whether it's a hot, cold, rainy or balmy day there are still hungry husbands and children to be fed, so outdoor pastimes have to give way to the dinner making job part of the time. And if hookey days are sandwiched in between a few work days the schedule is better balanced and rainy days, when a shower cages you indoors, you can go on a cooking spree and make up for all past negligence.

Try Fried Pies on Males.

Fried pies would be a good dessert to try on such a day. They're the same as the old pie standbys that bring a yell of glee from hubby and the boys whenever they're on the menu, but fixed a little differently. Men who are familiar with pie in every shape and form and thoroughly versed on pie language know all about them and can give all of the details. One man claimed that the genuine fried pie must be cooked until almost black in color, but that's where we disagreed.

The recipe furnished by another male pie enthusiast, who admits trying it out, and successfully, is:

First, his wife's pie crust recipe of one cup of sifted flour, 1-3 cup of lard, and about 1-9 cup of water, all mixed together, rolled out, and shaped in pie tins, as for regular pie crusts. Now is where the course changes from the baked pie recipe. On one-half of the pie dough surface, put cooked, sweetened apricots, well drained, or any other dried cooked fruit or jam [but not too much, as the dough is likely to split]. Fold the other half of the crust dough over the apricots and pinch the two edges together. Fry in a greaseless pan over a moderate flame, frequently turning them over, until browned and cooked on both sides.

Recipe Makes Two Pies.

This recipe makes two pies, if shaped in a small pie tin, or many more if the pies are made smaller, as it would be better to do for individual portions. The pies are at their best served hot, but if hubby doesn't eat them all up in one sitting give him a cold portion at the next meal and he'll still find it appetizing.

"But Madame can easily wash both dress and jacket this way—

"FOR dresses, blouses, sweaters, we recommend lukewarm water and Lux. Lux contains no harmful alkali. And with Lux, there is no rubbing. Rubbing shrinks and mats wool fibers, streaks colors and destroys the lustre of silk. Repeated trials prove that Lux never injures anything that is safe in pure water.

"It's so economical—a cent's worth or so of Lux makes a whole dress look like new. It keeps hands smooth and white, too."

LUX won't fade colors—won't shrink woolens

tensils Will Do Nearly Everything.

BY JEAN GUTHRIE.

Tired of looking into the cupboard or behind the stove and seeing the same frying pan, tea kettle, sink strainer—even the identical egg beater and bottle opener that started housekeeping with you five, fifteen, or fifty years ago? Then clap on a hat, hail a street car, and join the rest of us equipment weary souls in what appears to be 1932's most popular spring sport for the up to date householder—kitchen showering!

Newer and gayer colors are splashed about and the most amazing assortment of shapes, sizes, and audacious designs are offered in pots, pans, and kitchen oddities. And at prices that make even the leanest and most harassed of bank accounts beam approval.

Things Do Get Old.

Sit on your Scotch conscience—or argue this way. No matter how impressive and up to the minute was the kitchen layout bequeathed by your friends in the pre-nuptial madness of showers and parties, pans will spring leaks, paint will crack, and pot handles and color schemes—the most modest and the most hilarious alike—are bound to grow wearisome after the first thousand breakfasts. And truly it's awe inspiring what a bang can be injected into meal getting and household management by the simple addition of a gay new pan—one of the robin's egg enamel ones, for instance, with the dashing white polkadots—a cluster of the new amethyst glass mixing bowls, or a cool, green pot for lilacs on the window sill.

But don't mistake me. Change of scenery isn't the only claim to glory of the stores' spring offerings in kitchen whatnots. You'll find that better materials, more reliable paint and enamel finishes, finer workmanship, and smarter ideas are getting together to stock the home and keep it constantly up to scratch in modern devices.

Dishes Go Professional.

Not only is equipment low priced and attractive, it's time saving, labor saving, and, most alluring of all, it's giving us new dishes, with a professional touch the like of which never before grew from a home kitchen.

The newest slicers, for instance, do the most exciting things to apples, onions, potatoes and a score of other sliceables. We no longer shave them off on a sharp metal edge, a slice for each shove, as of old. Instead, if we're modern we drop them into a standing steel slicer—a second cousin to the old food shopper—and grind. And out they come, as diaphanous or as chunky as we wish, the thickness determined by the pressure of the hand against the unsliced side.

Or this same novel piece may be converted into a grater or grinder and will bite apple pulp right out of its skin in a most amazing manner. What's more, it grinds nuts without reducing them to oil, and it turns out sparkling ice cube shavings that simply do things to long, cold drinks. Could you ask more?

Thrilling tea kettles are something else very new and decidedly smart. They seem to run to novel cone shapes—they're aluminum—and just as soon as the water bubbles you are warned by a protesting whistle.

Have you a cake breaker in your home? It's an affair with twenty or so slender five-inch prongs extending comb fashion from a sturdy horizontal bar. Sink it into hot fluffy cakes and its cuts to perfection without smashing, or rolling up balls of dough.

Seal Milk and Sock Flies.

Unstainable steel milk bottle tops are another recent addition. Just the act of tipping the bottle flops open the lid, which closes automatically when the bottle is returned to its upright stance. And for those tightly sealed glasses of foods which have long destroyed our tempers and knives, there's a new model opener that works the first time.

While casting appraising eyes over pronged meat rollers for speedy swissing of steak; automatic electric irons which turn themselves off when too hot, and on when too cold; natty wire coil sifters which release powdered sugar, flour or other powders when she who sifts pressed the handles. While examining all these intriguing new kitchen assistants, take a look at the nubby washable fly swatters you are offered for a pleasantly small sum. Such delightful pastel shades. Such smooth fluffy sponge rubber. And what a powerful spanking the surprised fly will get when slapped by that imbedded metal in the business end of the swatter.

"Jumbo Grass" Appeases Big Appetites

Asparagus now is in its season of plenty, coming as it does from nearby truck farms as well as from producing areas in adjacent and faraway states. The size here is the jumbo type, while others range from the slender shoestring asparagus to the mammoth. Any of them are good if they are tender and prepared right, according to this South Water market salesman. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

SUMMER NEARS, TURNS THOUGHTS TO SALAD DISHES

Many Varieties; Ever Try Herring?

BY FRANK NORRIS.

Now that summer is approaching, it is the time to give more thought to salad recipes. A cool salad hits the right spot on an extremely hot day.

Once upon a time salads were regarded as a delicacy, but now they are considered essential to a well balanced diet. One could go on almost indefinitely naming varieties of salads which range from vegetable to fruit and fish to meat. Various kinds of nuts also are becoming an important ingredient in the salad structure.

A popular fish dish is kippered herring salad. Served cold it is refreshing as well as delicious. This inexpensive dish can be prepared in 15 to 20 minutes. Here are the ingredients:

2 hard boiled eggs.
½ onion (minced).
1 tablespoon chopped parsley.
½ tablespoon salt.
¼ tablespoon pepper.
4 tablespoons olive oil.
1½ tablespoons vinegar.
2 tablespoons mayonnaise.
2 cups of cole slaw. Pickles.

Break up herring smacks with fork, add coarsely crumbled crackers and chopped eggs, onion, parsley, and seasoning. Mix with 4 tablespoons of olive oil and 1½ tablespoons of vinegar or lemon juice. Garnish with sliced pickles. Usually serves from four to six portions.

An ideal meal in the hot summer would be the herring salad, iced tea or other refreshing summer drinks, and dessert such as strawberries or berries, peaches, or any fresh fruit.

KNOWLEDGE OF FOODS HELPS TO SAVE DOCTOR AND GROCERY BILLS

Ohio home makers have found that a knowledge of various foods and their preparation for the table enable them to reduce the amount of illness in their families and communities and save money, time, and energy.

Reports were obtained from 17,365 housewives in 26 counties by Miss Lelia Ogle, nutrition extension specialist for Ohio State university. In Auglaize county the survey indicated that an increased knowledge of foods made possible a saving averaging $25 annually for each of 1,041 families.

DESCRIBES GRAIN CHANGES ON WAY TO BREAD OVEN

BY PAUL POTTER.

The intricate processes that have been built up, largely through the perfection of chemical and mechanical science, between the wheat the farmer grows in the field and the loaf of bread placed on the consumer's table were described in Chicago yesterday.

C. G. Runyon, veteran head of the testing laboratories which grain brokers in the Chicago Board of Trade utilize daily, was addressing a "school" of grain merchants in the world's largest grain exchange. His talk was one of a series of educational addresses to inform the grain trade of the basis for demand and supply in provisioning the nation with bread.

Housewives have their own desires in the matter of flours just as bakers have, he pointed out. They may not realize that the protein and gluten content of a flour is the basis of difference in baking properties of flours. But millers and the farmers who grow the wheat are best able to serve the housewife and the baker when they become familiar with these factors.

Difference in Methods.

One essential difference in baking bread, pies, or pastries, as Mr. Runyon pointed out, is that the housewife measures her ingredients, while the baker weighs them. But they both prefer the kinds of flour that produce the products their families or customers want.

Well established brands of flour sold to housewives or bakers have varied only fractionally, if at all, in some 40 years. This is possible because the miller's chemist can tell the exact proportions of various wheats to use in securing that constant blend, even in years when wheat crops are lacking in some elements.

The proteins, he pointed out, are composed of a high amount of nitrogen in proportion to oxygen, hydrogen, and carbon. They vary widely in different foods. Wheat contains four proteins, but the two of chief importance form what is known as gluten when they absorb about 3 times their weight in water.

Gluten Factor in Baking.

"The more elastic the gluten the better the flour for baking," Mr. Runyon said. "It is the force of gas generated by the yeasts during fermentation of dough which becomes entrapped in the particles of gluten when bread rises. The gluten becomes dry and crisp soon after baking starts, which causes the loaf to form."

Various parts of the nation produce different kinds of wheat. Michigan white wheat and Ohio and Indiana soft red winter wheat have a protein content of 8 to 11 per cent. These are milled into soft flours used in crackers, pastry, and self-rising flour.

Illinois hard wheats have a protein content of 9 to 12 per cent, and are generally used in "all around" household or bakers' patent flour. Kansas hard winter wheat, usually selling at a premium because of its high protein content, has a range of 12 to 18 per cent, while wheat grown in the northwest and Canada often tests 20 per cent or more protein.

Durum wheat, more difficult to grow, is a hard spring wheat that is exported to Italy or milled into semolina for macaroni and spaghetti.

Composition of Flour.

Millers, according to Mr. Runyon, usually provide bakers with a flour that is 80 per cent patent flour, and for family use provide a flour about 70 per cent patent flour. The patent flour is the product of fine screening after "bolting" or sifting to remove the bran, middlings, and shorts sold as animal feed. A proportion of "clear" or extra finely sifted flour makes up the remainder of the home or bakers' flour.

"Few farmers realize that they might get more for their wheat if they improve the content of their soils to produce a higher protein content wheat instead of more bushels," said Mr. Runyon. "Furthermore, both housewives and farmers fail to realize that the task of blending often requires importing special forms of wheat, or going to the expense of securing wheat from a certain area known to produce the needed protein content."

Household Hints

The easiest and safest way to clean a clock is to place a piece of cloth which has been soaked in paraffin in the bottom and let the fumes do the work.

Use left-over fried eggs by chopping and mixing them with meat, fish, or potato cakes.

One or two flowers in small, suitable vases are better than large massed bouquets all over the house.

Make Your Own Breaks; Don't Wait for Them

Young Chap Is Urged to Show Enterprise.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am past 23 and terribly in love with a girl who has every confidence in me and is willing to wait as long as necessary. The first difficulty is the lack of money to get married on. Then, I am in business with my father—in a business that I doubt can ever be made to pay enough for the support of two families, it being hard enough to support one.

"As luck would have it, I am an essential part of the business, too essential. My father has done everything he possibly could do to help me. He put me through college, but I failed miserably on the professional course. There was not a single reproach nor recrimination from him. I felt it deeply myself.

"So, now you can see my family hold. On the other hand, my father is not a young man. There is a family to support. I see nothing ahead of me now. Is it selfishness to do what I can for myself at the expense of as fine a family as I could have been born into? Is it better to wait here for a break which may never come, or try something else? I. S."

Waiting for a break is not the young man's way of success. His business in early life is to get out and build toward his own break. Leave the passive dreaming to old men! Youth has no business with it.

At 22 with a good education as additional asset to youth's own energy and activity the whole world is open for business adventure. If the second generation cannot see in its parents' established business hope of a future, it is its duty to establish its own trail.

Family sentiment serves no purpose here. Four, five or six years given over to some pursuit into which heart may be put ultimately may mean better times for the parents and for all concerned.

Lucile Paray Creates Afternoon Frock True to Traditional Black and White

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—To misquote a phrase, a color may be down but it's never out. Particularly when that color is Paris' favorite child—black. And this applies as well to its stepchild—the combination of black and white.

Since chic and Parisienne became synonomous, black has been the backbone of the wardrobe of the fashionable Frenchwoman. White was its only other contemporary. But this season the throne of black and white has been mightily shaken. Parisienne die-hards are wearing navy blue as a substitute for white and black.

Be that all as it may, black, combined with white, for the afternoon dress, is still holding its head proudly. And justly, too, as you can see by looking at the accompanying sketch. This black and white afternoon dress is from Lucile Paray. The blouse, in heavy white marocain crêpe, has its narrow collar upstanding in back, and turned down in a soft fold at front, from which there are two tabs suspended, which meet the high pointed top of the skirt and make a bow. The leg o' mutton sleeves, full to the elbows, have the upper section in white marocain, and the lower in the black marocain of the skirt. The black marocain extends above the elbows in points like the center front skirt top. The skirt is flared by godets.

The small sketch shows the back of this dress, with its normal waistline. This dress has buttons down the center back, from a point starting at the middle of the blouse, down the skirt to near the knees.

Girls Grow Up More Quickly than Do Boys

Often Ahead of Them in Their Lessons.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Question—"I feel worried because my son, though a year older than his sister, does not seem as mature or responsible as she. Do you think this means he is going to be one of those men who never grow up? I've seen a number of them and they make life hard for their wives and mothers."

Answer:—With little other information, one can't answer wisely, but I should be inclined to say that you have no cause for worry. Little daughters seem to grow into women faster than little boys grow into men. They frequently advance academically, too, at a faster pace than boys. Physically they mature earlier and more rapidly.

Nature has to get girls ready for the big job of motherhood and she can't waste any time about it. It's a serious and responsible business, all that a little girl has ahead of her—to bear and care for and rear a child. So we mothers often find that less of the little girl survives in our grown daughters or even growing-up daughters, than survives in the man or nearly grown-up son. How often we hear women say of their husbands with that touch of the maternal, "He's nothing but a great big boy." But do you ever hear a husband say of his wife, "She's nothing but a little girl, after all?"

United German Choruses Given Critic's Praise

Appear at North Shore Festival.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Male choral singing of huge dimensions took the center of the stage at the North Shore Music festival in Evanston last evening. The United German Male choruses, about one thousand strong, were the stars of the evening, singing part of the time under the baton of Mr. Stock and part under that of their regular director, Karl Reckzeh. The regular festival chorus of six hundred flanked them on either side, and this vast throng of singers with the Chicago Symphony orchestra in front made a densely populated stage.

It is impossible to describe the volume of enormous tone that comes from a great body of singers. There is no need for them to become noisy to produce the effect. As a matter of fact the United German Male choruses are as well disciplined in the virtues of singing softly as any large group one is likely to meet. But their tone, whether soft or loud, seemed to come from everywhere and nowhere and to fill the spacious enclosure of the Patten gymnasium as though it were being poured from all directions instead of merely the eastern end. That is its great virtue, differentiating it from all other singing.

They began with a Beethoven song whose translated title is "The Heavens with Praise," to which Mr. Reckzeh had written the orchestral accompaniment, and continued with a song of Mr. Reckzeh's own, "The Castle by the Sea." The composer here showed that he knows voices and their capabilities, not to speak of having a thorough acquaintance of the idiom in which to write a ballad for male chorus. This was performed under his own direction and made an excellent impression.

Then came a number which Mr. Stock is not able to present as often as he perhaps would like to do. It was the finale of Liszt's "Faust" Symphony, for orchestra, male chorus, and tenor solo, the solo being sung by Eugene Dressler. This movement contains the daftest and most attractive music that Liszt was able to devise in the whole symphony as far as the orchestra is concerned, and the huge boom of the chorus at the end gave it a rousing, not to say exciting, climax.

A brief pause for the intermission and they sang three unaccompanied German songs to loud and continued applause. At the end all joined in the choral finale of Ernest Bloch's "America," a song which the composer fondly hoped would become a national anthem, but which will probably not displant "The Star Spangled Banner."

Meanwhile Mr. Stock had interspersed some orchestral numbers in the program, one being the movement from Gliere's symphony telling about the giant brigand who whistled like a nightingale and blew to earth thick forests, fine music with an unfailingly comic program note.

SCHOOL CONCERT

Whether they beamed fondly stageward with parental pride, or cocked a critical musician's ear, members of the audience that heard the fifth annual senior high school concert at Orchestra hall last night got far more than they had bargained on or paid for. Every phase of the program presented by the chorus of 200 voices, the orchestra of 160 pieces, and the adult artists headed by J. Lewis Browne, director of music in the public schools, was surprisingly ambitious and valiantly executed.

Judging by the deafening applause that greeted every offering of the hundreds of boys and girls who crowded the big stage to its uttermost corners, there were no favorites to the audience. Yet the insistent clamor that produced an encore by the unaccompanied chorus in the first half of the program featured, "Come With Me to Romany," a composition of Mr. Browne, as the most likely candidate for such honors. The piece is a lilting, gamin melody typical of the gypsy spirit.

Oscar W. Anderson, supervisor of orchestral music, conducted the orchestra in the overture to "Rienzi," opening the concert. An incredible number of cellos and an even greater number of violins, handled with dexterity by the boys and girls wielding the bows, built up the composition expertly to the crashing finale. They took the fortissimo passages enthusiastically and the pianissimo with commendable subtlety for so youthful and so large a group.

Jane Anderson at the piano and Le Roy Wetzel at the organ contributed largely to the success of more than one number by the combined orchestra and chorus, notably the lengthy and tricky choral ode, "The Sun Worshipers." Special honors in this selection, played in three individual parts, went to the guest artists, Elsa Harthan Arendt, soprano, and Arthur Kraft, tenor. K. McL.

NEGRO CHORUS

James A. Mundy presented his Negro choristers and jubilee singers in a two-hour concert under the sponsorship of the Chicago Urban league in Mandel hall on the University of Chicago campus last night.

Mr. Mundy, one of the colored directors each summer at the Chicagoland Music Festival conducted by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, took on a new rôle in his latest program, playing the piano for 10 young Negro lads who sang a tender number, "Have You Forgotten?" and a rollicking one, "Laugh Boys, Laugh," the later proving quite catching, the audience laughing and applauding at the same time. The piano part gave to Mr. Mundy his third talent, the first two being his ability as a teacher, which was clearly shown in the work of the young singers, and his directing of the choristers in such varied numbers as "The Hallelujah Chorus" and what has become one of Chicago's favorites, "Joshua Fit de Battle of Jericho."

Mr. Mundy had a large group of able assistant, especially praiseworthy being James Durham, tenor, director and soloist of the Broadway Methodist church; Helen Curtis, soprano, who brought an encore with her lead in the "Italian Street Song"; John Burdette, made famous when he sang "Old Man River" at THE TRIBUNE festival in Soldiers' field; Margaret Allison Bond, concert pianist, and Walter E. Gossette, assistant conductor, and Cleo Holloway, accompanist.

Soloists of the evening included Mary Johnson, George Bizelle, Roy Thompson, and Hattie Pipes. Mrs. Wendell E. Green is chairman of the research committee of the Chicago Urban league, under whose management the concert was presented. P. M.

Smith College Graduates

MISS SUSAN MILLER.

MISS ELEANOR CUSHMAN.

Miss Cushman and Miss Miller are two Winnetkans who will receive their degrees from Smith college in June. Miss Cushman, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wesley Cushman of 779 Bryant avenue, prepared for college at the North Shore Country Day school in Winnetka and while in college majored in English. Miss Miller, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Southworth Miller of 647 Spruce street, also prepared at the North Shore Country Day school. Her major study in college was psychology, while among her extra-curricular activities were athletics, the presidency of her dormitory, dramatics, and commencement committee. [Chidnoff Photos.]

THE STAGE

Helen Hayes will give her last performance of "The Good Fairy" at the Harris theater tonight. "Hay Fever," now at the Adelphi with Constance Collier as its star, and "A Church Mouse," at the Playhouse with Louise Groody and Ernest Truex in the leading rôles, will close their engagements and their careers tomorrow night.

George White's "Scandals," at the Civic Opera house, and "The Devil Passes," at the Selwyn, will end their seasons a week from tomorrow night. After this process of folding up for the summer has been completed, the Chicago playbills will be two in number—"Rhapsody in Black," at the Apollo, and "Counsellor-at-Law," at the Erlanger. The only new show in sight is "Clowns in Clover," a revue which will be staged at the Grand Opera house June 12.

All of which suggests that the period of the national political conventions will contain little theatrical activity.

When "The Devil Passes" ends its successful month at the Selwyn, a week from tomorrow night, Arthur Byron and Diana Wynyard will proceed to Hollywood in fulfillment of cinema contracts. Basil Rathbone will go to England to combine a vacation with some acting for the "pictures."

Cecilia Loftus' special matinée program at the Selwyn this afternoon may be the prelude to a tour in her old specialty of imitations and character impressions. Today's performance, in which Miss Loftus will be assisted by Alice Mock, opera soprano, will begin at 2:45 p. m. The final number will be an impression by Miss Loftus of Sarah Bernhardt in a scene from the tragedy "Izeyl."

A special performance of Fritz Blocki's drama, "The World Between," will be given in the Studebaker theater Monday night, June 6, under the auspices of the Musical Art Council of Chicago. The proceeds will be devoted to the organization's musical scholarships fund. C. C.

Vegetable Has Zesty Flavor in Spring Stew

Lamb with Fresh Peas Today's Suggestion.

BY MARY MEADE.

Are you springifying your menus with stews? Do—and don't ever be guilty of thinking that stews are the special property of below zero weather. For a whole army of spring vegetables is on the market to take these harmonies of flavor out of the winter class and bring them up to the minute. And the result—spring stews as flavorful and hunger tempting as any dish you could conceivably offer a critical family of gourmets.

When you're looking around for vegetables to dress up the spring stew, choose with an eye for flavor, color, and texture. Green peas, new asparagus, baby carrots, tomatoes—all add delectable flavor and accent the meat's own tastiness.

I said meat. Of course there may be perfectly scrumptious vegetable concoctions with not a bit of meat. All-vegetable stews with perhaps beef broth or bouillon cubes to give them just a suggestion of meatiness—such dishes will give you an excellent dinner dish when eggs or croquettes took care of the protein need earlier in the day. However, if meat it is—then give a thought to the cuts you select. Stewing, or cooking in low, moist heat for a long period, is a good way to break down tough fibers. And our economical answer to that is—use inexpensive, not-so-tender cuts and stew them tender. In beef we use the shoulder, round, flank, chuck, short ribs and neck. In lamb we buy meat from the shoulder, breast, neck, or shanks, and from veal come the breast and flank pieces.

LAMB SMOTHERED IN GREEN PEAS.
2 pounds breast of lamb
2 cloves
1 tablespoon parsley
1 tablespoon minced onion
2 cups green peas
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon fat, melted
Salt and pepper to taste

Cut the lamb in two inch chunks, cover with water and cook until tender. Remove the meat from the broth, saving the broth, and fry the lamb squares slightly in one tablespoon of fat in a hot skillet. Return the meat to the broth and add the parsley, onion, cloves, and peas. Cook slowly till peas are tender, then add the flour and fat which have been blended to a smooth paste with a little cold milk. Stir well and cook about ten minutes. Pile the lamb in a serving dish and blanket with peas and sauce.

"To err is human—" And lest we forget—may we correct an error? Quite some time ago we gave you the recipe for graham cracker pie, told you the ingredients for the custard and for the cracker crust, but, alas, omitted to tell you to cook the custard in a double boiler before pouring it into the crust. One of our readers who discovered the error and advised us of it suggested that perhaps the crust should have been pre-baked. However, this is not necessary and seldom done in this kind of pie.

Three Major Theater Groups United on Subscription Plan

A merger of play producers of national importance to form a circuit for the offering of high grade dramas on a subscription basis was announced last night. The firms that have entered into this agreement are the Theater Guild, the Erlanger Amusement Enterprises, and the Messrs. Shubert, the latter being the backers of the Dramatic League of Chicago.

Plays of special interest to subscription audiences will be offered next season under the name of this new organization, which will be called the American Theater society. Under this arrangement Chicago subscribers to the Theater Guild and the Dramatic League will be provided with an identical program of plays at a single theater. The plays will be selected by a committee of seven, representing the three parent firms.

The circuit will include Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Washington, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Cleveland, Detroit, Kansas City, and Baltimore.

SYNOPSIS.

Esmee Sully spends her forlorn young life between the office, where she is an inefficient typist, and a dismal home. Mrs. Sully loves her three children blindly, but doesn't know how to take care of their spiritual or physical needs. Cynthia, the oldest, has been deserted by her husband. Lew, a year older than Esmee, has gotten into serious trouble. Esmee can barely remember the days before her father's death when they had had a cheerful home. Jimmy Consadine forces Lew to introduce him to Esmee. Lew warns Esmee she'll make trouble unless she keeps away from Jimmy. She is fascinated by Jimmy's grand manner, but finds him an unmanageable lover. Lew gets in a jam and asks Esmee to get him money. She's afraid to ask Jimmy. She meets Arthur Twining at the home of a former woman employer. He is attentive to Esmee, impressed by her beauty and guilelessness. In her anguish she tells him her troubles and he offers to help. Arthur's roommate is Michael Marriott, a dissipated young playwright, imbued with the futility of life. When Esmee meets him it's love at first sight. Esmee understands his need of her is real. Jimmy finds the money which Twining has loaned Esmee in her possession and threatens trouble. Esmee has a dinner engagement with Michael. Jimmy meets her as she leaves her office, and she promises to drive with him to the country the following Sunday. When Esmee gets to Michael's apartment she is met by Twining and a Mrs. Cowley, but no Michael. She has dinner with them, and when she returns home finds Michael waiting there for her. He has been drinking heavily.

INSTALLMENT XI.

A SORRY LOVE.

"Esmee!" Michael began, suddenly and passionately. "O God! Why do I drink. I don't know. I started after I finished my play . . . while I was working on it I was happy. I mean, not happy on the outside—not laughing, but satisfied. Then when it was produced it was a success . . . everybody flattered me; I'd done a good job . . . I was tired—tense. My job was done and I didn't see what else. Now I can't stop. I can't want to stop. I can't find anything, any sense in anything. You do a good job, your best, and then you see that you're nothing but a buffoon after all, making a d—dam' fool of yourself to amuse the populace . . ."

"Michael . . . I'm sorry, dear . . ."

"Esmee . . . put your hand over my eyes. Tell me——" There was somethink like a sob in his voice. "Tell me anything that's worth living for, Esmee."

Never before in her life had any human creature turned to her like this—no one had needed her like this. And she, she alone, could understand, could comprehend that he was horribly wounded—lost, alone. She could divine the dark complexities of his spirit. She sat down beside him and put her arm about his shoulders as if to shelter and protect him.

"It's my brother Michael, Lew, go away."

"Michael . . ." she began, uncertain, doubtful, desperately anxious to help him, "can't you just enjoy little things, dear? I mean, just sunny days, and flowers? I mean, Michael, wouldn't you like to have an Irish terrier, things like that?"

"O, darling baby!" he cried. "Do you?"

"Yes, I do! O Michael, I can't help thinking it's a mistake to think about life, you know. I mean, in that enormous, awful sort of way. It's just days, Michael; some nice days, and some rather horrible."

"Are you crying?"

"Just because you're so unhappy, Michael."

"O, darling, Esmee, you don't know. I've thrown everything away. There was another play I was going to write until I saw it wasn't any use."

"Tell me about it, Michael," she said.

"I can't," he said.

"He can't be like this!" she thought. "I mustn't let him be like this! Please, God, let me find a way to help my dear Michael . . ."

They were both silent for a time. She thought:

"This room will never look the same to me again after this. I guess nothing's ever going to be the same again . . ."

She had felt before that her burden of anxiety, dread, and responsibility was crushing her. But now that Michael gave his unhappy soul into her hands she accepted this new and most appalling obligation without question. She could do it. Whatever was asked of her she would give.

"Look here! Where were you?" asked Marriott, suddenly.

"I was—just delayed. I got there after six, and you'd gone."

"Then what did you do, Esmee? Were you angry?"

"Of course, I wasn't angry. Only sorry you weren't there. They thought maybe you'd come later. We went to dinner, Mr. Twining and a girl called Mrs. Cowley.

"That's Claire. My sister."

"O, your sister, Michael!"

"Why do you say it like that? Look here! Wasn't Claire nice to you?"

"Yes she was!"

"She can be nice," he said. "And she can be very otherwise. I want to know, Esmee. How did she talk to you?"

"She was kind, Michael. Awfully kind and gentle."

"I thought she would be. She said she would be. Did she ask you for this week-end?"

"Yes. But I can't go this week, Michael."

"You've got to, Esmee!" he cried.

"It's no use trying to explain anything to him now," she thought. "He couldn't understand."

She drew his head down on her shoulder.

"Tomorrow——" she began, when the door was flung open and Lew stood on the threshold.

"Who's this?" he said.

Esmee rose.

"Go away, Lew!" she said, sternly. "You can't——"

"Who's this?" he repeated.

Marriott rose unsteadily to his feet.

"Marriott's my name," he said. "And who m—may you be?"

"It's my brother, Michael. Lew, go away."

"No," said Lew. "Not till I've thrown this fellow out."

"Lew! What's the matter with you?"

"You're a good one to ask. After what you've done. God! I wish you'd died a year ago . . . I wish you were dead now."

"You've got a very impolite brother," said Marriott.

"I don't know who this new fellow is," Lew went on. "I suppose I'm a fool to care. What does it matter after you've sold yourself to Consadine?"

Marriott made a sudden lunge forward, but Esmee caught his arm.

"Stop!" she said. "Let him alone, Michael!"

It was the first time in her life that she had spoken with authority, and her tone, the look on her face checked both the men.

"Lew," she said, "you're saying horrible, wicked things. You don't know what you're talking about."

"Don't I? Didn't you promise Consadine to go out to that roadhouse with him on Sunday?"

"Now look here!" said Marriott, "it's time some one t—taught you something. It doesn't matter what Esmee's promised, or where she goes, or whom she goes with. Whatever she does, she's lovely and good. You ought to know it."

"Clear out, you drunken clown!" said Lew.

She could not endure that.

"Lew!" she began, and stopped. For she could see it was of no use to appeal to him now. He was white and shaken with anger, and with something more than anger.

"Come on, Michael!" she said. "There's your hat."

"Where are you going?" cried Lew.

She looked at him steadily.

"I won't answer you," she said. "I won't talk to you at all now."

"And you won't go with that dam' drunken clown, either!" he shouted. "I'll see to that!"

"No!" said Esmee. "Please! . . ."

The door opened and Mrs. Sully entered. She was wearing her faded and bedraggled dressing gown; her hair was untidy. But she came in like an empress—calm, erect, sorrowful, and august. She glanced at Marriott, and at her son, and turned to Esmee.

"Esmee, my pet?" she said.

"I'm going out, Mother, with Mr. Marriott."

"You're not!" said Lew.

"Lew," said Mrs. Sully, "you mustn't worry your sister."

They were mild, singularly inadequate words, yet they had their effect. Lew looked at her, then he turned on his heel and left the room.

Marriott sat down on the sofa again, his head in his hands, his eyes closed.

"Come on, Michael!" said Esmee.

"Like—to—rest—little while," he murmured.

"You can't, Michael dear. Not here. Come on! Please get up, Michael! Please try!"

He responded to her entreaty; he rose, stood swaying a little, holding to the back of the sofa. She could not meet his eyes; her heart was leaden. This was so sorry a love.

They went down the stairs, slowly, Marriott holding to the rail.

"Esmee," he said, "where are we going?"

"You'd better go home, dear."

"No."

"I'll go with you, Michael."

Polished Look Is Desired for Chic Coiffure

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"That suave and polished look to hair" is what the well dressed head is wearing these days. And what a contrast in heads one sees at any gathering of women! I wonder whether it is the perfection, the de luxe polished look that some heads have that make other heads of hair look so dull, uninteresting and dowdy. Anyway, we do see many heads to prove what can be done to beautify hair once the urge is felt to make it an outstanding asset. I am not speaking of coiffures today so much as the actual hair quality.

I am glad to hear from hairdressing salons that women are beginning to act as if there were more to beautiful hair than just a becoming coiffure. I'm told that daily new recruits are registering for weekly and semi-weekly scalp treatments, including the one hundred hair brush strokes and brisk scalp massage with needed scalp or beautifying tonic.

Aside from the value of the treatment itself, the psychological advantage is inestimable. Just as a woman who takes facials becomes more interested in getting the best kind of makeup for herself, so will women who are going in for regular scalp and hair treatment strive for better coiffures and for better hair texture as their own individual help may provide it.

The way to get that suave and polished look does not have to rest with the professional. You can get it, yourself. But it means not being afraid to disturb the wave. If you're going to be cagey about that wave, the hair will only be waved, and will not have the polished look. But you women are skilled enough in other things. Why not learn the trick of setting your own wave with one of the wave setting lotions?

Anyway, the hair must have a certain amount of care in the way of massage and brushing every blessed night, and a good scalp treatment once or twice a week is just that much more to the good. A lot of our current young hair graying would be postponed did the scalp get a bit more care daily. As it is with waves and everything the scalp rarely ever gets touched between shampoos, in countless numbers of cases.

The surprise is that there is not more dandruff, not more scaly scalp conditions, although, heaven knows, these hair ailments are rampant enough. Use a tonic on your scalp nightly. Find out what is the best tonic for you and massage this into the scalp just for hair beauty sake.

"I have been out of work for over a year but have a chance to secure a temporary job in a place where I used to work. The job will be open next week but I cannot take it unless I get some clothes to wear. Do you think you can help me? I need a suit, size 40 or 42—I am over six feet tall—and a pair of shoes, size 11. You don't know what this will mean to me if I can get the job. J. R."

Film Actress Graduated at Studio School

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 26.—Rochelle Hudson, 18 year old Radio-RKO actress, was graduated from high school this week. She made up a one person high school class at the Radio studio, where her diploma was handed her by Mrs. Eva Nelson, the studio school teacher. Miss Hudson has had her high school tutoring by Mrs. Nelson ever since coming to Hollywood from Oklahoma in 1930.

Henry Clive, the illustrator, and Mrs. Helene Clive dropped their divorce arrangements today, the day their separation suit was to have been heard, and have announced their reconciliation.

Rin-Tin-Tin, at the age of 13, has been signed for four more pictures by Masco studio. The dog hero is still sprightly enough to go through film tests, which won his new contract.

Some quarters in Hollywood are skeptical of the reported engagement of John Gilbert and Virginia Bruce. Miss Bruce is a 22 year old blonde who was started in pictures as a schoolgirl protégé of William Beauvine, director, four years ago. Her real name is Virginia Briggs and she got her start in pictures when her aunt, Mrs. Harriet Miller, owner of a Hollywood clothing establishment, introduced her to Beauvine, who placed their girl under a five year personal contract to himself. Hollywood doubts have arisen because Gilbert and his studio have been earnestly attempting to focus attention on the fact that Miss Bruce and Gilbert depict a married couple in Gilbert's next film, "Downstairs."

Leland Collection of Lincoln Relics Will Be Displayed

Letters, books, manuscripts and articles intimately connected with the life and death of Abraham Lincoln are to be exhibited in room 919 of the Fine Arts building tomorrow and again from Tuesday to Thursday next week.

The articles were collected by the late Henry M. Leland, automobile manufacturer. Included in the exhibit are pieces of the coat the martyred President wore when he was shot, the bandage that was wrapped about his head when he died, the mahogany dining room chair he occupied in the White House, a gold headed cane which Lincoln presented to the Rev. Phineas T. Gurley, and the "Cooper Union" oval ambrotype, taken on the day that Lincoln made his famous speech at Cooper Union hall in Baltimore and regarded as the most poetic portrait ever made of him.

Relics of his earlier life are a thimble used by his mother, Nancy Hanks Lincoln; the arithmetic book the young Lincoln studied, ledgers of the Lincoln & Herndon law firm and cartoons and lithographs printed when he was a budding politician.

WALKER'S PUNCHES IN 9TH, 10TH BEAT UZCUDUN

TIGERS BATTER SOX, 11-2; RAIN HALTS 2D AT 1-1

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., May 26.—The big winning streak of the Chicago White Sox, which had reached four games, didn't come close to reaching five in a row. The Sox did everything wrong to lose the first game of a double header with the Detroit Tigers this afternoon, 11 to 2. Then, in the second game, when the Sox still were in a position to redeem themselves, a cloudburst broke loose, ending the show with the score tied at 1 to 1 in the last of the fifth.

LUKE APPLING.

There is little you need to know about the first game other than that Pat Caraway and Paul Gregory showed no pitching talent whatsoever. The Tigers made 12 hits, including a homer and a double by Johnson; the Tigers stole seven bases, including a triple steal in the fourth inning and the theft of second and third by Walker in the sixth; and the Tigers drew nine bases on balls. Winning streaks aren't prolonged on stuff like that.

Two Hits, Fly, Score Run.

In the second game the Sox made their run on two hits in the five innings played. These were singles by Blue and Hodapp, and, fortunately, came together with one out in the second, and in combination with a fly by Appling scored the tying run. Otherwise the game would have been a legal contest, with the Tigers the victors, 1 to 0. As it turned out, nothing that happened counted and the game will be played off as part of a double header Saturday.

FIRST GAME

The Sox would have conserved much of their recently gained prestige if they had stayed away from the ball park until the usual time for their appearance. Which is to say they were a pretty sorry outfit in the first game.

The Chicago defense was bad in more ways than it has been in any game this year, as the 11 to 2 score indicates, and as also indicated by the tabulation, the offense wasn't so red hot, either, except for a little flurry in the first inning. If you care to, count Hodapp's homer in the eighth, but bear in mind, please, that it was accomplished when Bridges was ruling, 10 to 1.

The Sox in that first inning got their first run and seemed in a fair way to make a few more. When they stopped with the bases full they swooned, never to regain consciousness, as witness, among other things, those seven stolen bases and those nine bases on balls.

Scores on Double Steal.

Selph in the first inning singled with one down and went to third when Seeds also singled. Kress then gave Bridges his only strikeout. Selph and Seeds engineered a double steal, Selph scoring. Blue and Hodapp walked, filling the bases, but Appling flied to Johnson. That splurge wound up the Sox offensive until Hodapp made his homer with one out in the eighth.

Though Caraway got the first five men out, it was apparent that Pat had nothing but his glove, for four of the five went out on hard smashes to Funk. Johnson, the sixth man to face Pat, knocked a homer to tie the score. Richardson singled, stole second, and went to third when Grube threw the ball into center field. He scored on Ruel's single to left. Bridges and Davis then walked to fill the bases, but Pat escaped further damage at the time by grabbing Rogell's grounder and running to first for the out.

Caraway didn't stay out of trouble long, for in the third he walked Stone on four pitches. Stone was forced by Gehringer and Gehringer went to second on Walker's single. Johnson walked, filling the bases. After Pat had thrown one ball to Richardson Gregory came in. Gehringer scored while Selph was throwing out Richardson. Ruel was given an intentional pass, which enabled Walker, Johnson, and Ruel to put over a triple steal, Walker scoring.

Not So Good, Not So Good.

It continued a very sloppy entertainment the rest of the way. In the fifth, for instance, three runs came in after Kress had thrown the ball away in an attempted toss to Appling which would have retired the side. And in the sixth Walker scored a run after singling and stealing second and third without pausing to get his breath. These things must give you some idea of the kind of game it was.

SECOND GAME

The Tigers hopped on Frasier for a run in the first inning of the second game. It was done through the media of a double to right by Rogell and a single to right by Stone.

In the second the Sox tied it up because Blue singled with one down, went to third on Hodapp's single, and

Funds Lacking; U.S. Will Trim Olympic Team

New York, May 26.—(AP)—With only $34,479, less than 10 per cent of the goal of $350,000, now in the Olympic games war chest, President Avery Brundage of the A. A. U. today notified the twenty branches of the American Olympic committee that this country's entries in the approaching games at Los Angeles will have to be reduced drastically.

Telegrams were sent to chairmen of fund raising committees throughout the country urging them to forward all money collected, but there was slight hope the response would swell the total fund appreciably.

Vetoes Postponement Plan.

At the same time, Brundage vetoed a suggestion that the games be postponed or curtailed, both from a patriotic viewpoint and because of the fact many athletes from other nations either already are on the ground or have started for Los Angeles.

"It is remarkable that in this unprecedented period of financial and industrial distress there has been practically no disturbing disorder or social unrest," he said. "Undoubtedly this is due in a large measure to the training our boys and girls have received on the field of sports.

"For this reason, if for no other, our program of amateur sport, with its high ideals and with its lofty standards of sportsmanship, merits the support of every patriotic citizen."

Concentrate on Important Sports.

The sad condition of the Olympics treasury was confirmed at a meeting here of the finance committee, when Treasurer George W. Graves of Detroit made his report. It was not altogether a surprise, as the executive committee, meeting last month at Philadelphia, had warned the American team would have to be reduced unless there was a sharp increase in contributions.

According to a retrenchment plan outlined at that meeting, the most important sports—with men's track and field topping the list—will be given preference in making up the American team. There will be no attempt to scatter the available funds over as many sports as possible.

Likewise, the failure to raise the full $350,000 will make it necessary for all committee members and officials to pay their own expenses to the games, Brundage said. The money raised will be concentrated on sending the athletes.

ABANDON TRIALS, PLAN

Los Angeles, Cal., May 26.—(AP)—Appointment of the outstanding candidates for the Olympic games instead of sending them to national tryouts was advocated today by Leslie A. Henry, president of the Pacific Southwest A. A. U., as a means of meeting the financial crisis confronting the American Olympics committee.

Henry, a member of the American Olympic committee, said thousands of dollars can be saved by simply naming the ranking stars of various sports and transporting them direct from their homes to Los Angeles.

"The fact that many of the country's best stars are living in the west, and must be sent east for trials and then brought to the Pacific coast again, is one expense the committee might save," Henry said.

PHILLIES' 19 HITS BLAST BRAVES OFF TOP RUNG

Eighth Inning Rally Brings 17 to 13 Victory.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 26.—[Special.]—The slugging Phillies piled up 19 hits today and knocked the Boston Braves out of the National league lead with a 17 to 13 victory. At the end of the third inning the Phillies seemed headed for an easy triumph after gaining a 12 to 2 lead, but at the end of the seventh they were trailing, 13 to 12. An eighth inning blast of five runs put the game on the right side of the Phils' ledger. Hurst and Lee of the Phils and Shires and Urbanski of the Braves hit homers. Score:

Recent disclosures by handbook operators that more than $1,000,000 is bet daily by Chicago race horse players has led to further information detailing the manner in which wagers ranging from 25 cents to thousands of dollars are handled.

The million dollar estimate made by persons familiar with the scope of the handbook business in the Chicago district did not include nearly $300,000 bet daily at the mutuel windows of Aurora and Sportsman's Park. With the track handle the amount of daily wagers was placed near $1,500,000.

Since that time Aurora and Sportsman's Park have closed, but Washington Park, now in the first week of its spring meeting, has kept up the total with a daily handle in access of the combined daily average at these two tracks.

Washington Park Handles $400,000.

Washington Park officials report the wagering for the first four days of the meeting is only 10 per cent below that of last year, with an average daily handle of nearly $400,000. Attendance this year has been greater, but wagers are smaller.

The handling of a million dollars daily entails a unique routine which ranges from the common $2 exchange at the corner cigar store, news stand, speakeasy or loop building lobby confectioner to an elaborate system of codes, telegraph net works and large offices especially equipped for the betting business.

In the Union depot district, where countless job seekers patrol the walks in front of employment agencies and professional panhandlers retreat from the fields of their conquests, one bookie handles nearly $7,000 daily in bets ranging from 25 cents upward. Here one can make a 20 horse parlay and from an original investment of 25 cents collect handsomely if all 20 horses finish as the better has designated.

Big Operators Use Code.

In the offices of large operators and commission men, where owners and professional gamblers place bets of hundreds and thousands of dollars, business is conducted in a language foreign to outsiders.

Owners and big plungers, who continually guard their activities to prevent word from spreading on how the "smart money" is betting, do all their wagering by code. The code is known only to the better and the bookie and in most cases no identities are made known over the wire or telephone. The bookie identifies the better by the code he uses.

To enhance the deceptiveness of the code, the owner has the choice of two words for each amount, two words for each position, and two words for each race. The code words for no bet are used to mislead wire tappers, operators or bystanders who might be seeking information.

Conversation between an owner wishing to bet $1,000 to win and $1,000 to show on his horse, or entry, in the sixth race might be carried on as follows:

"This is Eugene Sheldon of Broadhead."

"Hello, Eugene. What is it?"

"Why, Bruce told me Old Kickapoo is hot today. Bet me $800 on him to win."

The name Eugene in the code stands for $2,000; Sheldon designates the bet is to be placed win and show and

YALE OUTLINES DRASTIC CUT IN SPORT PROGRAM

Reduces Grid Schedule and Bans Scouting.

Wins Hutchins' Praise

DR. ROBERT MAYNARD HUTCHINS, president of the University of Chicago, a Yale alumnus and former dean of the Yale law school, last night described Yale's new athletic policy as "looking in the right direction in making athletics a student enterprise."

"I have not had an opportunity to study carefully the new policy at Yale," he said, "but it seems to look toward a larger physical education program for all students, a step in the right direction, and a step toward realization of the true place of athletics in education."

New Haven, Conn., May 26.—(AP)—Drastic curtailments in Yale's intercollegiate athletic program with shifting of primary emphasis to intramural sports for "fun and informality" were outlined today by President James Rowland Angell in announcing acceptance of a survey committee's recommendations.

The new program, to go into effect after the residential college plan is established in 1933, will see reduction of the varsity football schedule to five games, stringent cuts in athletic costs, free admission of undergraduates to all games, and elimination of scouting, class teams, and the 150 pound football team.

Harvard, Princeton in Sympathy.

Instead stress will be laid on sports for all students, with as little practice and as much competition as they want.

Harvard and Princeton authorities have expressed sympathy with the general objectives, said President Angell, who had named George T. Adee and Malcolm P. Aldrich, alumni, and Prof. R. Selden Rose, chairman of the Yale Athletic association board of control to study the university's sports program.

Urging that all athletic budgets be reduced, the committee said "the tremendous cost of athletics at Yale, as well as at all other universities, is the outgrowth of the nation-wide wave of post-war extravagance and was made possible by the enormous athletic receipts of that period."

Urges Cut in Varsity Squads.

It recommended cutting varsity squads substantially to give the fullest possible opportunity for college competition, placing varsity training tables in the college dining halls and eliminating organized practice before registration day in the fall.

"There should be no organized group practice in sports out of their normal season," the committee said. "This is not intended to apply to informal, voluntary spring football or fall rowing and baseball practice for those not engaged in other forms of athletics.

Objects to Scouting.

"There should be no scouting of opponents in any sport, even if the opponent continues to scout Yale."

Limiting the varsity football schedule to five games with traditional rivals and without intersectional contests is proposed to eliminate "setup games." The committee suggested the football schedule include informal games without gate receipts.

It recommended adoption of a budget for the University Athletic association "and after the debt is paid off, primary consideration in making these budgets should be given to free admission of undergraduates to all games."

Turning to the residential college plan, the committee proposed that only a skeleton form of athletic organization be established for these units and that the details be left to the students.

It recommended that all coaching of the college teams be on an amateur basis, with students and interested graduates assisting. Contests would be arranged between Yale colleges, Harvard houses and similar units at Princeton and other schools. These would be informal, with no gate receipts.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

TRACK MEETS.

SEVERAL Helpers have advanced suggestions for attracting more spectators to track and field games following The Wake's discussion of the small crowd present at the Big Ten event last Saturday.

One reader blamed small crowds in part to lack of showmanship and cited how track attendance, once negligible at Omaha, had been built up through the success of the Cornhusker athletes under Coach Schulte and their way of displaying that skill.

Another criticized the placing of the finish for the one mile relay race, the most exciting event of the day, on the far turn instead of directly in front of the stands. Spectators could tell who was ahead either by the numbers, if they caught those numbers passing the stand, or from the announcer. They could not see the faces of the runners as they started, or the ones to follow, as would have been possible were those waiting with batons to pick up the chase right in front. We don't know why the race was started from that part of the track.

Helper T. J. C. makes this comment: "While indoor track meets are held in New York successfully, outdoor meets are rarely held and never patronized to any extent. I think the reason is the same as in Chicago. There are only about twenty good golfing Saturdays. Then there are baseball games and horse races. So your prospective spectator chooses between being a competitor at golf, attending a ball game, horse race, or track meet. He must be an enthusiast to pick the latter.

"One solution of this might be to hold the track meets at night. We have precedent in Chicago, the meet between the British empire and United States. This was held on a Wednesday night during the week of the national air races and despite the counter-attractions drew approximately 25,000 spectators.

"If conference basketball games were held in the afternoon instead of at night they would have much smaller attendance."

Possibly—yes, probably—Big Ten track meets would draw larger crowds if held at night. Yet one hesitates to advocate that. Outdoor sports bring better performances when held in the sunshine and open air. Baseball is played at night in some cities, but admittedly for financial reasons.

The Wake's regret is not over small gate receipts so much as apparent lack of interest. Fortunately, gate receipts, while welcome, are not the impelling factor in this matter. Track athletics at most colleges are not self-supporting, but along with numerous other activities reach into football returns for their maintenance. We still see no solution unless a stronger ballyhoo—perhaps of the kind used to build up title prize fights and professional sports events.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 26.—(AP)—The Philadelphia National League ball club pared its roster to the required 23 today with the release of Russ Scarritt, outfielder, and George Knothe, utility infielder, to Fort Worth of the Texas League. The Phils now have ten pitchers, three catchers, five infielders and five outfielders.

A NICE WALTZ TURNS BRAWL; PAULINO IS CUT

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 26.—This was an uproarious evening in Madison Square Garden. Mickey Walker beat Paulino Uzcudun in a ten round fight, the last 2 rounds of which had more the appearance of a major operation done with a meat axe than an athletic exhibition.

PAULINO UZCUDUN.

These last two rounds, which were the only two fighting rounds of an otherwise laborious bout, were the most lurid observed in a New York ring in the present renaissance, begun in 1920. The fight entered this phase just at the close of round eight when Paulino, having ordered a punch just as the bell clanged, was unable to stop delivery and popped Walker on the ear. This annoyed Mickey and he let fly a petulant right hand swipe which opened Paulino's left cheek.

Only a few minutes before the assembled sportsmen, who had come to salute Jimmy Walker, the mayor, had been hooting the fighters and some one upstairs, in nasty contempt, had thrown a nickel into the ring which rolled dead at Mickey Walker's feet and was picked up by Jack Kearns, his manager, with the remark that a nickel is money nowadays.

Mickey Plays Rough.

Paulino's seconds staunched his wound with some white powder and sent him out for round nine. Mickey met him with a right swing above the left eye and within thirty seconds both athletes looked as though they had crawled out of a vat of red ink. Alert to improve his advantage, Walker grabbed Paulino, yanked him in close, held him with his left arm and raked the palm of his right glove busily up and down the Spainiard's mutilated countenance, scuffing the wound with the laces.

When he stopped it appeared as if both boys had been run over by a yard engine, and so they floundered through for the rest of the round, swinging, grunting, and so gruesome the pair of them, that the referee, Willie Lewis, when he wished them to break, stood off fastidiously and clapped his hands, unwilling to touch them.

Paulino Tries Again.

Paulino's seconds performed some more simple home surgery on this second wound during the interval and sent their old man out for the tenth wearing another white dab above his eye. Walker drew a bead on this with a right, knocked the patch half way across the ring, and resumed the mischievous chafing with the glove laces.

The rival pairs of seconds couldn't really identify their men when the tenth round ended but Abe Attell, who was assisting Kearns in Walker's corner, said, "I think the little guy is our guy," so they grabbed him and swabbed him off. Sure enough it was Walker.

At the decision there was a whooping cheer from the crowd mingled with some dissenting boos.

Everybody Watches Vacant Chairs.

There was a strained air of expectancy in the house as the preliminary fighters labored along in their bouts. A large police sergeant, very moist in the sticky summer night indoors, bounced busily from the arena to the lobby and back and forth awaiting some one. John F. Curry, the head of Tammany Hall, sat in his front chair a couple of seats from William Muldoon, that remarkable old man who always seems to admit that all the human virtues reside in him, and Mr. Muldoon sat beside the young woman whom he recently adopted in order that she might be his heir. James A. Farley, the chairman of the New York prize fight commission and also of the state Democratic state committee, sat across the aisle, also in the first row, and to his right there were two vacant seats.

Finally, as the last preliminary was under way, there rose a scattered crackle of cheers in the hall and in an instant it swelled to a roar that seemed to make the roof rise and fall again. And down the aisle, swaggering and shadow boxing with short punches, came the little mayor who had sassed back Judge Samuel Seabury and made him quit cold, as the boys insisted, after two days of conversational fighting in the great exposé of New York City financial affairs.

Fans Get Up and Yell.

The patrons leaped on their chairs to yell and wave their arms and two young patrolmen of the official guard stood at Walker's side until he settled into his seat beside Farley, keeping the handshakers off.

They put a phonograph record on the loud speaking apparatus to play the customers out of the house at the close. It opened with a crashing peal and after jabbering around with the customary preliminary noises settled down to the stirring strains of "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

Ruffing limited the Senators to five hits. Alvin Crowder, who pitched for Washington, yielded only seven, but they came in clusters. With two down in the sixth Combs singled and Sewell was safe on an error by Cronin. Babe Ruth walked to fill the bases, and then came Gehrig's homer.

Jim Londos, claimant of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, will meet Gino Garibaldi, former southern Illinois coal miner, in a finish match at Wrigley field on June 9, it was announced yesterday by Promoter Doc Krone.

Cubs Back in First Place for Brief Stand at Home

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs, after being bounced around considerably during a week's journey, will be back at home this afternoon to attempt a big revival prior to starting out again on their toughest road trip on the season. They can start their revival as occupants of first place, that spot having been returned to them yesterday as the result of what happened to the Braves.

The bouncing while at Cincinnati and St. Louis was extensive enough to cause four defeats in six starts, but some of this was to be expected. A team that had been fielding as the Cubs had for several weeks was bound to stagger into a temporary depression on defense. It was unfortunate, of course, that one or two errors should cause the loss of three games apparently won, but those are the things that happen at intervals to a team unable to hit sufficiently to protect itself against inevitable fielding mishaps.

Warneke to Face Reds.

The first act of the limited at home appearance of the Bruins will be shared today with the Cincinnati Reds, who, since the kind assistance of player help from other teams, have been right up among the elite. The Reds now have established themselves as tough customers and they are likely to remain that way if their pitchers, as a staff, don't collapse.

For the opener of the two games with the budding Rhinelanders Manager Hornsby intends to let the youthful Lon Warneke reel off another chapter of his pitching serial which for a time was quite a sensation. The Arkansas farmer boy shot down five straight wins before succumbing to the Phillies a bit more than a week ago. His next start was against the same outfit he must face today. That also resulted in a trimming, but he didn't relinquish the decision until the eleventh inning, and then only by 3 to 2.

Warneke had spanked the Reds twice before the above mentioned setback, so by the law of averages the jolt probably was due. By the same law of reckoning he should be able to get back on a winning basis today, but he'll have to receive some hitting help from his mates, who will be asked to look over Ray Kolp.

Fortified with Pitchers.

By having two off days in this week's schedule Hornsby has himself well fortified with pitchers eager for work and that condition probably is something for which Old Man Good Luck should be given a rising vote of thanks. The schedule for the present stay calls for a single affair with the Reds tomorrow, a double header with the Pirates on Sunday, a double bill with the champion Cardinals on Monday and a single game with the same club the two following days. Seven battles in five days assure ample labor for the pitchers who think they need it.

Unless business picks up considerably right soon Hornsby may have to bring about one or two alterations in the lineup he has been employing. Nothing was said to Bill Jurges about the loose way he looked after his affairs at short during the Cincinnati and St. Louis visits, but if the ex-bank clerk continues to give away runs he might be rested until such time as his confidence is restored. That would mean Woody English back on short and Stanley Hack on third.

Outfield Change Likely.

The outfield trio also must show improvement to keep Hornsby from exercising his rights as manager. Stephenson has been carrying his part of the burden both at bat and in the field, but the two others—Moore and Richbourg—have been slightly in arrears with timely hits. Ki Cuyler's return would help, but that can't be counted upon for several more weeks. Meanwhile Hornsby, if he thinks a change necessary, either will have to move into the outfield himself or give Marvin Gudat, the only extra fly chaser, a thorough test.

The acquisition of an outfielder able to supply the missing power is only a remote possibility. The club is willing enough to pay big money for the missing commodity, but the only men now available for purchase are no better than the humpty dumpty variety. Hornsby doesn't want that kind.

Gaston Is Sox Choice to Face Tigers Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., May 26.—Back to normalcy for the White Sox tomorrow and in the one game it probably will be Gaston vs. Sorrell. Ted Lyons may get the call, however.

Sam Jones and Tommy Thomas did not accompany the Sox to Detroit. Sam is doctoring the spike wound received in the first game of last Sunday's double header in Chicago, and Tommy has a throat infection, but may be able to join the team in Cleveland.

Bob Seeds slid into the right field wall going after Gehringer's foul fly in the third inning of the second game. He was knocked cold and after several minutes' delay he was revived and wanted to return to his post. Manager Fonseca sent in Fothergill, however. Fothergill soon got into action, for on screen to pull down Gehringer's drive, which with an ounce more would have driven in two runs and put Charley on third.

In the first game this afternoon Harry Davis had only one putout at first base in the first 7⅓ innings. He had only three in the entire contest.

came home on Appling's fly to Johnson.

The tie prevailed throughout the Tiger end of the inning, partly because Johnson sought to learn if Berry was throwing as inefficiently as Grube did in the first game. Johnson beat out an infield roller to start the inning and went to second on Richardson's sacrifice. He was sunk when he tried to steal third, and Frasier fanned Hayworth.

Appling Stops Tigers.

Two of a series of brilliant fielding plays by Luke Appling kept the Sox in the game in the last of the fourth inning. Luke slid on his tummy to get Wyatt's grounder and threw him out. Then he made a fine running catch in center to grab Davis' fly. Rogell then singled and went to third on Stone's single, after which Stone stole second without a play. At this point Seeds was injured going after Gehringer's foul. When Fothergill relieved Seeds and the game resumed, Gehringer seemed to have scored a triple to right, but Fothergill backed against the barrier and made the third putout.

With one out and Wyatt on first as a result of a single, the game was suspended in the last of the fifth because of a heavy storm.

SUNSET RIDGE'S GOLFERS WIN IN LEAGUE OPENER

Beat Briargate in Most Decisive Match.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The home club golfers came home in front yesterday when the North Shore Golf league, composed of twelve clubs, opened yesterday at the Sunset Ridge Country club. The Sunset Ridge team scored a 30 to 6 victory over Briargate, while Illinois' team counted the second greatest number of points in defeating Knollwood, 28½ to 7½. Westmoreland is in third place as the result of defeating Bob o' Link, 26 to 10.

The North Shore league will continue play throughout the season, with the team scoring the greatest number of points winning the championship.

Rolfe Leads with 73.

Last year the league was composed of ten six man teams. This year Sunset Ridge and Exmoor were admitted and the membership of each team enlarged to eight. Six member clubs will be hosts to the league this year, with the remaining sextet providing the scene of action for 1933. Play is decided on the basis of three points for the individual and three for each best ball foursome, a point being awarded to the player and twosome ahead at the end of each nine and also at end of the match.

Rial Rolfe led the Sunset Ridge octet yesterday with the best medal score of the day, a 73, three over par. Billy Childs contributed a 75, while Jack Westland, runnerup for the national amateur championship last year, came in with a 76. Rolfe's card follows:

Out—
Par	444	434	534	—35
Rolfe	554	534	533	—37
In—
Par	444	443	534	—35—70
Rolfe	453	543	444	—36—73

Skokie Match Deferred.

Among the twosomes scoring grand slams against their opponents yesterday by winning all nine points in a foursome were Westland and Rolfe; Howard Wattrus and Richard White of Illinois; H. D. Raymond and E. H. Evans of Evanston; N. Armel and G. Bichler of Wilmette, and Dr. Lasater and E. L. Essley of Westmoreland.

Skokie and Glen View were the two members of the league not competing. Their match was deferred due to the failure of the Skokie team to appear for play.

The next North Shore league matches will be played on June 9 at Illinois. Others are scheduled as follows: June 23, Wilmette; July 14, Westmoreland; Aug. 4, Glen View; Aug. 25, Bob o' Link, with a final get together day marked for Sept. 15 at Exmoor.

Robert McKeating won first low gross yesterday with a 90 in the tournament conducted by the Chicago Laundrymen's club at Acacia. William Erickson and W. N. Bready tied for second with 92s. B. Pinson and C. R. Conley were next with 93s. More than 100 competed.

J. A. Schwartz captured low net with a card of 97—23—69. J. O. McNally was second with 99—28—71, and P. E. Norris third with 96—23—73. H. E. Nordin won the blind bogey with 109—26—83.

Silver Lake Golf and Country club, 151st street and 82d avenue, will include a blind bogey, flag tourney, low gross, and low net among the special events to be held over the holiday week-end.

A number of Chicagoans are to compete in the holiday golf program at the Four Seasons club, Pembine, Wis., according to Peter B. Carey, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, who is chairman of the club's sports and pastimes committee.

Glenwood Golf club will introduce a pick-your-par event on Memorial day. A player going 36 holes is allowed to pick his best eighteen and if it equals Glenwood's par, 72, or under, he will be awarded a set of matched woods offered by President Morris Norian.

Memorial Day Motorcycle Races Draw Field of 25

Scott Powell, Lowell, Ind.; Claude Ewers, Chicago Heights, and Fritz Schultes, Joliet, will be among the 25 riders in the motorcycle races which will be held at Monee, Ill., 12 miles south of Oak Forest, on Memorial day. Chris Willy, Chicago, and Leo Melcher, Joliet, also will compete.

8 Unknowns Survive in British Golf

MUIRFIELD, Scotland, May 26.—(AP)—The British amateur golf championships field, now lacking foreign competition, moved into the quarter-final stage over sodden greens and through windy, rainy weather today with hardly a golfer left who is known outside his own club.

Eric McRuvie, former Irish champion and a Walker cup nominee, and Eric Fiddian, 22 year old player from Stroudbridge, are the favorites among the eight survivors of the field of almost 300 which teed off Monday. McCruvie today won, 4 and 3, from Jack McClean, the youngster who put out the Walker cup captain, T. A. Torrance, yesterday.

John De Forest, young Londoner who learned his golf in the United States and was a finalist against Eric Martin Smith last year, won both his matches and will meet Sam MacKinley of Glasgow in the quarter-finals. The other survivors are the Irish veterans, Lionel Munn and Mike Crowley, and William Tulloch and John Reynard.

NEW TRIER PAIR DEFEATS STATE TENNIS CHAMPS

Ray Bartleman and Bill Clover of New Trier provided the first upset of the Stagg prep tennis tourney yesterday by defeating Hoffer and Sprague of Joliet township, state doubles champions, in a second round match on the Midway courts. The scores were 4-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Bickel of Oak Park displayed the best form of the meet so far in defeating Miles of Hyde Park in a third round singles match. The fourth day of play will begin this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Who's Who in Women's Golf

By Betty Eckersall

MRS. ISABELLE MEANY.

MRS. ISABELLE MEANY.

Mrs. Isabelle Meany is the star golfer of the Cog-Hill Golf and Country club by dint of her course record of 82 established last year, and her club championship. She also is the low handicap player at Cog-Hill.

Mrs. Meany has competed in Chicago district events for the last four years. Last year, she was runner-up to Mrs. Rose Marshall in the public parks tournament. Later she reached the semi-finals of the Cook county tourney.

She admits golf is her chief interest in life, although she participates in bowling and archery in the winter months. Her husband first interested her in golf. Despite her extensive play, she still takes lessons for three weeks at the beginning of each season.

"To me golf rounds out my activities and domestic duties. I met a woman here at the club, a former school chum of mine, I hadn't seen in more than fifteen years. Her children have all married and she has taken up golf for her diversion. My own daughter is twenty-one and I know that golf right now for me is a perfect preventative for boredom."

Mrs. Meany believes in plenty of practice.

"I have one bad fault in competition and that is fear of the gallery and the remarks it makes," she said. "Until I overcome this fault I am not going to attempt any of the outstanding events. I will, of course, compete in the park tournaments this year and also the local Chicago district event. If I score well enough I might attempt a Western tournament or two next year."

13 Americans Start Play in British Meet

BY EUGENE SPECK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAUNTON, North Devon, England, May 26.—Over the dune wastes of Saunton, thirteen American women golfers tomorrow will begin a renewal of heretofore futile attempts to win the British women's championship.

Eight of the thirteen are the six regulars and two reserves which beat the British 5½ to 3½ at Wentworth last Saturday. That was the first American victory over the choice of British women golfers.

Until the American girls arrived at Saunton this victory was considered good augury. As soon as they had played the course, however, they came back pessimistic and severely critical of the course. From the clubhouse it does not look like a golf course at all.

What! No Fairways?

"There are no fairways to speak of on the course which is covered with tufts and rushes. The greens are very small and fast," Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare declared. "Tee shots must be controled not only for direction, but for distance on a 300 odd yard hole calling for a spoon or even an iron from the tee and a brassie afterwards to reach the green safely."

One hundred and forty-two golfers are entered in tomorrow's and Saturday's qualifying rounds. The lowest 64 cards Saturday night will be drawn for the competition proper beginning Monday, when half the field will be eliminated over the first 18 holes. The 32 contestants left will play 36 holes Tuesday, with semi-finals over 36 holes on Wednesday and the 36 hole final on Thursday.

Maureen's 75 Best.

Among the Americans, Maureen Orcutt's 75 was the best practice round. Virginia Van Wie is playing well and is touted as a strong probability. Mrs. Ware is a little wobbly, but with Helen Hicks completes the list of the strongest American challengers.

Other United States entrants are Mrs. O. S. Hill, Mrs. Louis Cheney, Mrs. Harley Higbie, Virginia Holzderber, Mrs. C. K. Bellew, Mrs. William Ferris, Rosamond Sherwood, and Ruth Batchelder.

LOU SCHNEIDER QUALIFIES FOR 500 MILE RACE

Indianapolis, Ind., May 26.—(AP)—Louis Schneider, the former Indianapolis policeman who won the 500 mile race at the Indianapolis motor speedway last year, qualified for this year's race today.

Schneider drove the same car he piloted last year over the ten mile speed test at 110.681 miles an hour, and became the thirtieth driver to qualify for the long race here Monday.

20 Drivers Waiting Chance.

Rain halted today's time trials at an early hour and left some twenty drivers who have not yet tried to pass the requirements only two more days in which to do so. They will be given from 2 p. m. until sundown tomorrow and from 2 to 4 p. m. Saturday to turn in four laps at better than a 100 mile an hour average and become eligible starters.

However, the field is limited to 40 cars, and only the fastest will remain in the starting lineup if more than that number qualify.

Argentine Driver Ready.

Among those still to qualify is Juan Gaudino of Buenos Aires, Argentina, the only foreign entrant. He pronounced his car ready for the test today, and ran several practice laps at 106 to 107 miles per hour. Gaudino said he hoped to average 110 miles an hour on his time trial, with the track cleared.

LORENZ KNI[illegible]G MILLS · CHICAGO

Whips Princess Camelia by Three Lengths.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The ladies were on parade at Washington Park yesterday.

Ladies of the turf, mind you, and as stylish as any in the west. The best of the lot happened to be the beautiful bay I Say, which races for Albert Sabath of Chicago.

The ladies came out to contest the Tulip purse, a warmup for the Illinois Oaks. They were asked to stage their parade under the most difficult conditions. The track was muddy and holding and rain was falling as they made their way to the post.

I Say Wins Easily.

It was a race at a mile out of the chute. Most of the girls had engaged in the Kentucky Oaks Saturday, so they repeated that race yesterday. I Say, which had finished second, ahead of Princess Camelia, wound up 3½ lengths in front of Princess Camelia in the Tulip, and it could have been a half dozen lengths if Allen had called on I Say for a late rally in the stretch.

It was a very slow mile, the time being 1:47 2-5. But under the conditions any sort of time was all right. I Say had many backers and paid $5.08 to win. Princess Camelia paid $4.24 to place and Parfait was at $6.14 to show. The victory made I Say a strong favorite to win the Illinois Oaks.

There was a real display of thoroughbred gameness when Woodcraft won the Grand Crossing purse, which served as the secondary feature. The son of Ormondale-Woodviolet broke down completely while he was rushing upon the inside with a desperate stretch challenge, but he carried on to win in the last stride. Both his front and hind legs gave way, but Woodcraft would not stop until he had nosed out Camp Boss, owned by John Marsch of Chicago.

Long Shots Come Down.

He knew the race was over and was very lame when he pulled up. He may never race again, so serious did his injuries appear last night. If he doesn't Woodcraft showed 'em the last time he carried colors that they don't make horses any gamer.

After Camp Boss had conquered Gay Past coming down the stretch, he appeared to be a certain winner. But the difficult going and the trip he had made from behind took plenty out of him. He began to swerve and shortened his strides and as he swerved to the outside in the final strides the plucky Woodcraft, despite the pain he was suffering, drove on to victory.

Woodcraft was at 9 to 1 in the betting. Camp Boss, also a long shot, paid more than 10 to 1 to place.

WATCH HILENA! SHE MAY BE BEST FILLY BY FALL

Audley Farm 2 Year Old Is Ready to Race.

One of the great 2 year old fillies of the year may have been introduced to Chicago racegoers in Hilena, which was narrowly beaten in the first start of her career at Washington Park on Wednesday.

B. B. Jones, owner of Audley farm, thinks she is the best 2 year old this noted establishment has ever sent to the races. Kay Spence, who trains the Audley horses, also is confident she will develop into a great star. She is a daughter of High Cloud-Felina II. and gets her first real test in the $5,000 Debutante stakes Monday. She probably would have made her mark earlier but for a serious illness early in the spring.

Brown Wisdom and My Dandy, two old Chicago favorites while racing in the colors of W. C. and E. W. Reichert of Bellville, Ill., are among the latest horses entered in the $5,000 added Arlington Inaugural handicap on June 27. Another nomination for the Inaugural is J. W. Y. Martin's Con Amore, one of the most consistent mares in training.

There were quite a few arrivals from New York yesterday. Mrs. J. H. Whitney sent Doornock, Wallop, White Thorn, St. Christopher, Foul Tip, and Shaving. Trainer Jack Middleton took charge of them. W. R. Coe sent three 2 year olds. They were Ciceronese, Polygeny, and Polyphote, all by the sire Polymelian. Burley Parke will train the Coe horses at Washington Park.

PRESBYTERIANS PICK LEADERS; LIST U. S. EVILS

Government Extravagance Called Menace.

Denver, Colo., May 26.—(AP)—The Rev. Dr. Charles W. Kerr, for more than thirty-three years pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Tulsa, Okla., was elected moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. at the opening business session of the church's 144th general assembly today.

Striking at the "abiding complacency" of the nation, Dr. Mudge had listed evils the church must attack in a sermon opening the assembly.

"Racketeering, bootlegging, drug selling, kidnaping, race discrimination, reckless extravagance in government expenditure and in private life, and the substitution of speculation for hard work as a road to wealth—all these are evident on every side," he said.

Dr. Mudge declared isolation from the rest of the world is "impossible for us practically and wrong for us morally." The church, he said, should not be satisfied with conditions in this country which menace the American home.

Dr. Crowe Leads Conservatives.

Montreat, N. C., May 26.—(AP)—The Rev. William Crowe, D. D., 60 year old pastor of Westminster Presbyterian church, St. Louis, Mo., recognized as a leader of the conservative element of the Presbyterian church in the United States, was elected moderator of the 72d general assembly today. Dr. Crowe succeeded R. A. Dunn, Charlotte, N. C., layman, and by request of the latter preached the opening sermon for the assembly this morning, a function ordinarily performed by the retiring moderator.

DR. EISELEN TO QUIT SEMINARY FOR BOARD JOB

Dr. Frederick C. Eiselen, president of Garrett Biblical institue, Evanston, will end an eight year term as head of the institution with the close of the present school year. He will become the corresponding secretary of the Methodist Episcopal board of education, to which office he was elected unanimously at the general conference of the church just closed at Atlantic City.

Dr. Eiselen will be the eleventh to hold the office. Among his predecessors are Bishops E. O. Haven, D. A. Goodsell, William Frazer McDowell, William F. Anderson, and Thomas Nicholson; and former President Abram W. Harris of Northwestern university.

The board of education oversees all Methodist colleges and universities throughout the world. In addition the board supervises the courses of study for all Sunday schools and young people's organizations.

Dr. Eiselen arrived in this country from Germany at the age of 16. He earned his way through Drew Theological seminary, Madison, N. J., and was graduated in the class of 1900.

Harry A. Wheeler, president of the board of trustees of Garrett Biblical institute, said last night that there is now no danger that the school will be forced to close because of the depression, as was feared earlier in the year. Under President Eiselen's leadership, he said, the seminary budget is being balanced by means of economies and generous giving by the alumni and churches and by grants from the Methodist board of education.

URGES GROUP TO APPROVE WORK FOR RECEIVERS

Realtor Suggests Aid for Chancellors.

BY AL CHASE.

Organization of a group of plumbers, carpenters, painters, property managers, etc., to be under the supervision of the courts, and to O. K. orders for work done on buildings in receivership, was suggested last night by Arthur Kruggel, chairman of the board of governors of the renting and management division of the Chicago Real Estate board, as a remedy for an angle of the foreclosure situation which is costly alike to bondholders, equity owners, and the general public. Incidentally he predicted that the days of the political receiver are numbered.

ARTHUR KRUGGEL. (Wallinger Photo.)

Mr. Kruggel, who presided at the meeting of the renting and management division of the realty board, prefaced his suggestion for an official approval board to help the chancellors in O. K.'ing orders, by declaring that properties under court supervision have a higher operating cost and a lower income than those operated by competent property managers. The per room cost of operating buildings by receivers is from $10 to $20 per room per year higher and the income is from 10 to 20 per cent lower, he stated.

Property managed under court supervision is subject to legal red tape and costs incident thereto, he said. He pointed out that the cutthroat rent competition now in force between receivers and property managers means hard work for small compensation.

Don't Like Hard Work.

"And precinct captains and political receivers as a rule don't care to work hard for their money," said Mr. Kruggel. "Therefore, I believe property managers are from now on going to be given back the work that is rightfully theirs and theirs will be the task to restore to real estate bondholders and equity owners at least a fair part of a property's real value."

Mr. Kruggel complained of the time and money wasted by the chancellors in having to approve small orders and as an instance told of the purchase of twenty tons of coal for which four orders of five tons each were entered where one would have been sufficient.

"This means that for twenty tons of coal, a necessary item that had a standard retail price at that time of approximately $150, attorneys' fees of not less than $40 were added to obtain court approval," he said. "What waste! Other incidents are related where excessive charges were allowed and prices much higher than those prevailing were paid for material.

"All this was possible in the early foreclosure days before rents declined to their present levels, but today, owing to the competition between receivers and their failure to consider the operating costs, rents have been reduced to a level that makes it necessary to operate buildings very carefully and economically in order to get sufficient income to pay actual operating expenses.

Urges Realty Action.

"Can't the real estate interests organize a group that would be under the supervision of our courts, to undertake the task of approving orders to have work done on buildings in receivership? This group could be made up of men experienced in their line—painters, carpenters, plumbers, property managers, etc., and be paid on a per diem basis, having all orders for work to be done, together with bids for same, submitted to them by mail or by messenger for their approval as to price and necessity.

"This group could take care of all of this class of work for all the chancellors. It would help speed up the work of the court, would be far less costly to the property involved, and would eliminate excessive charges. All such work and prices paid would be subject to final approval by the court when the receiver was discharged or when his final report was made.

"I believe if figures were available they'd show that at least 500 orders are presented each day to our chancellors for approval. Assuming each order costs the property involved an average of $10 per order, the sum of $5,000 per day is charged to properties in difficulty. A very efficient committee could do the same work at a much lower cost and no doubt would prevent a great deal of waste occasioned by reckless expenditure and high cost for the work actually done."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 26.—In suspending Daniel Manning McKeon, a floor trader, today, the New York Stock exchange took drastic action against one of its members for attempted bear activity.

This is the first time that such action has been taken by the exchange against a member. It marks the first application of a particular section of the constitution since its adoption in 1925.

McKeon, who has been a floor trader with offices at 71 Broadway, was suspended for one year. That announcement, read from the rostrum of the exchange after the bell had been rung by President Richard Whitney, states that the action was taken under sections 4 and 7 of the exchange's constitution.

The statement read from the rostrum on the trading floor today said in part:

"The substance of the charge and specification was that on April 28, 1932, said Daniel Manning McKeon made offers to sell securities for the purpose of upsetting the equilibrium of the market and bringing about a condition of demoralization in which prices would not fairly reflect market values and thereby was guilty of acts inconsistent with just and equitable principles of trade."

RESERVE BANKS SLOW UP BUYING OF U. S. ISSUES

Endeavor to Put Big Credits to Work.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The federal reserve banks took something of a breathing spell in the last week in their program of expanding credit by heavy purchasing of government bonds. It is no secret that the campaign of the reserve authorities has not been followed by the member banks of the reserve system. Thus, although the reserve banks have purchased approximately $800,000,000 of government securities in the last two months, this vast amount of additional credit has not been translated into commercial loans by the member banks.

Now, perhaps, the reserve authorities are willing to pause a bit to see whether the credit always afforded will begin to percolate into the commercial structure of the country. Or perhaps they are willing to await at least tentative results from the committees of financiers and industrialists now being formed in the reserve districts for the purposes of finding ways to utilize the current plethora of credit. It would seem that the reserve banks provided vast additional credit before the commercial banks could or would utilize it fully.

Buying Is Halved.

At all events the reserve banks reduced their purchases of government obligations to $58,793,000 in the last week. This is a little more than half of the average buying of the preceding six weeks, which was close to $100,000,000 a week. However, even this diminished buying pushed the total of such securities held by the reserve banks up to $1,525,196,000. Chiefly as the result of bond buying, coupled with further exports of gold, the gold reserves of the system declined $61,951,000 and total reserves receded $57,943,000. The ratio of reserves to liabilities sagged to 63.1 per cent, compared with 64.4 per cent a week ago. But federal reserve notes in circulation receded $25,393,000 and now total $2,532,714,000, which still is exceeded by gold reserves of $2,857,081,000.

The federal reserve board reported that the country's total monetary gold stock last Wednesday was $4,207,000,000, which was $67,000,000 less than a week before and $588,000,000 lower than a year ago. Total money in circulation is $5,410,000,000, or $39,000,000 less than a week ago, but $776,000,000 more than a year ago.

Reduce Commercial Loans.

The buying of government bonds by the reserve banks resulted in a further increase of $21,981,000 in the reserves held by the member banks at the reserve banks. Such reserves now total $2,214,384,000. Against this increase in reserves the member banks increased their borrowings from the reserve banks by the modest sum of $6,324,000, bringing this item up to $471,267,000. The reserve banks decreased their holdings of bankers' acceptances by $2,270,000.

The increase in borrowings of the member banks might indicate that they are expanding credit somewhat, although this would appear to apply principally to the smaller banks. The reporting member banks in New York reduced their commercial loans by 24 million dollars and their collateral loans by 30 million in the last week, while the reporting member banks in Chicago increased their commercial loans by $3,000,000 but reduced collateral loans by $2,000,000. The New York banks bought 22 million dollars of government securities and 11 million of other securities, but the Chicago banks made no change in their investments.

Expect Bank Bond Pool.

The increase in investments by the New York banks lent support to recent reports that the first move of the New York committee of bankers and industrialists, formed last week, would be to give support to the bond market. Chicago bankers said yesterday that they had no official knowledge that a "pool" to buy corporation bonds has been formed, but that they expected such an event shortly. The Chicago banks expect either to participate in such a move in New York or to form a similar "pool" as the result of formation of a Chicago committee on Wednesday.

The one place where credit is neither wanted nor needed appears to be in the stock market. Coincident with the decline in prices, brokers' loans receded 21 million dollars in the last week, according to the weekly report of the federal reserve board yesterday. The current total now stands at the all-time low record of 393 million dollars. This is 1,181 million dollars under a year ago, when the total was 1,574 million dollars. In the last week the New York banks reduced their own loans by 17 million dollars and interior banks withdrew four million dollars.

NATION'S GOLD STOCK SHRINKS $6,087,000 IN DAY'S TRANSACTIONS

New York, May 26.—(AP)—The country's monetary gold stock was reduced by $6,087,600 today as a result of exports of $1,050,500 to Holland, $37,300 to Peru and an increase of $4,999,800 in earmark account.

Foreign exchanges showed easing tendencies against the dollar today. Dutch guilders sagged 3 points. French francs reacted nominally and Swiss francs eased, although all remained above gold export levels. Sterling reacted a cent to $3.68¾ for cables, possibly reflecting official pressure since the rate had been strong for a couple of days. Canadian dollars again firmed.

Federal Quiz for Chicago Board of Trade

BY PAUL POTTER.

Officials of the Chicago Board of Trade and the Farmers National Grain corporation, federally financed sales agency whose subsidiary trading company was ousted from the exchange Wednesday, will be called before a commission created by Secretary Arthur M. Hyde of the department of agriculture in Washington, in the near future.

Reports in Washington and Chicago that the controversy between the grain exchange and the farm board's coöperative would be aired in federal hearings were received as it became known yesterday that the grain corporation had refused to comply with rules of the exchange in attempting to gain admission to the board of trade clearing house association. The clearing association is a separate organization from the board of trade whose members balance at the end of each day all transactions made in the pits, much as is done by banks.

Huff Charges Law Breach.

A date is to be set for the federal hearings in the near future. At that time the exchange officers will be asked to answer charges made recently by C. E. Huff, head of the Farmers' National corporation that the board of trade was violating the grain futures law.

It is charged that the specific offense is denying the corporation full trading privileges as a coöperative marketing association. Huff appealed to Hyde to revoke the Chicago Board of Trade's license and his claims were placed before a commission composed of Hyde, Secretary of Commerce Lamont, and Attorney General Mitchell.

Meanwhile it was disclosed that the reason the grain corporation had been denied a membership in the clearing association was because it refused to submit its books to the board of trade investigating committee with its application, as is customary.

When the clearing house officials denied the corporation a membership, according to one of the board of trade directors, interviewed yesterday, the corporation appealed its case to the board of trade directorate. No hearing can be held on the corporation's charges, it develops, until the request that the corporation show its books has been complied with.

Views Charges as Ironic.

"Ironically, the corporation officials have not pointed this fact out in all their cries to Washington and to the public that they are being denied trading privileges," that director stated. "It is also queer that so strenuous a fight is being made, under the wing of the farm board and the government, for use of the very exchange system which the 'farm leaders' and the corporation's officials have been denouncing all these years.

"They have maintained in recent hearings that the federal farm board and farmers national corporation's activities will be seriously handicapped without full trading rights. Yet they refuse to submit to the same procedure as may be asked of any new concern applying for these privileges."

Huff issued a long statement last night, reviewing the grain corporation's stand regarding the board of trade's action in denying the Updike Grain company trading privileges after June 11.

"The only conclusion that can be logically reached," Huff said, "is that the case had been prejudged and predecided, not on its merits, but against the coöperatives."

The Updike company officials were declared by board of trade directors to have falsified statements of ownership on two occasions, to have sent farmers national grain corporation telegrams over its leased wires. One of its officials had accepted brokerages in lieu of salary, it was declared. F. J. Thatcher was suspended for 5 years and J. F. Florentine for 2 years.

MILNOR, OTHERS REPLY

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

George S. Milnor, vice president and general manager of the Farmers National, said he was "gratified" to learn that the grain futures commission soon will investigate the Board of Trade's action.

Denying the charge that Updike officials made false affidavits as to stock ownership, Huff said a questionnaire filed with the Board of Trade "clearly shows Farmers National Grain corporation to be the holder of the large majority of the stock" with Milnor, Huff and J. P. Florentine holding one share each and F. J. Thatcher the remainder.

"It was clearly to be inferred that such stock so held by these officials was for corporate convenience," he declared.

In answering the charge that Florentine, Updike secretary, was obtaining brokerage fees on trading orders executed for the Farmers National in lieu of salary, Huff said this is required by Board of Trade rules, that Florentine is not a salaried employé of the Updike company and that no change was made in his status when the Coöperative purchased the Updike stock.

"It would seem," Huff added, "that what is acceptable and within the rules under private management immediately becomes tinged with fraud and a violation of the exchange rules when practiced by a coöperative."

French Cite Taxes, Trade, Politics.

This is the first of two articles by Edmond Taylor, Paris correspondent of The Tribune, presenting the views of French economists on the withdrawal of gold from the United States by Europeans. In particular, the articles explain the effect of American governmental politics and finance on European banks and investors having funds in the United States. The second article will appear tomorrow.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 26.—The gold tide is running eastward again. It thus is writing a new chapter in the financial history of nations. One chapter already is closed—the U. S. federal reserve system, once the greatest reservoir of capital in the world, has dropped behind the Bank of France.

The story of the efflux of European capital from America has been one of the main topics of conversation on both sides of the Atlantic for the last few months. It can be told in four sets of figures.

At approximately the same date, July 31, the weekly statement of the Bank of France showed gold holdings, roughly, of $2,336,000,000.

On May 18, last, the federal reserve holdings had dwindled to $2,919,000,000.

At the same time the gold hoard of the Bank of France had increased to $3,146,000,000.

Change Reaches Half Billion.

The loss from the federal reserve gold holdings in those nine months was a half billion in round numbers, while the gain of the Bank of France, including gold from non-American sources, was approximately eight hundred million dollars.

Obviously these figures do not tell the whole story of trans-Atlantic gold shipments. The Bank of France has received by no means all the gold drawn from America, much of it being hoarded by private individuals or banks in France while even larger amounts only passed through France on the way to other European capitals.

It is estimated here that at least half a billion dollars crossed the Atlantic during the flurry of the dollar last fall. Though complete figures are not available here at the moment, experts believe that at least $250,000,000 has arrived since the first of the year or now is in transit.

The fact the ocean may be dotted with treasure ships at any given moment—as it has been three times in the last nine months and at present—does not mean that a flight from the dollar is taking place.

It is emphasized here that from the gold arriving in Europe is merely gold returning, since European holdings in America are by no means liquidated. Furthermore much of the billion odd dollars of European capital invested in America was sent there under abnormal conditions—either fleeing insecurity at home or seeking bigger profits—and its return is perfectly natural.

America Draws from Asia.

Finally the figures given above only mention the outflow of gold to Europe while it was to a large extent counterbalanced by the inflow from Asia and South America. It is for these reasons that financiers here refuse to draw any conclusions from the change in the relative standing of the American Federal Reserve system and the Bank of France, merely considering it as a weather vane showing how the winds of the world of finance are blowing.

At present a big exodus of gold from America is taking place. The slump of the dollar on the Paris bourse to 25.325 is likely to increase the exodus momentarily by augmenting the profit realized by shipments. First arrivals of the new shipments are just coming in, but cabled reports from New York indicate that before May ends, nearly $150,000,000 more will have crossed the ocean.

An interesting feature of this gold movement is that France occupies only third place among the consignees, Holland taking over a third alone with Switzerland close on her heels. Belgium and Germany also are receiving shipments.

"Blame" Widely Placed.

The gold drainage has been blamed on everything from an international bear ring to a plot by the French government, but leading bankers of

Cotton Belt Acts to Avert Receivership

New York, May 26.—(AP)—After meeting for several hours to discuss the situation arising from failure of sufficient bondholders to assent to the refunding plan designed to stave off receivership, directors of the St. Louis Southwestern [Cotton Belt] railway today decided to declare the plan operative, on condition that sufficient bonds be deposited under the plan by May 31.

The plan involves the $20,727,750 4 per cent consolidated bonds of the Cotton Belt which mature on June 1. It had been announced that approval of 90 per cent of the holders of these bonds must be received by yesterday if the refunding plan, which involves half payment in cash and half in new bonds, was to be carried through. Thus far, however, only 87 per cent have been approved.

The half payment in cash, under the plan, would be made from funds received through a loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, which has the approval of the interstate commerce commission, provided sufficient of the bondholders accept.

Sanction Alton Loan.

Washington, D. C., May 26.—(AP)—The Alton Railroad company today was authorized by the interstate commerce commission to borrow $2,500,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The money is to be used to pay $1,500,000 of receiver's certificates, $800,000 of equipment trust certificates, and $200,000 taxes. The road is required to pledge stock of three of its subsidiaries. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company, which owns the Alton, is required to endorse the note.

B. & O. Completes Plan.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company which yesterday paid off $8,000,000 of maturing notes has completed all arrangements for refinancing $35,000,000 of notes maturing on Aug. 10, it was announced today. The railroad, which recently received a loan of $25,500,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, stated that it would not require any further assistance in completing its refinancing, which involved a total of $43,000,000.

The arrangement was worked out by a banking group consisting of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Speyer & Co. and the National City company, none of whom, it was said, made any charge for their services. Of the $43,000,000 original total, $8,000,000 of the notes paid yesterday came from proceeds of the Reconstruction Finance corporation loan. The balance of $17,500,000 of notes due will be met through the issuance by the road of that amount of two-year 6 per cent secured notes due Aug. 10, 1934. Present note holders, mainly banks, have already agreed to the plan.

FAVORS STATE FEDERAL CONTROL OF TRUCKS, BUSES

Robert H. Dunn, chairman of the Michigan public utility commission, listed some of the ailments of the motor transport industry, talking last night to men from nine states, members of the Central Motor Freight association at the Congress hotel. Warren E. Wright of Jacksonville, Ill., is president of the association.

Dr. Dunn called trucking "more archaic than the railroads were sixty years ago for failing to provide for interchange of trailers, joint rates on through routes, inter-line tickets on buses and through checking on passenger baggage."

Mr. Dunn advocates state and federal regulation and trucking lines, and is chairman of a committee with representatives from nine central states. That group seeks uniformity of state shipping regulations and a uniform system of accounting.

KELLY URGES REHABILITATION OF SLUM AREAS

If Chicago is given any of the federal funds for putting industry back on its feet, we should follow Germany's example and use it for providing model homes for workers and rehabilitating slum areas, D. F. Kelley told members of the Construction Industries council of the Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday.

"There are thousands of undesirable tenements which should be removed," he said, "extending from the edge of the loop for miles west and south. These properties could be condemned and purchased at a reasonable price. Architects and workers are available for planning and erecting modern, well lighted homes for workers."

The proposed reorganization is to be under government auspices, the cablegram stated, with the American representative on the committee to be appointed by the International Match trustee, not yet elected.

Peter B. Carey Heads Latest Insull Group

Formation of the third committee for the protection of common stockholders of the Middle West Utilities company was announced yesterday here. The group, which is said to represent eastern investment banking interests which participated in the distribution of the company's securities, is headed by Peter B. Carey, president of the Chicago Board of Trade.

Organizers of the committee expressly stated yesterday that the new group will not wage a fight with the committees already in the field. The purpose of the new organization is to represent the interests of various investment banking houses which participated in the syndicate which sold Middle West common stock. Banking houses in Boston, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, New York and San Francisco were active in the formation of the group.

Others On Committee

In addition to Mr. Carey, members already named are Charles C. Fitzmorris, president of the Globe Coal company, Walter E. Kennedy, A. P. Barrett company, investment firm, and John J. McDevitt, Philadelphia. Additional members from New York and Boston will be named later.

It is understood that the same interests behind the committee shortly will form a similar group for the holders of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., debentures. Mr. McDevitt will be chairman of that committee.

Two other committees had previously been formed. The one headed by Martin Lindsay is said to represent the large New York and Chicago commercial banks, which hold large blocks of Middle West stock as collateral. Another headed by Burton Colbert is functioning independently.

Report Earnings of Subsidiaries

While the various committees went ahead with plans for organizing stockholders yesterday several Middle West units reported on earnings and dividends.

Directors of National Electric Power company, eastern holding concern, formally omitted quarterly dividends on the 6 and 7 per cent preferred stocks, ordinarily payable July 1.

National Public Service corporation, subsidiary holding firm of National Electric Power, passed the quarterly payments on the A and B common stocks and the $3.50 preferred and the 7 per cent preferred issues.

Wisconsin Light and Power company issued its first quarter report showing net income for retirement and dividends of $505,652, compared with $580,145 in the comparable period last year.

Northwest Utilities company reported net income of $467,097 available for retirement and dividends for the first quarter. This compares with $609,894 in the first quarter of 1931.

4 Cent Cut in New York Gas Price Called Purely Local

The recent cut of 4 cents a gallon in the price of gasoline in the New York city metropolitan area was of a local nature and without bearing on other gasoline markets, H. L. Pratt, chairman of the Socony-Vacuum corporation said yesterday.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 26.—Wall street's pulse was stirred by an earnest looking little rally on the stock exchange today. The first in nearly two weeks, Washington dispatches indicating increasing prospects for enactment of a sales tax as a first definite step toward a balanced national budget were given the credit, although the rise probably was due more than anything else to natural revulsion to too much selling.

Tobaccos Sold Freely.

Prior to the upturn, the market had run another discouraging course of liquidation in which big bundles of stocks which up to now have been offering stout resistance to the reaction were dumped overboard along with the rank and file which have been freely slaughtered from the beginning. Reynolds Tobacco B, for instance, lastly classified among the so-called "depression proof" issues, was sold in blocks of 2,000, 5,000, and even 10,000 shares for a while at a rate that made onlooking brokers gasp in astonishment. In all about 25,000 shares changed hands in one five minute period driving the price down to a new low of 27¼ before the stock began to stiffen. Selling went on unchecked in numerous other erstwhile favorites and by noon few departments of the list had escaped being bowled down to new bottoms.

General Motors was under particularly heavy fire for a while, much of its troubles being ascribed to the remarks of President Sloan, head of the corporation, which were accepted as a warning that a further reduction of the common dividend is in store. The stock sold to a new low of 9½. The present $1 rate was put in force at the last directorate meeting and represented a 50 per cent reduction from the previous rate. Chrysler also dropped to a new low but with other more active issues of the group rallied fractionally after the turnabout.

Rally Starts Late.

The rally didn't get its stride until well along in the afternoon. It was around the beginning of the final hour of trading, in fact, before it became general. Trading was fairly brisk for a while, although the ticker never had any difficulty in keeping abreast with operations, but it quieted down in the final 30 minutes. Price gains held well, however, and final figures as a rule were around the top.

Among the best net showings to go into the overnight record were Allied Chemical and Dye, up 2¼ points; Air Reduction, up 2¼; American Telephone, 1⅛; Atchison, 1½; International Business Machine, 2¾; Peoples Gas, 2½; Gillette Safety Razor, 1⅝ points.

Railroad and utility shares moved up in group formations.

Aluminum Co. of America Reduces Pay 10 Per Cent

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 26.—(AP)—The Aluminum company of America today announced a 10 per cent reduction in salaries and wages, effective June 1.

The Fisk Rubber Company

To the Holders of First Mortgage Twenty Year Eight Per Cent. Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, Five-Year 5½% Sinking Fund Gold Notes, and Certificates of Deposit therefor:

The undersigned Committee has been organized by owners of Bonds and Notes of The Fisk Rubber Company to endeavor to effect an immediate partial payment on account, of at least 20% in cash, to the holders of the Bonds and Notes.

The Company has been in receivership for almost a year and a half with no definite present prospect of a cash distribution to security holders or of a reorganization in the near future. On December 31, 1931, the Receivers of the Company had over $6,750,000 in cash and United States Government securities, as well as accounts receivable and inventories aggregating over $8,500,000, after reserves. The Committee has been advised that the Company operated at a loss during the first quarter of 1932 and that cash and United States Government securities have diminished. An immediate cash distribution of 20% in part payment of the Bonds and Notes would require about $3,164,000 and the Committee believes that payment of this amount as a minimum can be made now without injury to the Company, whether its business be continued in receivership, reorganized or liquidated, with the prospect of a later substantial additional distribution on the Bonds and Notes.

No charge will be made by the Committee for its expenses or services except in the event of a cash distribution upon the deposited securities, and such charge shall in no event exceed 2% of the principal amount of deposited securities.

In order that the Committee may be in a position to take effective action, those desiring to cooperate with it in obtaining a cash distribution should promptly deposit their Bonds or Notes, or Certificates of Deposit therefor, with the Depositary named below, under a Deposit Agreement, copies of which, together with further information, may be obtained from the Secretary of the Committee.

French Cite Taxes, Trade and Politics.

French and American nationality, who were interviewed, have a less sensational explanation—or rather a series of explanations. For there were three separate waves of gold shipments in the last nine months and each had a different character.

The present one, which started towards the end of April, is attributed by every one this correspondent interviewed to just one thing—the dollar's being below the so-called gold export point so that gold is cheaper than currency in terms of the foreign exchange profit that can be released by buying and shipping it even after the costs of shipment are deducted. This is a phenomenon that has always been considered normal.

In a general fashion gold has been shipped from America during the last nine months only when it was profitable to do so.

The principal interest, therefore, revolves around the reasons why the exchange rate of the dollar drops below the gold point—a figure which varies according to shippings costs and other factors and is now placed at about 26.35 francs to the dollar.

Sales Sometimes Accelerated.

At present no consistent effort to hold the dollar below the gold point has been detected by any of THE TRIBUNE'S informants. The simplest method employed by currency bears in depressing any money is to sell faster than supporters of that money can buy—that is to sell short except when an enormous pool is formed in advance. Many of the bankers interviewed by THE TRIBUNE, however, considered that whispering campaigns spreading false information and publication of news of sensational or misleading character—either spontaneous or deliberate—as a principal factor in undermining currency.

There are very few short sales of the dollar in the Paris market at present and the embassy, which is always scouting for anti-American propaganda, sees no signs of an organized campaign against the dollar.

The present weakness of the dollar on the Paris bourse is attributed here to French uneasiness over the American budget. The mounting extravagance of the Washington government and the consequently increasing tax burden frequently are commented on in financial journals. There also are comments on what the French consider as the failure of the federal reserve's anti-deflation policy. An authoritative statement on that point of view recently was given by Frederick Jenny, financial editor of Le Temps and one of the mouthpieces of the Bank of France.

French View of U. S. Polity.

"In six months nearly $600,000,000 in new capital has been put in circulation by the purchasing of government securities," Jenny writes. "The credit thus released has failed to reach productive enterprises of the country which could use it to give new orders. The inflation of credit as practiced by the federal reserve thus has failed to prevent the deflation of business.

"While powerless to give the result expected, this policy has been harmful to American currency. It has aroused a lack of confidence in foreign markets. Certainly the dollar is sufficiently protected by its gold reserve, for its stability will be in no danger from this inflation of credit.

"At the same time it has held the dollar down below the gold point for several weeks, provoking a relatively serious drainage of the yellow metal. During the first 15 days of May the gold holdings of the federal reserve dropped from $3,014,000,000 to $2,919,000,000—the biggest drop since the massive gold withdrawals of last October."

That is the official viewpoint of the Bank of France—confidence in the fundamental soundness of the dollar combined with frank disapproval of the policies of the federal reserve system.

Bank of France's Action.

A high official of the Bank of France who could not be quoted at the time expressed to this correspondent substantially the same sentiments in the middle of January when the second big exodus of gold from America took place. By coincidence the immediate cause of that exodus was the decision of the Bank of France to repatriate $125,000,000 of earmarked gold held for it in New York.

At the same time it was broadly hinted that the working agreement between the federal reserve and the Bank of France, reached during Premier Laval's visit to America, had broken down through a divergence of views between the two institutions. The result was a sharp drop in the price of the dollar and the loading up of every eastbound liner with gold for the next three weeks.

New Fisk Rubber Group Hopes to Obtain Cash

New York, May 26.—(AP)—Formation was announced today of a new Fisk Rubber company protective committee, representing the company's $15,800,000 of outstanding first mortgage 8 per cent bonds and the five year 6½ per cent sinking fund gold notes. The committee's program, with F. Eberstadt as chairman, calls for an immediate partial payment on account of at least 20 per cent in cash to holders of these securities.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 1,000; hogs, 17,000; sheep, 10,000.

The hog market yesterday encountered fresh stumbling blocks and went down to new low price levels under a load of bearish factors. Sultry weather retarded local buying when discouraging reports drifted in from the wholesale trade where action previously this week had been fairly good. The pressure of receipts increased with the arrival of 27,000 head. This was the second largest Thursday total since March 24.

Packers will do no slaughtering Monday and some cutting floors will remain idle from Friday night until Tuesday morning. As a result, most houses bought sparingly. Eastern order buyers took very few, but anticipate better outside demand the remainder of the week. Stock shipped out yesterday would arrive at their destination in the east Saturday making necessary to carry them until Tuesday morning before slaughtering. The top price for hogs last 5c more, going to $3.40, which equals the lowest mark since the summer of 1896. The general average showed 5c loss at $3.20.

Cattle Trend Lower.

Cattle turned reactionary after a firm start yesterday. Sellers, anticipating pre-holiday strength in beef, strove to elevate quotations, but it soon became evident that buyers had different ideas. Before mid-session the trend was decidedly in a downward direction, with many transactions uncovering losses of 25c toward noon. At that time the movement over sales reached full swing and very little was carried into the later afternoon rounds.

Demand lately has been turning toward lighter weights. The kosher trade in the east, which handles a big share of weighty steers from here, has suffered a setback. Eastern hotel demand for heavy carcasses has dropped off. Yearling stock topped the market yesterday for the first time in several weeks. Nothing outstanding in quality arrived, however. Cattle averaging 1,023 lbs to 1,397 lbs sold at $7.25, the top. Bulk of steers sold at $5.35@6.75. Butcher stock ruled steady to a shade lower.

Lambs Hold Firm.

Lambs held firm yesterday, despite weakness in other live stock. Action was good in most classes. Shorn lambs sold largely at $4.75@5.25, with wool stock at $4.85@5.00, nothing of outstanding quality in wool arriving. Eight carloads of California spring lambs sold at $6.00, with "sorts" ranging from 10 to 30 per cent. Most natives brought $5.50@6.00, although packers paid up to $6.25 and city butchers up to $6.40 for their best selections.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 1,000 cattle, 17,000 hogs, and 10,000 sheep, against 1,254 cattle, 16,654 hogs, and 13,359 sheep the previous Friday, and 1,354 cattle, 13,228 hogs, and 11,652 sheep a year ago.

LARD GOES LOWER

Good receipts of hogs with an easier market led to scattered selling of lard, particularly of September, by a commission house said to be one of the largest holders and prices declined 5c. Trading in all was not large and the market seemed to lack new animation. In the cash trade there was a fair average of business in bellies, hams, and lard. Fresh pork loins were called firm at 9½@10c for medium to light weights. Regular cash lard was 3.77½c; loose, 3.15c; leaf lard, 3.12½c; short ribs, 4.25c, and dry salted bellies, 4.12½c. Liverpool lard was 3d to 9d lower. Hog receipts in the west were heavier than a week and a year ago, but lighter than two years ago. Prices follow:

RAINS IN WEST BRING DECLINE IN WHEAT PRICE

Interest in Grain Market Mostly Professional.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Weather conditions were regarded as too favorable yesterday by wheat traders to make an effort to advance prices. Good rains were reported in parts of the American and Canadian northwest, where dryness had commence to be reported in the last few days, and thus started a selling movement which carried the July off 2c from Wednesday's finish. Over 2 inches of rain occurred at some points in the Dakotas, and no concern was expressed over temperatures below freezing, with snow, in parts of North Dakota.

Local longs were on the selling side of wheat futures early, with some pressure from the pit element due to the weakness in the stock market. Old July dropped to 58¾c, and showed 2¾c under the high of last Monday before buying against bids and by shorts checked the decline. Later there was short covering and also reinstating of recently sold out lines, which brought about a rally around 1c from the inside figures. Final trades were at net losses of ⅞@1c, with May 58¾c, old July 59¾@59¾c, old September 61⅝@61¾c, and December 63¾c.

Trade Mainly Professional.

Outside interest in the wheat market was not large despite continued reports of damage to the crop in the central west by Hessian fly. A good part of the business was of a professional character, with sentiment inclined to the bear side. Rains were officially recorded over a good part of the soft wheat belt where dry weather has been claimed in the last few days. Returns to Nat C. Murray, the Clement, Curtis & Co. statistician, indicated the probability of the heaviest damage to winter wheat by Hessian fly in 10 years or more. He believes this is due to the March freeze which weakened the vitality of the plant.

Crop damage reports have not had the effect on the wheat market this season that they would under normal conditions. At the low yesterday the July was only 2¼c above the price prevailing when the government issued its sensationally bullish wheat estimate of 458,000,000 bu. Trade ideas at the present time indicate a yield far below that figure.

Estimate Kansas Crop.

Kenneth Pierce of J. E. Bennett & Co., who was in Kansas City, wired that the consensus of the trade there was Kansas would raise between 65,000,000 and 75,000,000 bu wheat, and rain had simply checked further deterioration. Crop Observer Le Count wired Stein, Alstrin & Co. from Garden City, Kas., that a large acreage in that section was too far gone to be helped by showers.

Foreigners again showed little interest in North American wheat and export sales were confined to scattered lots of Manitobas, with the total estimate around 300,000 bu. Winnipeg closed ½@¾c higher, with July at 64c in Canadian funds. Liverpool was ⅛@⅜c higher, with July at 60¾c, or 1⅛c over Chicago at the time the English market closed. On Tuesday the active delivery in the two markets was quoted at the same price.

Corn Dull and Easier.

Corn was dull and easier, and while the inside figures were not maintained, due to scattered buying on the rally in wheat, the finish was ¼@⅝c lower. May closed at 30¼c, July 32¼@32⅜c September 34⅜c, and December 35⅛@35¼c. The country sold 20,000 bu cash corn to arrive, while the east purchased 39,000 bu. Rains were regarded as favorable for the new crop.

Cash interests were fair sellers of May oats, while commission houses bought. Final trades were ¼@⅜c lower, with May 22¼@22⅜c, July and September 22⅝c, and December 24⅝@24½c. Rye was off ⅛@1¼c with wheat. May finished at 37¼c, July 39¼c, September 40¾c, and December 43¾c.
